Downtown Project May Be Expanded With State Funds

By GARRY PUDDISTER

More downtown Winchester streets may get new brick sidewalks and old-fashioned lamp posts. This new reconstruction, which would begin next spring, would be a continuation of the reconstruction that is going on now on some of Winchester's downtown streets.

The town learned recently that it is eligible for an additional state grant enabling it to extend this reconstruction. Winchester could receive a $740,000 Public Works Economic Development Grant under a program designed to help cities and towns revitalize their downtown areas.

Winchester's grant request will be decided on after additional information is filed, within 60 days, with the Executive Office of Transportation and Construction, the state agency overseeing distribution of these funds.

The town must also award a construction contract by the end of the year in order to be eligible for the grant, but new plans for the construction will not be necessary. The same plans and specifications will be used for the new work since a design for additional construction was included in the current plans.

A public hearing on the new reconstruction is planned for Aug. 6.

Mini-Campers Learn Magic

BY LIZ WILLEN

Chucky Keefe learned some "real magic" last week at the Recreation Dept.'s Mini-Camp. But don't ask him to explain his new tricks.

He's not telling.

Tom-Ben Gossnell has been stumping his parents with his new card tricks all week. They work. But he won't reveal how.

"We're not supposed to tell anyone," insisted Josephine Theuer, who performed some of her tricks at a special magic show at McCall on Friday.

"We're sworn to secrecy," added Keefe, looking over at his mentor, mime Jim Vetter. "Jim told us that magicians do not reveal their secrets."

The lanky, agile Vetter, who has been performing magic since he was 6 years old, spent a week teaching his tricks to students in the mini-camp program. And by the end of the week, there were at least 50 new magicians ready to show off in front of a crowd of family and friends.

Patty Cummings was one of them. She stumped the audience by picking the six of diamonds out of a deck of 52 cards.

Afterwards, she smiled smugly. "I haven't told anyone how it works," she admitted.

"The rule is, you never tell anyone how it works just for curiosity sake," said Vetter after the show. "You only tell people who really want to learn."

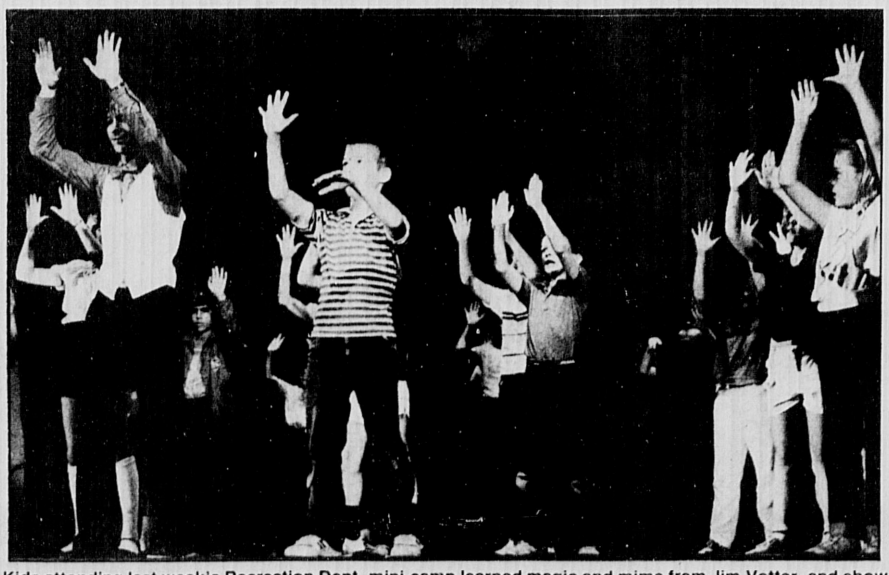

And, Vetter added, Cummings, Gossnell and Keefe, along with 20 others, were dying to know some of his secrets.

Vetter was happy to share a few. But there were a couple of tricks, including pulling apart seemingly linked metal rings and pulling a scarf out of thin air, that he refused to reveal.

"It was astonishing how well they learned," he said. "It was a great group." Vetter spent four hours a day for five days making mimes and magicians out of the group. But he didn't want too much competition.

"Oh, I absolutely kept some secrets," Vetter said with a smile. "It's funny, though. Most people build up great fantasies about how tricks work, yet most of them are amazingly simple. But I think it's more fun if you don't find out."

Police Overtime Rises To More Than $6,000 A Week

By LIZ WILLEN

A burgeoning overtime budget for the Winchester Police Dept., caused by the reconstruction of the downtown police station and costing $6,000 a week, had some selectmen concerned last week.

But remarks that police were sleeping on the job, made by Selectman Chairman Mark Lombardi to a reporter, caused even more concern.

Police Chief John McHugh, appearing before the Board of Selectmen on Monday night, said that the department's move to the Lynch School, coupled with staff vacancies and the high number of officers who are out on summer vacation, has contributed to the unusual overtime situation.

For two weeks in June, overtime topped $6,000 a week, according to the chief. The usual July-August overtime budget of $25,000 will at least double to $40,000 — more than half the yearly overtime budget, added the chief.

But Lombardi's published suggestion for cutting down on the overtime left police officers feeling insulted, and one resident mad enough to come down to the selectmen's meeting and chew Lombardi out.

Lombardi Comment On Cops Slammed

Lombardi was quoted in a Woburn paper as saying the officer in the communications trailer behind the police station construction site "watches TV all day and sleeps all night. If there is an emergency, she (the dispatcher) has to wake him up."

Water st. resident William Thomas said he was so "incensed" after reading the comment that he stormed down to the selectmen's meeting.

"Your quarrel with the police department should not be taken up in the press," Thomas said. "I have lived here for 53 years, and I was upset enough to come down. The police do a good job, and it just wasn't right to say that.

"You should be supporting the police, not condemning them," Thomas added, before Lombardi interrupted him.

"I have the floor, now be quiet!" Lombardi said, slamming down his gavel and then noting that he "was misquoted."

(The writer of the story, Dan Kennedy, confirmed in a telephone interview that "the remarks that appeared were his remarks. He knows I got it right.")

"If I was that interested in town government, I would have come down here more than once in 53 years," Lombardi said to Thomas.

Selectmen Wade Welch reminded Lombardi, "We're here to discuss matters with the chief." Lombardi agreed.

"I've got nothing to hide, and maybe he (the chief) has nothing to hide," Lombardi said. "I want to know why there is so much overtime."

McHugh, who remained calm and soft-spoken throughout the meeting, told selectmen that "to my knowledge, none of my men have been sleeping on the job. If this were true, they would be subject to disciplinary action."

And, McHugh said the rising overtime costs were a direct result of the move from the old police station to the Lynch School.

Man-hours had to be spent designing a communications link between the trailer behind the old station and the Lynch School. Extra men were also needed to staff both the trailer and the Lynch Station at once.

"Also, we were five men short (because of vacations) during the move, and we didn't want to reduce the effective visibility and quality of the police force," McHugh said.

McHugh, who said that "it would be impossible to provide the appropriate police coverage to the town without overtime," noted that there were four vacancies in the police force, one man out on an extended sick leave, and six or seven men out on vacation.

"The crush and crunch has caused a great deal of confusion and con-

Summertime Entertainment

Summer Band To Finish With Flourish

The Winchester Recreation Dept's. Summer Band Concert Series is alive and well and operating (behind the Library) on Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

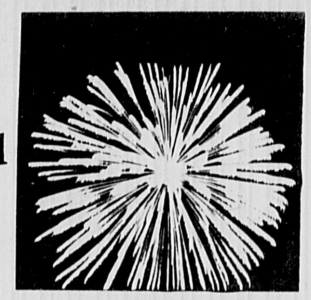

The concert on Aug. 8 will focus on music selections from T.V. and movies plus the traditional grande finale of the "1812 Overture," complete with the cannons and musket fire power of the local militiamen.

The concert series kick-off on July 25 featured popular music, under the direction of Priscilla Miller, with a special guest group by the Boston Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America.

On Aug. 1, Miller put together selections from show tunes and the featured guest group will be the local and popular group, "The Solution".

The concerts are available to residents free of charge and are suitably entertaining for all ages. Plan to bring a lawn chair, a blanket, a picnic basket and a friend. For additional information, contact the Winchester Recreation Dept.

Italian Fiesta To Hit Town This Weekend

Winchester's mid-summer family festival, the Society of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary's Italian Fiesta, will hit town this weekend with a carnival, fireworks and a procession through the streets of town.

The Fiesta will be held at Leonard's Field on Washington st. on Friday from 5 to 11 p.m., and on Saturday from noon to 11 p.m.

Fireworks will again be part of this year's two-day carnival, with the rockets bursting in the sky beginning at 10 p.m. Saturday.

Mass in honor of the assumption will be celebrated at 6 p.m. Saturday, with musical entertainment following at 7 p.m.

A procession through the streets between Washington st. and Leonard's Field will begin at 11 a.m. Saturday morning.

In case of rain, the fireworks display will be moved to 9 p.m. on Sunday, with musical entertainment beginning at 7 p.m.

The public is asked to bring chairs and not park on the north side of Washington st.

Look What They Found

Center Work Uncovers Bit Of History

BY LIZ WILLEN

Larry Keats was walking in town one summer night recently when he paused to glance at the progress of the downtown construction.

The Summit ave. resident thought he would be gazing upon mounds of dug-up dirt, tar, and concrete. But instead, he saw the remnants of trolley tracks that used to run from Winchester to Woburn more than 90 years ago.

Keats — a trolley buff — was excited by what he found. "It never dawned on me the tracks would still be under there," he said.

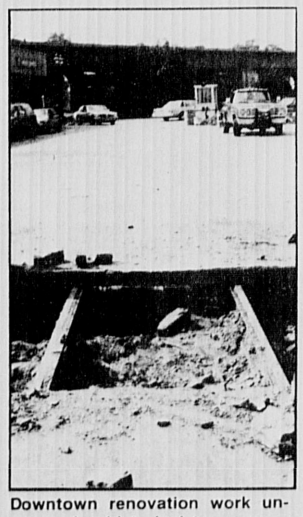

But downtown construction project supervisor John Santucci, who discovered the tracks earlier in the week while trying to install crosswalks, was dismayed.

Santucci said he had "suspected that something hard was underneath" when the streets were saw-cut by workers earlier in the month — and the edge of the blade was almost ripped off.

He didn't realize that he was dealing with a trolley track, however, until the asphalt was pulled off. Santucci then called Economic Development Coordinator John Connery.

"John, I don't know what we found, but you'd better come down and take a look," Santucci recalls saying to Connery. "It was a surprise to him, just as it was to everyone else in town."

It was an expensive surprise as well. Three 10-foot sections of cobblestone and the rails along Mt. Vernon st. had to be removed with torches, and Santucci noted that the

$10 Carving Brings $15K In Auction

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

It was unusual and looked old, and was picked up for $10 at a recent yard sale in New Hampshire.

What the former Winchester resident didn't know when she found the wooden head carving at the yard sale or when she had it sold at auction, was that it was also rare and sought after. The auction price it brought was $15,400.

"Morning after morning of trudging from one yard sale to another finally paid off for her," says Patricia McGrath, the Arlington auctioneer who handled the piece.

"She was thrilled to say the least," says McGrath. "I think she was in shock for the first 10 minutes. After that, I think she was more than pleased."

McGrath had taken the wooden carving on consignment from the woman (who wishes to remain anonymous) and gave it the nickname "uga buga."

The head appeared to be that of a warrior, with war bands through the face and large eyes carved with mother of pearl inlay, McGrath describes. "It appeared to have a lot of age and was quite well done, but it was one of those strange looking things that most people wouldn't pay much attention to."

A former Winchester resident bought this carving for $10, then sold it at an auction for $15,400.

That's what McGrath first thought.

To prepare for the auction, the 28-year-old auctioneer (who comes from a large family where her father and three siblings are also antique dealers in Winchester) photographed the head carving and placed the picture in an antique trade newspapers to advertise the antique auction.

Most of the other auction items were jewelry and silver, but McGrath

Scouting It Out

Winchester resident Mary Lou Eugley presents a Capital Campaign pledge card to Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council President Nancy Pratt after spending an evening at camp to gear up for the council's $2.5 million campaign. As a member of the campaign's community division, Eugley is responsible for raising funds in Winchester from scout friends, families and businesspeople. Winchester volunteers have set a $5,000 goal and have earmarked the funds to construct wheelchair ramps at Cedar Hill Outdoor Center in Waltham.

They Do It All For...

Young Athletes In Amateur Sports

Harold and Dottie Buehler of Girard rd., McDonald's owner/operators in Medford and Woburn, recently visited the McDonald's Olympic Swim Stadium in Los Angeles. As two of 1,500 McDonald's franchisees, they helped fund construction of the $4 million Swim Stadium that will be the site of all swimming, diving and synchoronized swimming events at the 1984 Summer Olympic Games.

The Buehlers' commitment to the achievement of America's youth in sports is felt by young amateur athletes nationwide, from Winchester to the Olympics. As part of the company's owner/operator community, they sponsor a number of national youth sports federations, including Age-Group Swimming, U.S. Diving, U.S. Synchronized Swimming and the U.S. Gymnastics Federation.

Girard rd. residents Harold and Dottie Buehler stand by the Olympic pool they and fellow McDonald's owners helped pay to build in Los Angeles.

Lee To Speak

Dr. Neville S. Lee, senior economist at Bank of Boston and W inchester resident, will speak at Massachusetts Business Week 1984.

More than 50 executives from local businesses will lead workshops regarding free enterprise topics at Massachusetts Business Week, a youth economic education program held Aug. 5 to 10 at Bentley College in Waltham. In attendance will be 150 high school students representing every county in the commonwealth.

The Small Business Foundation of America Inc. has sponsored this program since 1981. Headquartered in Boston, the foundation is a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting the growth of small and entrepreneurial business through research, education, and public awareness programs.

Fraser Wins

Hugh Fraser is a winner. The Mystic Valley pkwy. resident played Summer Gold, the summer promotion offered by the Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of New England.

When he opened his bottle of Coca-Cola he thought at first that he had won a BIC pen, until he examined the cap more closely and realized that he had won a BIC 250 Sailboard.

Beranek Receives

Leo L. Beranek of Ledyard rd. (r), a director and former chief executive of Bolt, Beranek and Newman Inc., recently received an honorary degree from Northeastern University, presented by university President Kenneth G. Ryder (l). A physicist and engineer who also served as president and CEO of WCVB—TV and as chairman of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Board of Trustees, Beranek received a doctor of public service degree.

Vandals Damage Ambrose School In Third Incident Of Summer

For the third time in one month, police have discovered damage to the Ambrose School. Earlier in July, firefighters extinguished two separate, deliberately set blazes at the school that caused over $80,000 worth of damage.

On Thursday, police discovered that two large swastikas had been burned into the wood of a boarded-up window.

"We have no idea who would be doing this," said Chief John McHugh. "It would appear that someone was out to get the school, but we don't know why. It is a cowardly display of vandalism."

McHugh said the incidents were "probably related." He said that an investigation is being conducted by Lt. Perritano.

The two fires destroyed between $8,000 and $10,000 worth of furniture and equipment in the principal's office, where both fires were believed to have been started.

Supt. Charles Mitsakos told School Committee members at a recent meeting that the school should be ready for students by September. However, he noted that some windows and carpeting will have to be replaced and curtains will have to be cleaned. According to Mitsakos, certain pieces of furniture and equipment may have been damaged beyond repair.

The Department of Public Works has already cleaned over 5,000 library books that were damamged in the fire. Both fires are still being investigated by Lt. Joseph Perritano and the Winchester Fire Dept. Although officials say they are certain that the fires were the work of an arsonist, they do not have many clues about who might have set them.

Volunteers Needed To Assess Day Care Needs In Winchester And Nearby Towns

Does Mystic Valley need more day care? Do you see the need for more day care services in Winchester and nearby towns? Do you want to do something about it?

A two-year federally-funded project, operating within the state's Office for Children, is currently looking for volunteer citizens in Winchester and other selected sites throughout the state to encourage the involvement of employers, including business, local government and industry, to meet the child care needs of their employees and their communities.

The federal project called "Citizen Involvement for Day Care Quality Project" includes training consisting of approximately three evening sessions on the history and current status of employer-supported child care and the range of options employers can choose. Employer options can be simply providing child care information and referral to their employees to developing on-site day care centers.

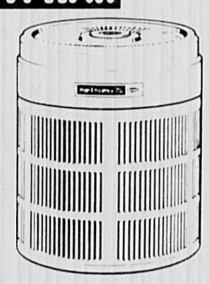

Office for Children volunteers and staff will then develop a strategy to involve a local employer in childcare, either for their employees specifically or in the community. The development and implementation of the strategy will occur over the year.

If you or your colleagues or neighbors are interested in getting involved, call Matty Bloom at the Mystic Valley Council for Children office in Winchester.

"Relative Values" To Debut

Coward's Comedy Begins Tonight In Epipany Cloister Garden

The independently produced student production of Sir Noel Coward's light comedy "Relative Values" is set to debut tonight at 8 in the Cloister Garden of the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church st.

The play is a socially conscious commentary on the decline of Manners and the folly of Social Equality.

This newly revised and provocatively staged production is directed by Christopher Arnott of Herrick st. and features several Winchester residents in major roles.

There have been a number of cast changes since the show was written about in The Star last week

Erin Boland of Pond st. has taken over the part of Alice the housemaid, and Phoebe Reeves, a recent graduate of Tufts University, has assumed the starring role of Felicity, Countess of Marshwood.

A second presentation of "Relative Values" has been scheduled for Monday, Aug. 13, in Goddard Chapel at Tufts in Medford.

Tickets for that show, and for tonights, will be available at the door, and will cost $4 for adults and $2 for students, children and senior citizens. For more information call Arnott at Herrick st.

STARRING — Fiona Wright is Miss Miranda Frayle, the Hollywood movie star who turns Marshwood House upside down in Noel Coward's riotous comedy "Relative Values," playing tonight in the Parish of the Epiphany on Church st.

Claudia Edgell and her son Stephen M. Edgell III offered, for the first time, the Challenge Trophy in memory of their husband and father, the late Stephen M. Edgell.

An engraved 14 inch Bigelow Kennard sterling silver tray, it must be won three times by the same owner, not necessarily with the same dog or in consecutive years.

This trophy was for Best of Breed; and in addition, the Edgells gave an Afghan porcelain painting by K. Martin in Mr. Edgell's memory.

The CAHC gave $100 for Best of Breed, and a floral centerpiece was given by Eleanor Lemek.

The Best of Breed winner was Ch. Coastwind Antiophe (Hafford/Morehouse/Coastwind Kennels).

For Best of Opposite Sex, the Edgells gave an Afghan porcelain painting by K. Martin, in memory of Mrs. Edgell's mother, Mrs. Henry M. Kelty.

The CAHC gave $50, and the winner was Ch. Blu Shah of Grandeur (Rechler).

The Edgells also gave a silver plated fluted bowl for Reserve Winners Dog, in memory of their Naftali's Sajid Khan.

There were trophies, ribbons and rosettes offered in every class, for the Puppy Sweepstakes and regular classes.

The judge for the former was Karen Wagner and the judge for the regular classes was G. Scott Parsons.

The winner of the Reserve Winners Dog trophy was Sephira Amra Shah of Tajmahal, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Taylor of Taylor Hill, Milford.

Peter Sorger Receives Hoopes Prize At Harvard

Harvard University recently announced that Peter Sorger, a resident of Highland ave. is a recipient of the Thomas T. Hoopes prize for outstanding scholarly work and original research.

A concentrator in biochemical sciences, Sorger received $1500 for his senior thesis entitled "The Self-Assembly of Turnip Crinkle Virus, an Icosahedral RNA Virus." Since 1981, Sorger has been investigating the ways in which simple viruses, like the turnip crinkle, assemble themselves.

"These are some of the smallest things that contain in them all the information needed for their own construction," Sorger says. And in seeking the reason for the near-perfect self-replication of the viruses, Sorger is beginning to comprehend the nebulous "borderline between living and non-living things."

Last month, Sorger graduated summa cum laude from Harvard College.

As part of the Hoopes prize, Professor Stephen C. Harrison was awarded $500 for his supervision and direction of Sorger's thesis.

Hoopes established the prize to promote, improve, and enhance the quality of education in the College both by "recognizing . . .excellence in the work of undergraduates" and by "promoting excellence in the art of teaching." It is for this reason that prizes are given to the members of the Faculty who nominated and supervised the prize-winning undergraduate work.

An expert on firearms who has written extensively in the field, Hoopes was the curator of the City Art Museum in St. Louis for over 25 years.

Sorger travels to Cambridge University, England as a Marshall Scholar in September. As an undergraduate, he was president of the Mountaineering Club, and set designer for a plethora of productions, inlcuding the Curses of the Starving Class, Raisin in the Sun, and Spring Awakening .

Women's Lodge Of SOI Holds Final Meeting

Following a pot luck supper which was provided by Angie Tuttle and her committee, the final meeting of the Winchester Women's Lodge 1592, Sons of Italy, was held.

President Peg Perenick recounted the many activities of the lodge during the past year and, as a token of appreciation, presented the chairpeople of the committees with purple irises. In turn the members gave President Perenick a standing ovation for her leadership and support.

Guest at the meeting was Rose Perri of the Grand Lodge Charitable Commission who spoke about the many charities supported by the Sons of Italy.

Rodriguez Is One Of Tops In State

Lincoln School sixth grader David Rodriguez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rodriguez of Sargent rd., enjoys the distinction of being named one of the top 55 math students in New England.

During the annual elementary grades contest, sponsored by the New England Mathematics League, David answered 36 out of 40 mind-boggling questions correctly, thereby placing himself in the top category — the only Winchester pupil to do so.

The questions on the test were designed to challenge even the most mathematically flexible mind. And David admitted that, "most of it was hard."

The one that really stumped the young math whiz asked to figure what 1983 to the 1984th power comes out to (for those who don't remember their math, that's 1983 X 1983 . . . 1984 times).

"I tried to work it out, but I realized I wouldn't have time, so I just guessed," recalled David. "But it bothered me. When I got home, my dad and I figured it out."

Once he finished the contest, David didn't think he had done well enough to be named one of New England's top math students.

"When I saw that I only had 36 out of 40 correct, I didn't think it was that great," he said. "The four problems that I got wrong, all the other kids got right. So I figured they got 100 percent."

David figured wrong — which was pretty unusual for the math whiz who says math is his favorite subject "if you're not talking about gym and lunch."

While studying at home, David has a lot of help from his family, although it takes some figuring to find out who should help.

"If I need help with language or writing, dad says 'Ask your mom.' If it's math, my mom says, 'Ask your dad,'" said David. "Mostly I ask my brother Mitchell (a junior at Winchester High School)."

Rodriguez has proudly hung his certificate from the NE Mathematics League on his bedroom wall, next to "the last-place plaque Mrs. Arcari gave us last year when our team got last place."

And he's planning how to do even better on the test next year.

"It will be better," he said. "I'll know how to take it. I'll look for tricks or patterns."

But David's not thinking too hard about next year's test, or whether or not he'll follow a career in math. After all, it's summer vacation.

"I haven't even thought about the rest of my life," he said. "I'm thinking about summer and soccer and basketball."

Games And Educational Software Are Now Available At Library

The Winchester Public Library's collection of software for use with its Apple IIe microcomputer includes several educational and recreational programs of special interest and appeal for teenagers.

Barron's Computer SAT Study Program is a test tutor combining computer software with Barron's study guides to help students to prepare for the math, verbal, and vocabulary sections of the Scholastic Aptitude Test. It includes diagnostic tests and four model SAT exams. The software computes scores, pinpoints the user's strengths and weaknesses in over 40 skill areas, and prescribes a personalized SAT study program based on the user's needs.

Career Directions is a systematic approach to making career decisions. It allows the user to find out what his or her career interests and abilities are, to determine systematically what jobs relate to those interests and abilities, and to develop an orderly plan to enter a chosen profession.

Bank Street Writer is a simple, easy-to-use word-processing program that performs the routines students need for writing school reports or other short documents, at least through high school.

For teenagers who'd like to spend leisurely summer hours in search of adventure, the Library's software game collection includes Deadline, Planetfall, and Zork II, all word scenario adventure games, and Wizardry I, a fantasy game based on Dungeons and Dragons.

In the mystery game Deadline, the player as detective must solve the death of a wealthy industrialist in 12 hours or be taken off the case by Inspector Klutz.

Planetfall, a science fiction game, involves a stellar patrol mission to explore the galaxy and features Floyd, a popular robot character with an encyclopedic mentality.

Zork II is a fantasy adventure game in which the player enters the Great Underground Empire to search for the Twenty Treasures of Zork and confronts the evil Wizard of Frobozz.

In Wizardry I, players create a number of adventurers who go on expeditions in a dungeon maze in search of loot and glory.

During the summer, the microcomputer is located in the Junior Library Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and in the Adult Department on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

Science Program Cited As Best

The Search for Excellence in Science Education of the National Science Teachers Assn. has selected the Earth Science program at McCall Junior High School as one of two exemplary programs in Massachusetts. Mount Greylock Regional High School in Williamstown was also cited for the excellence of its program in earth science.

This marks the second year in a row that one of the science programs in the Winchester schools has been chosen as the exemplar curriculum in the state. Last year, the Physics program at Winchester High School was named the outstanding program in the state and later one of the top 10 in the country by the Search Committee.

The national committee is presently working on the selection of the top 10 earth science programs to be selected from the exemplar programs submitted by the 50 state committees.

Charles L. Mitsakos, Winchester superintendent of schools, in commenting on the award, stated, "The identification of Winchester's earth science program as an exemplar program in the state of Massachusetts is especially good news. Let's hope that people at the national level are as convinced as Massachusetts is about the excellence of our fine program."

When notified of the selection, Francis X. Finigan, director of science in the Winchester schools, was elated. He stated, "I am extremely pleased that our Earth Science program has been chosen as an exemplar. We do have an outstanding curriculum, but the heart of the course is our faculty. How fortunate we are to have teachers like Gene Bouley, Neil Gillis and Dick Elliott! The program uses a hands-on approach to science and emphasizes an appreciation of the world around us. It is one of the joys of my job to visit those classrooms and see our students so actively and enthusiastically involved."

The Search for Excellence in Science Education is conducted annually by the National Science Teachers Assn., the largest professional organization in the world devoted to the improvement of science education. The search is dedicated to finding exemplary programs in science which can become models for other schools throughout the country. The search is an important effort of the assocation to offer critically needed ideas, challenges and new directions for education.

Four Come Out For County Treasurer Position

Antonelli Tries To Regain Lost Job

Rocco J. Antonelli, CPA, of Winchester, today formally announced his candidacy for re-election as Middlesex County Treasurer to fill the vacancy caused by his resignation in December 1983 after serving for five years as County Treasurer and Chairman of the Middlesex County Retirement System.

Antonelli has held positions as county treasurer, chairman of the County Retirement Board, chairman of the Retirement System Advisory Council, elected member of the Executive Board of the Massachusetts Assn. of Contributory Retirement Systems, and executive secretary of the State Board of Public Accountancy.

Highlights of Antonelli's administration included the design and installation of an in-house computer system in the Treasurer's Office and the retirement system to handle payrolls, budgetary and appropriation accounting, retirement system members' contributions accounting and reports to retirement systems towns and units. The computer system was further created to provide data processing services to county cities and towns.

Antonelli, further published unfunded liabilities for pension units, appointed disability claims Investigators, established a deferred compensation plan for county employees, implemented an insurance trust investment program to reduce group benefit plan costs, developed an organization plan and wrote job descriptions for the County Treasurer's office, and was instrumental in issuing contracts to independent certified public accountants to audit Middlesex County, the Middlesex County Hospital and the Middlesex County Retirement System.

In 1980 Antonelli was selected to receive the National Society of Public Accountants Distinguished Service Award for the second time, and named "The Accountant of the Decade."

In 1982, having resigned as executive secretary of the State Board of Public Accountancy, he was honored by State and National professional accountants with a Testimonial acclaiming Antonelli as the Author of Regulatory Legislation in Massachusetts and other states.

Antonelli maintains that he is "the people's choice" and that his record speaks for itself and for the people.

"The voters of Middlesex County should elect a treasurer based upon his ability, qualifications and experience to administer and account for over $200 million of assets, and to assist the County Commissioners in the financial management of the county. Eleven cities, 43 towns and 56 retirement units pay taxes and contributions to the county," said Antonelli.

In five years of service I earned over $30 million in interest, increased the retirement system portfolio from $47 million in back taxes and interest, and was instrumental in reducing county tax assessments to cities and towns," said Antonelli.

"I know that I possess the background, experience and qualifications to administer the sizable financial affairs of Middlesex County for another long term of six years. Many believe that county government is obsolete and antiquated. This philosophy requires analysis and an aggressive attitude to make county government responsive. I have proven that sound financial management and an efficient administration will generate worthwhile results for the people of Middlesex County," he said.

Antonelli is a graduate of Somerville High School; Tufts College magna cum laude; Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration; and attended Suffolk University Law School, New York University, and the University of Miami for advanced studies in law and taxation. He is also a former instructor in accounting at Tufts University.

Antonelli is also a former U.S. Navy Lieutenant and a Disabled Veteran of World War II, having participated in four major pacific engagements. A Somerville and Tufts basketball and baseball player, Antonelli was selected for a tryout with the Boston Celtics after World War II.

LeBlanc Claims High Credibility

Joseph E. LeBlanc of Billeric announced his candidacy for Middlesex County Treasurer after receiving 1400 certified nomination signatures. LeBlanc says he offers Middlesex County voters a highly credible record of 28 years in municipal finance.

For the past 25 years he has worked for the Massachusetts Dept. of Revenue as a municipal and county examiner. In this position, according to LeBlanc, he is responsible for performing audits, producing financial statements and creating management reports to expose any deficiencies in the systems and to recommend methods to correct them.

LeBlanc also worked as an accountant for the Auditing Dept. of Cambridge, and before that, for the First National Bank of Boston.

In addition to his background in auditing, LeBlanc was appointed to the position of iterim treasurer for the Town of Billerica in 1977. He took a three months' leave of absence from the State Dept. of Revenue while he offered his guidance and expertise in municipal finance to Billerica's Treasurer's Office.

LeBlanc feels he offers the voters of Middlesex County a fresh alternative. The bad press that the office of County Treasurer has received over the past three years, he says, has left voters skeptical and concerned.

LeBlanc feels confident that his honorable record of more than 30 years in the field of finance speaks for itself. "I think it's time for a county treasurer who is ready to work for the people in Middlesex County," says LeBlanc. By that I mean making investments that will benefit the towns and cities of the county and finding the best possible interest rates for those investments."

He stresses the importance of preparing reports in a timely manner and notes that the 1983 annual report from the office of county treasurer has yet to be distributed. State law requires the annual report be sent to towns and cities by Nov. 1 of each year.

A licensed public accountant, LeBlanc graduated from Bentley School of Accounting and Finance, and received a bachelor of business administration degree in accounting from Northeastern University. He and his wife, Elizabeth (Alosso) reside in Billerica. The have four sons of their own and have been foster parents for 20 years. LeBlanc holds membership in the Knights of Columbus, the Sons of Italy and is a Korean War veteran.

Joseph LeBlanc

Coughlin Candidate From Business

Thomas F. Coughlin of Cambridge, announces his Candidacy for the office of Middlesex County Treasurer.

Coughlin is a lifelong resident of Cambridge, attended public school and graduated from St. John High of Cambridge, attended Boston College.

He served in Korea in Second Division 9th Regiment and is a member of Somerville Disabled American Veterans, Chapter No. 27, member of the Somerville American Legion Post No. 388, member of the Veteran of Foreign Wars, No. 7353, member of Cambridge Elks and Knights of Columbus No. 269 and past president of Somerville Allied War Veterans Council.

Coughlin is treasurer of the Thomas F. Coughlin Insurance Agency of Cambridge, a business founded in 1960.

He says he is the only candidate who is presently in business and is not employed by the commonwealth of Massachusetts or Middlesex County or any city or town in elected or appointed position.

Thomas Coughlin

Ballou Promises Fiscal Responsibility

Wilmington Selectman Daniel H. Ballou Jr. is a candidate for Middlesex County treasurer and says, he "will be committed to practicing pragmatic fiscal responsibility and seek the highest interest return on county funds available."

Ballou maintains that his experience as a chairman of the Board of Selectman, for a town with an approximate $20 million municipal budget, is solid training for the position of county treasurer. As a selectman, Ballou demonstrated double AA bonding giving the town a strong portfolio and saving the taxpayers thousands of dollars.

Ballou says Wilmington's $19.95 tax rate per 1,000 valuation is "one of the lowest in Eastern Massachusetts." He also says, when the tax rate dropped from over $80 per 1,000 with Proposition 2½, that "we didn't have to lay off a single person on the town side of the budget."

Ballou has been a Wilmington Selectman since 1980, topping the ticket in both of his election years. He served as the board's chairman for the 1983-84 fiscal year.

Ballou is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts (Boston State College) with a BA political science/management.

The Middlesex County Treasurer Candidate served as an investigator in the Bureau of Special Investigations, under the Dept. of Administration and Finance. He says he was responsible for saving the commonwealth nearly a million dollars as a result of fraudulant activities by welfare recipients.

From 1979-82 he was a staff member of the Massachusetts Attorney General's office in the Consumer Protection Bureau.

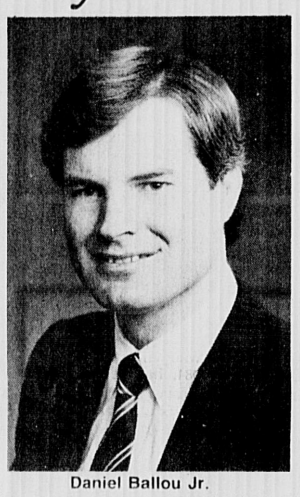

Ballou is a trustee of Tewksbury State Hospital and has served on the Juvenille Justice Committee since 1982.

He is a veteran of the United States Navy enlisting during the Vietnam War and serving up until 1974 when he received an honorable discharge.

Ballou's participation in civic programs include: the formulation of Community Schools Adult Education Program and the organization of the Handicapped Affairs Committee in Wilmington. He served as Wilmington's chairman of the American Cancer Society Drive in 1981, and is the founder of the Irish-American Club of Wilmington.

He is also a member of IAABO No. 95, Greater Lowell Basketball Officials, he has coached recreation basketball, Pop Warner football and has taught Sunday school for his parish church. He is a justice of the peace and a notary public.

Ballou, who was born in Cambridge, and whose family has their roots in the Somerville-Cambridge area, resides in Wilmington with his wife Dawn Marie (Lyman) and their four children.

Daniel Ballou Jr.

McPherson Raises Funds

Arthur W. McPherson of Winchester, treasurer of missions for the Park Street Church, Boston, has announced that its one-day missions fund drive this year passed the $700,000 mark.

McPherson said that with an increase of $41,742 over last year, pledges have reached $710,746. Since the global program began 45 years ago with a budget of $9,043, over $14 million has been collected. It is one of the largest in the nation conducted by an individual church.

The 2500-member Congregational church, now celebrating its 175th aniversary year, supports 78 missionaries serving in 37 countries, Third World hunger and development programs, and inner-city projects. The first missionaries to Hawaii set out from the historic church in 1819.

McPherson is trustee and financial consultant, Massbank for Savings, Melrose.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.

New Grapefruit 'Super Pill' Gives Fast Weight Loss

No Dieting - Eat All You Want Pill Does All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. (Special)—An amazing new "super" grapefruit pill has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose at least 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

"Pill Does All the Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise, and NO hunger pangs." It is 100% safe. You simply take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients are so effective they take over and you start losing weight immediately.

Pill Has ALL Daily Vitamins

The powerful and unique combination of ingredients are what make this a "super-pill". It contains highly potent grapefruit concentrate and a diuretic to help eliminate bloat and puffiness. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements.

Contains Japanese 'Glucomannan'

Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "glucomannan", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovery from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public

You can order your supply of these highly successful "super" grapefruit pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail order only) by sending $12 for a 14-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check, or money order to: Citrus Industries, 9903 Santa Monica Bl., Dept. Arden Exhibits

Alice Arden, a Bedford resident, is exhibiting her paintings at the Winchester Co-operative Bank during July and August.

Arden is a member of the Bedford Arts and Crafts Society and the Winchester Art Assn. She works exclusively in oils; sometimes from life but most often from slides of scenes she has photographed to be used as reference back in the studio.

On exhibit are florals and scenes somewhat realistically portrayed yet often bordering on the impressionistic style. The paint is either brushed on or layered on with a palette knife so at times the bright colors are almost transparent and glow in their own soft light.

Arden has studied with Ted Goershner, Pamela Fox, Carlton Plummer, Andrew Menna and principally with Mariwood Ward of Lexington. She exhibits in Bedford and her work may also be seen in members' shows at the Winchester Art Gallery.

From Burdett

Two Winchester students recenty completed programs at the Burdett School in Boston.

Eileen Hollohan of Loring ave. completed the Accounting Program. She is employed as a secretary with Capitol Bank. Dianne Dunleavy of Canal st. completed the Cooperative Executive Secretarial Program. She is employed as a secretary with Young and Carney.

Digital Watches And Velcro

By TERRY MAROTTA

There's a crisis mounting in this country: our children don't know how to tell time.

Why not ? Because they all have digital watches, that's why?

You can't blame the parents for buying them.

I was looking at kids' watches myself in the toy store the other day; I wanted to buy one for my godchild.

The basic kids' watch, with a picture on the dial and sturdy little hands that march around the face, goes for about $17. The digital variety, meanwhile, which knows the time in both a.m. and p.m., which gives the month and day, and which has a tiny tickless heart that will still be working on the Judgment Day — this watch costs a mere $3.98.

So you can see why the parents go for them. Kids shed watches like collies shed hair. They're here today and gone tomorrow. A really practiced kid can lose a watch in less time than it takes to say "millisecond". A parent would have to be rolling in dough to keep his child in traditional watches.

But still, the fact remains: kids can't tell time in the old-fashioned way. They're coming of age ignorant of the world of Half Past and Quarter Of. Twenty-tos sounds like just another baseball score to them.

And they can't tie their shoes either.

We have Velcro to thank for that one. A year or two ago, sneaker manufacturers began making a tieless version of the standard tennis shoe. No holes to thread the laces through. No laces. No hours and hours of practicing for 5-year-olds, their little tongues sticking out with the intensity of their concentration, their chubby fingers filled with a bouquet of dirty loops, until — Eureka! — one day they finally mastred it and tied themselves a bow.

All that is ancient history now. Sneakers fold closed with the prickly miracle of Velcro, those patches that look like caterpillars, tiny hooks they seem to be up close, but with a male side and a female, a positive and a negative, so that when you touch them one to the other, they embark on a long and raspy kiss and hold on tight. Anyone could get his shoes fastened using the Velcro variety. Your parakeet could do it.

So tying a bow will be the new lost art. Bows have been obsolescing for quite some time now, frankly. It's a rare man who wears a bow tie these days and even he wears the pre-tied kind that snaps on under his collar.

And nobody ties bows onto presents anymore. Everyone uses the pre-fab variety you can buy in the card shops, the ones that look like large spiders wearing permanents, the ones that come in every pastel you can imagine and some that you can't. There are no bows out there anymore.

What kind of a world will it be with leaders ignorant of time and tying? I ask myself this while waiting in line different places. What time will it be then?

I have a young friend who may know the answer.

He only stands as high as your average doorknob, but he's a child for the 21st century. His toys all beep and twitter with electronic innards; he beeps and twitters himself in a kind of natural harmony with them.

This boy found himself in an altercation with a little girl at my house one day. They were both wearing watches, she a no-nonsense, Snow White, wind-it-yourself kind, he a full-fledged chronograph that looked like the instrument panel on a jet, a watch given to him by a doting grandparent, a watch that told the time in pulsing greenish digits, and told it according to a 24-hour schedule, like they tell time in the military.

She said it was almost half-past two. "No sir, no way, uh uh," he replied, consulting his instrument panel. "it is not."

"Well what time do YOU think it is, then?", asked Snow White.

He looked down again, as if to be sure he was quoting his oracle aright: 'It's 14 minutes past twenty-six!"

And he was right too. In a world without bows, in a world of digital time, this boy was absolutely right.

It is 14 minutes past twenty-six: it's later than you think.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

This week's report records roll calls from the week of July 9-13. The House and Senate are now in recess.

FISCAL 1985 BUDGET(H 5858)- House 133-21, Senate 28-3, gave final approval and sent to Gov. Dukakis, the long-awaited fiscal 1985 budget hammered out by a House-Senate conference committee. The $8.02 billion budget, 10 percent higher than the fiscal 1984 package, contains a $75 million reserve to finance a possible future tax cut, but contains no specific tax cut provisions. Included in the spending plan is $232 million in new local aid.

Supporters defended the package as a fiscally responsible one which delivers quality services. They claimed the reserve would eventually translate into a tax cut.

Some opponents said the package was still loaded with millions in waste and non-essential spending. Others said the package should contain a tax cut.

A "Yea" vote is for the budget. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes. Sen. Richard Kraus voted yes.

SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET (H 6081)- House 123-19, Senate 22-7, approved the conference committee version of a $93 million fiscal 1984 supplemental budget. Key provisions include an increase of $200 in the personal exemption for all taxpayers, a $500 increase in the personal exemption for non-wage earning spouses, and future increases in the exemption for non-wage earning spouses until it reaches the level of the wage earning spouse in 1988. Another key provision eliminates the 10.7 percent tax on a portion of unearned income for persons over 65 including eliminating the tax for individuals on unearned income up to $2000 in 1985, $4000 in 1986 and $6000 in 1987. Other provisions include funding for general relief recipients and repairs for recent flooding.

Supporters defended the package as necessary to fund vital programs and projects. They said it would also offer true and immediate tax relief.

Opponents said the tax cut provisions were poorly drafted, fiscally irresponsible and would cost the state millions while offering little tax relief. They also said the elderly exemption would only help the rich elderly. Gov. Dukakis later vetoed both tax cut provisions and the legislature has yet to reconvene in a formal session which is necessary to act on the vetoes.

A "Yea" vote is for the supplemental budget and tax cuts. A "Nay" vote is against the budget and tax cuts.

Saltmarsh and Kraus voted yes.

LATE SESSIONS- House 99-30, suspended its rules to allow the July 10 session to go beyond 10 p.m. and the Senate 25-5, did the same to allow its session to go beyond 8 p.m.

Supporters said a late session was necessary to act on budgets, tax cuts, and other pending measures.

Opponents said late sessions are becoming too frequent and urged the legislature to work in the light of day when considering important bills.

A "Yea" vote is for a late session. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh and Kraus voted yes.

REVENUES(H 6081)- House 81-67, rejected a supplemental budget amendment providing that if fiscal 1984 revenues exceed $4.4 billion, 40 percent of that amount must be distributed as local aid, under the lottery formula, to cities and towns.

Supporters said there is likely to be a fiscal 1984 surplus and noted the amendment insures that communities will share in growth revenues.

Opponents claimed the amendment would foul up the state's bookkeeping and said it is bad policy to earmark funds which will not be ready for distribution for several months.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

MORTGAGE INTEREST(H6081)-House 81-67, rejected a supplemental budget amendment allowing homeowners to deduct 50 percent of their mortgage interest payments, up to $2500, on their state income tax return.

Supporters said the amendment would provide much-needed and true tax relief to homeowners by allowing a deduction similar to renters.

Opponents said the amendment is unfair and only helps homeowners while millions of others need help.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

UNEARNED INCOME(H 6081)- House 82-58, approved a supplemental budget amendment eliminating the 10.7 percent tax on a portion of unearned income for persons over 65. For individuals, it eliminates the tax on up to $3300 in 1985, $6600 in 1986, and $9900 in 1987 and later.

Supporters said the exemption will provide tax relief for the elderly and noted the elderly earned and saved and invested the money.

Opponents said the exemption only helps the wealthy and does nothing for those with money in regular savings accounts. This amendment was modified in the final version of the supplemental budget adopted by the House.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

IG)H 6081)- House approved 116-26, a supplemental budget amendment providing $60,000 for the Inspector General's office to review and investigate the accounts of the legislature.

Supporters argued the legislature's multi-million dollar budget should be audited by the IG to preserve the integrity of the legislature and allow the IG to make recommendations on accounting practices.

Some opponents said expanding the IG's powers would make it difficult for that office to carry out its responsibilities. Others said the amendment goes beyond the budget and should be filed as a regular bill. This amendment was removed from the final version of the budget approved by the House.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

DIVIDE SURPLUS(H 6081)- House 123-20 rejected a supplemental budget amendment requiring that any surplus remaining in the general fund at the end of a fiscal year be divided equally among people who file a state income tax return the following year by allowing those taxpayers a tax credit equal to the calculated share.

Supporters said the amendment is fair and simply insures that taxpayers receive any surplus.

Opponents, claiming the amendment would create a bureaucratic nightmare, said there are better ways to offer tax relief if necessary.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment. A "Nay" vote is

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Meals On Wheels, Police Officer Combine To Avert Tragedy

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to take this opportunity of thanking Officer Maggio who responded to a call I had made to the police about the lady who lived on Pierrepont rd. on the 10th of July and also to the two volunteer drivers who alerted me to the situation and their concern over no response, especially as the door would open, but were unable to go in because of the chain guard.

Many people may be unaware of what an excellent service "Meals on Wheels" is. Meals on Wheels is a way of spot checking on those who are living alone and for some it is a once a day contact.

The programs success is based on the volunteer driver as well as those who fund it and the Winchester Hospital serving and packaging basic wholesome meals.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer driver are welcomed to contact me at 729-4646. Delivery of the meals takes about three-quarters of an hour. It is a pleasant service, a needed one and enables many to still stay in their own homes.

Again my sincere thanks to Officer Maggio and the two volunteer drivers of that day.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Georgis
"Meals on Wheels"
Coordinator

Note On Telecommunications Devices For The Deaf

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was pleased to see your front-page story about deaf persons and the use of TDDs (Telecommunication Devices for the Deaf) in last Thursday's edition. I am sure deaf persons and their families who live in the Winchester area were pleased as well.

As you may be aware, the hearing world knows little about the deaf community and its isolation because of communication barriers. Your story should help reduce some of that lack of knowledge.

The article mentioned that deaf persons will receive subsidies for TDDs beginning January 1985. I do not believe this to be the case and would not want your deaf readers to be misinformed. Our agency — the Massachusetts Office of Deafness — will administer certain provisions of the "Deaf Rights Law," and I am not aware of any provisions for a TDD subsidy.

I look forward to more articles about hearing impaired persons in The Star.

Sincerely,
Nancy T. Mason
Assistant Director

Hospital Music Program Needs Piano

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In our occupational therapy program at Metropolitan State Hospital in Waltham, we are seeking to provide a music program.

Realizing that music often makes people feel better about themselves, and in a way helps the individual adjust better to the stress of daily living, we are hoping that some generous person with an unused piano might like to make a contribution to our program. We are also interested in a guitar.

We will be happy to provide the transportation for either donation. Incidentally, all gifts to the hospital are tax deductible.

For more information, or to make a donation, please contact Jerome Mysell, at 128 Pleasant st., Apt. 105, Arlington 02174.

Sincerely,
Jerome Mysell

How do you improve upon a classic?
The Rib Room at the Royal Sonesta.
Over the years it's gained an international reputation for its fine cuisine.
How do you improve upon such a standard?
Begin with the menu. To an already impressive fare, we've added such gourmet specialties as Fresh Salmon simmered in Chardonnay, sautéed Breast of Duck with grapes, and Piccata of Veal.
The spectacular new decor has been infused with Florentine marble, rich fabrics, and large expanses of glass.
The service, as always, is impeccable. And now, there's enclosed parking in the hotel.
And as for the dramatic view across the Charles River —well, some things just can't be improved upon.
We invite you to join us at the Rib Room. The classics just improve with age.

A Salute To Those Who Serve

Community School Association Volunteers Keep The Quality Of Winchester Education High

By Malcolm Campbell

If you live in Winchester, and especialy if you have a child attending school in town, you are a member of an organization whose roots reach back to the 19th century — to 1887 to be specific.

The constitution of this group, which goes under the rubric of the Winchester Community School Association, (CSA) states that any resident of town is a de facto member, making it perhaps the largest volunteer organization in town. Of course, not every member is a truly active member, but those who are do not skimp on time and effort.

Through the years, the CSA has served as a vital link of communication between town residents and the public schools. By any measure, the quality of education in Winchester has been improved through the efforts of this organization.

One of the more visible achievements of the CSA is the work of its enrichment committee. Since Proposition 2½, the school system has had little spare change to put toward the performing arts even though those responsible for the school budget consider the arts to be one of the best things in life.

While the CSA agrees with that proposition, they also realized that the arts aren't free. The enrichment committee has raised enough money over the past five years to bring at least three professional performing arts troups to every school each year.

But it is behind the scenes that the CSA is perhaps most active. Every school committee meeting is attended by one or more representatives of the CSA. To an extent, the CSA is the watchdog of the School Committee, says CSA President Cathy Gatto.

"It is our duty to be informed so that we're not coming in cold," says Gatto. "Our purpose is to be a source of comunication and information while also giving direction to all the schools."

Gatto admits that a larger problem facing the CSA, and the town in general, is the lack of interest in the schools. She says that in a town the size of Winchester, the schools are not used as much as they could be by every member of the community. Gatto says that Mitsakos is very supportive of any effort to expand community involvement in the schools as it is one of his goals as Superintendent.

Still, Gatto says that as a volunteer organization, the CSA can't schedule people's time for them. "There is only so much time and energy that a volunteer can commit," says Gatto. "These people who volunteer are going to be expected to do a lot more."

There are currently 60 to 70 active members of the CSA, including 12 on the executive board. And, the truth be known, there is a lot more to being an active member than attending meetings every other month.

In addition to the enrichment committee, the CSA maintains a public relations committee, a library committee, and a legislative committee, to name a few. Members of the CSA also tend to belong to the parent organization of a particular school. Each of these groups have another slew of committees of their own.

Moreover, there are other education-related issues and committees which crop up now and then which are often staffed by CSA members. Gatto has served on the Junior High School Principal Search Committee, and Landry was a member of the Life Education Task Force.

Taken together, the combined efforts of CSA volunteers are an investment in the future. The rewards derived from their dedication to education often take years to materialize.

Who can measure the effect on a child given access to a library which was to be closed for want of funds, but kept open by CSA volunteers? Perhaps the CSA is in the best position to judge. After all, they've been at it for nearly a century.

Gatto describes the CSA as being essentially an umbrella organization, tying together the individual parent organizations from each school. In this way, the CSA can present a unified voice of the community to school administrators while also ensuring continuity of programs between schools, says Gatto.

The priority item for the CSA this year is to expand the membership to include facultiy representatives. Currenty, Winchester teachers have little or no organized input into the CSA, or other parent organizations. Gatto feels that it is about time a dialogue occur between parents and teachers.

"Our short range goal is to involve the teachers — we'd really like to be a PTO (Parent Teacher Organization)," explains Gatto. "Everyone thinks that they (the teachers) are too busy and don't want to do it, but the teachers say, 'We want to be involved; we want that communication but no one has ever offered it to us."

Gatto says that the CSA has the support of School Superintendent Mitsakos and the Winchester Educators Association, but she concedes that there is some intransigence to change among some CSA members. Moreover, Gatto says that incorporating teachers requires scheduling evening meetings of both the CSA, and the parent groups from each school.

CSA Vice President Donna Landry adds that switching to an evening schedule would lead to greater involvement of working parents. She also suggests a change in the format of the meeting might be required to accommodate the interests of the teachers.

"We want to develop a more general concern about the schools," says Landry. "Teacher authority in the classroom and on the playground, or the children's self-esteem are educational issues that can draw people out which are not crises. In the past, it was always a crisis situation, like the closing of the schools, which brought people out."

Town Day Spelling Bee Winners

The scholarly spellers who won the Town Day Spelling Bee recently received their trophies from Community Schools Assn. President Cathy Gatto. The winners (with Gatto at right) were Lisa Mills, a third grader from the Ambrose School, and Phillip Kromer, a fourth grader from Lincoln School. The trophies were provided by the College Marketing Group of Winchester. Phyllis Daggett called the words, and judges were Frank Shaw and Sandy Blanchard. Joanne McLucas, 9, of Chesterford rd. (above) was one of the 80 second through sixth graders who competed in the annual CSA Spelling Bee.

Winchester Center was once criss-crossed by trolley tracks, although the only remains of the tracks were found buried under Main st. last week. Trying to recognize Winchester from the photo may be confusing to those familiar with Winchester Center now, because the picture doesn't show the elevated railroad tracks. View is from corner by Nelson's Bakery, looking across Main st. Thompson st. is on the left.

★ Trolley

cost of the project will definitely go up, although he is not sure by how much.

The trolley track remnants were taken to the DPW, and will be donated to the town's archives — save for one small piece of rusty rail which Keats, a confirmed trolley buff, is keeping in his basement.

Keats and his wife Susan, who was the town archivist for many years, examined and photographed the old tracks before they were removed and covered with the new crosswalks.

The town's first street cars, drawn by horses, first rambled down the length of Main st. in 1886, when the North Woburn Horse Railroad extended its tracks to Winchester. The tracks ran the length of Main st., as far as Symmes Corner, and into Woburn.

Another set of tracks ran the length of Washington st. into Stoneham. In 1888, the tracks were extended to the Medford line, to meet a horse-drawn car line that came up from Medford Square.

The trolleys were finally phased out in 1930 and 1931 by the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway with buses which were cheaper and more convenient.

Winchester's trolley cars, which provided a connection with Reading, Wakefield and Malden, could be ridden as far as Andover and Lowell. However, the trolleys caused their share of problems and controversy in the town.

As Bruce Stone, in "The History of Winchester," notes, "They were expensive, one way to Boston cost 20 cents. And little wooden trolleys were sometimes subject to sabotage. Winchester boys on their way back from the movies in Arlington would stand on the cars' rear platforms and rock back and forth, trying to dislodge the trolley pole from the wire."

"The youths were successful. One night, they derailed a car altogether on the grade along Cambridge st. and the Winchester Boat Club. "The motorman turned the air blue with oaths and gave heated chase to the youngsters for several blocks before returning, decidedly out of breath, to right the stricken trolley. After that, the company prohibited teenagers from riding on the rear platforms."

Stone also points out that the trolleys were dangerous. In one incident, 50 feet of wire and its "guard cage" fell on a trolley as it passed through the center.

"An eyewitness later reported that spectacular 'flames burst out in all directions and for a few minutes everyone thought they were witnessing a display of fireworks,'" Stone writes. "Miraculously, all passengers succeeded in getting out of the car without injury, and the conductor managed to lasso the live wire and get it off the ground."

Winchester residents were not always happy with the trolley service. One disgruntled rider wrote a letter to The Winchester Star in 1886 noting that the trolley would "lead to all kinds of accidents, depreciate property and bring undesirable visitors into town."

According to "The History of Winchester," some citizens attempted to persuade selectmen to refuse permission for the tracks to enter the town.

In 1896, electric cars were substituted for horse cars. Ultimately, cars and buses replaced the trolley. Also, townspeople could rely on the Boston and Maine Railroad, which only cost 10 cents for a ride into the city.

★ Carving

says the carving had struck her as special so she advertised it.

"I thought it was something unusual, but it was strictly feeling because I deal in silver and jewelry and don't have expertise in that area," explains McGrath, who found out how correct her feeling was.

The phone rang off the hook about "uga buga."

"Out-of-state art dealers and a legion of local people called for information and a detailed description," says McGrath. "She described it over the phone and they said 'this is really something,'" said Larry Cronin, McGrath's fiance.

Even before the auction, scheduled for last Wednesday, McGrath was given sight-unseen bids of up to $1000.

"There was so much interest that we decided to call a few museums for their appraisal," says McGrath. "The overall response from the museum curators was that the head was a "very rare" functional piece, not a commercial carving."

Museum curators thought the yard sale piece was originally about 150 years old and from either the Solomon Islands or New Guinea in the South Pacific. "How it found its way to New England is still a mystery," says McGrath. "Perhaps an old Yankee sea captain had brought it back from a whaling or trading expedition in the South Pacific."

The head carving was the centerpiece of the auction. "I was at the auction," says Cronin. "It was real exciting. She probably had three people fly in from New York just for this item."

The auction hall at the Longfellow Room at the Holiday Inn in Burlington, which was filled with about 100 people, also seated five or six bidders determined to have the carving. A number of others had left their bids. McGrath, who calls her Arlington business McGrath Antiques and Auctions, was the auctioneer.

"At first some people (others at the auction) couldn't believe the bidding would start at $1200. They laughed," says Cronin. "They stopped laughing when it went to $4000 in minutes."

Bidding, done silently with bidders holding white cards, then went quickly up to $6000. By this time it became a tense bidding war between a New York antique dealer and a local dealer.

Up the $10,000, the bids were raised $100 at a time. After $10,000 the price went up by the thousands, with the two men were waged in a card battle. Finally, the local man went just high enough ($14,000) that New York dealer stopped. (The buyer pays $14,000 plus a 10 percent buyers' premium.)

"When the bidding was over, they (the audience) clapped," says McGrath. "I think everyone in the audience was shocked by the price of it."

It wasn't the biggest sale for McGrath, an Arlington Catholic High grad who founded her business four years ago. She's sold the contents of estates that went up to $80,000. But it was one of the most exciting.

"I was basically shocked. I really had no conception it would go that high. It was surprising to me as well."

McGrath, who gets a 10 percent commission on the sale, says part of the money will go back into the business and part towards her wedding trip to Ireland in less than three weeks.

"This is your bread and butter sale. That's what makes the auction business so exciting — waiting for that score."

cern, and has made it important for us to improve coverage," he said. "We made the decision to man the trailer as well as the Lynch School."

McHugh said he expected to spend between $6300 and $6600 in overtime for the next two weeks, and told selectmen that "we can begin to see a total reduction in overtime after the 27th and 28th of August."

Lombardi asked McHugh why he wasn't able to fill some of the vacancies in the staff.

"Hiring policemen on a temporary basis is fraught with danger," he said. "They must be trained, they have to pass their civil service test and there must be a waiver signed."

McHugh said four or five new officers would be hired this fall, after their civil service exams are graded. The new officers also have to attend police academy, and will not be full staff members until December.

McHugh said his department will be "tightening up our coverage and reassigning officers on a priority basis" until the new officers are hired, and the vacation period is over.

THERE'S A GREAT IDEA, RIGHT NEXT DOOR.
Great Cuts, a major new idea in high-quality, low-cost haircutting, has a shop near you at 463 Salem Street, Medford.
Like most great ideas, the Great Cuts concept is really quite simple. If you take a group of fully-licensed professional haircutters, train them intensely in the most modern techniques for cutting men's and women's hair, teach them to listen carefully to what the customer really wants, and provide an environment that eliminates frills and wasted time . . . then you ought to be able to offer an outstanding haircut for very little money. And we do. For just $6, to be exact, when you come in with your hair already washed.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

The House and Senate continue to meet informally during the summer recess. This week's report records local representatives' votes on 10 key bills and amendments which were signed into law by Gov. Dukakis during the 1983 session. On each measure, a roll call vote was held only in the House.

411(H 5893)- Approved by House 127-22 and signed into law on July 13 was the bill allowing New England Telephone to charge for directory assistance calls made from business phones. The measure allows 10 free calls from each line a business has and requires that a percentage of the revenues from this new charge be used to reduce the costs of residential and business phone service.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING(H 6053)- Approved by House 140-3 and signed into law on July 12 was this bill creating a special commission to study collective bargaining and dispute resolutions for municipal police officers and firefighters.

Breeder's Pride, located at 665 Mass. ave, in Arlington Center, carries a full line of pet supplies for all types of pets including dogs, cats, birds, salt and fresh water fish, bunnies, guinea pigs, and other small animals.

Breeder's Pride also carries an extensive line of pets ranging from fish to bunnies and a variety of exotic birds. They also have a Breeder referral list to help interested customers locate just about any kind of dog or cat.

"We specialize in dogs and cats as well as fish and birds" explains store manager Jan Dale. "We are renovating downstairs and it will be the largest fish department of any store in the area." In addition to all types of fish supplies, the fish dept. will stock an extensive variety of salt water and freshwater fish.

Jan Dale, whose expertise includes dogs and cats, staffs several other experts in birds, fish, and grooming. The cost of grooming at Breeders Pride varies from breed to breed and the price is more than competitive. You can also be sure of the quality of grooming, both show and pet, since the groomers on staff are graduates of the Pedigree Professional School for Grooming. Grooming is available for all types of dogs and cats.

If you are looking for a pet that is easy to care for, Dale suggests bunnies or birds and fish. "All are great pets for apartments," explains Jan. Bunnies have become popular as house and apartment pets since they require minimal care. In fact, Dale labels this year as a banner for birds, fish and bunnies after seeing the popularity they have experienced in recent months. "Bunnies make extremely good pets and can be house trained," Jan Dale adds.

The stock of birds at Breeder's Pride ranges from parakeets and parrots to McCaws and even a yellow-naped Amazon. Prices range from $9.99 for parakeets to $1,300 for the Amazon.

Breeder's Pride carries a complete selection of carrying kennels and airline-approved flight kennels which come in all sizes and are always in stock. A complete line of cages, habitats, food, treats and toys are also available.

"We carry a full line of the finest quality pet foods," explains Jan. Free samples are always available and I can show a customer how a higher quality food will cost less per feeding." This is accomplished by giving your pet more nutritious food with less fillers and moisture. Your pets will eat less volume and will get better nutrition and vitamins.

For supplies, grooming, expert advice, or to purchase just about any kind of pet, visit Breeder's Pride. They are open 7 days a week. Hours are Monday through Wednesday, 9-6, Thursday, 9-8, Friday and Saturday, 9-6, and Sundays, 12-5.

The staff of experts at Breeder's Pride know what pet is right for you and what is right for your pet. Jan and her staff would also like to thank the people of Arlington and surrounding communities for the overwhelming support they have shown for the store.

The Winchester Star

STAR SPORTS

Reno Sets Rhythm For National Champion Crew

When David Reno's crew team decided to enter a national crew competition in California last month, they had no idea that they would actually win it.

In the first place, they didn't even have enough oarsmen — they had to borrow their fourth oarsman from a nearby prep school, Buckingham Browne and Nichols.

And, unlike most crew teams which practice together all year and row in tanks together throughout the winter, Reno and his teammates hadn't been practicing together for more than a month.

However, that month of practice paid off for both Reno and his teammates. They might have been underdogs when they arrived in Los Gatos, Calif., for the U.S. Nationals, but they left sporting ribbons with gold medals dangling on their chests.

At 6-foot-1 and 165 pounds, Reno, a lankey Prospect st. resident, is the smallest member of the Belmont Hill School's crew team. But Reno makes up for his lack of weight in strength.

When David Reno's crew team decided to enter they had no idea they would actually win.

"The stroke is the person that sets the cadence for the whole boat," Reno explained. "The other team members follow his lead to get a rhythm going." Reno sits behind the coxswain, who grasps a megaphone and directs the boat.

Because Reno's team was put together at the last minute, they "didn't expect to win," he explains. Reno and his teammates finished in front of crews from Florida and Wisconsin, many of whom were more experienced.

Before their trip to California, Reno's team practiced rowing on the Charles River for as many as five hours a day. They also attempted to raise money for their trip through fundraising activities.

The four-man boat finished the mile race course in 5½ minutes, rowing their best race together ever.

Reno, who is a sophomore at Belmont Hill and the son of John and Susie Reno, started rowing in eighth grade. He plays soccer during the fall season, but hopes to continue with crew throughout prep school, and perhaps during college.

Sachems Disappointed In League Playoff Bid

But Looking Forward To Spring

The Summer Sachems didn't reach their dream of making the Northeast League playoffs. But they did make their goal of building a better team for next year's high school varsity.

A loss in their final game, coupled with a pair of wins by second-place Lynnfield, knocked the Sachems out of contention for the playoffs.

But the team can't exactly be disappointed in the season.

As a team, they finished with a 10-6 record. As individuals, they showed a vast improvement in their ball-playing skills.

And those skills will come in handy next spring, when the WHS Sachems take the field.

The Summer Sachems built some fine pitchers, one of the best defenses in the league, and a cadre of strong hitters over the season.

"If I keep saying that this kid or that kid is the best in the league, it's because this whole team is very talented," noted coach Larry Crowley. "The attitude of the team was fantastic — they all came ready to play.

"What we were looking for is to make the playoffs — and I have to say I'm a little disappointed we didn't," said Crowley. "But our main purpose was developing players for the varsity.

"In the long run, this is going to help Bill Chase with the varsity team," Crowley added.

The depth of the summer Sachems is obvious if you go around the positions.

Start at catcher, where Crowley platooned Mike White and Chris Costello this season.

"Mike White has improved tremendously — we've worked on his lateral movement, and he has one of the finest arms in the league," said Crowley. "Costello have a very good year — he did a better than adequate job."

Go to first, guarded by Bill Ford, "just a natural defensive first baseman," according to Crowley, and a player so good that he was the only one on the team that didn't need to show any improvement.

"His skills are equal to none," said Crowley. "His stretch is the best I've seen in years. He's got a super attitude, he's a heads-up ballplayer, and he gives you 110 percent every game."

Over at second is the TJ DellaSala, whom his coach called "the most improved player on the team this year.

"He did more than I expected of him, to be honest," said Crowley. "Last year he struggled, but this year he came back. And by playing well at second, he improved his confidence and his batting average."

The Summer Sachems needed DellaSala, because they had moved last year's second baseman, Scott Binding, to short. It was a move that paid off.

Binding was elected first-string shortstop to the league All-Star team, made only one error in 16 games, and got a couple of hits each game. "He was an instructor to the other kids, with an excellent attitude," said Crowley.

Over at third is Crowley's "Mr. Everything," Brian Carroll — a third baseman, the team's number two pitcher, and a .400-plus hitter.

"Even when Brian had a bad day, other kids would have like to have his bad day," said Crowley. "If he didn't go 3-for-4 at the plate, he'd make five defensive plays to win the game."

As far as the outfield goes, the Summer Sachems had one regular — Pete DelVecchio in center — while the pitchers to turns in the outfield when they weren't in the rotation.

DelVecchio "is as good as any centerfielder in the league," and a hitter almost sure to get on base, with a walk or a single.

The pitching staff was one of the highlights of this year's Sachems. Tim Budrewicz led the hurlers with a .89 ERA, and 41 strikeouts, 21 walks and 24 hits over 37 innings. He only gave up more than one earned run in a single game — his only loss against Wakefield. And in that one, he gave up two runs.

Behind Budrewicz were Carroll and Gareth Kenton, each of whom had games with over a dozen strikeouts. And in relief was Mike White, "one of the biggest surprises this year," according to his coach.

"Mike was around the plate, he had good speed, and he could come in and give you a good three innings when you needed relief," said Crowley. "If you've got a guy that can throw smoke for the last three innings, no one can touch you."

Even the bench was strong. Robbie Glynn, Peter Regan, Mike Donaghey, Dave Ford, Jim Kavanaugh and Arthur Gordon, although only freshmen, came in and gave the Summer Sachems some good innings.

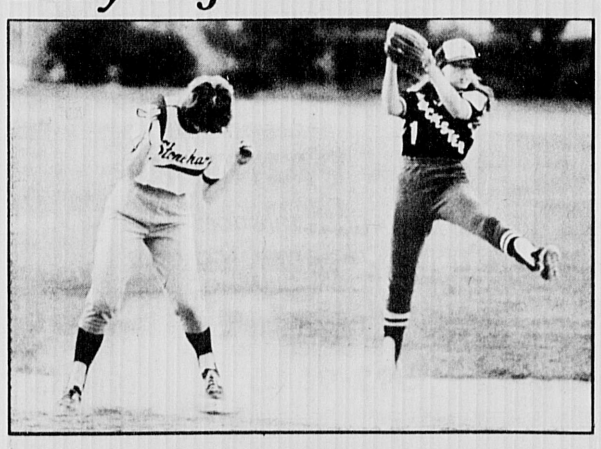

Sophomores Jimmy Coughlin, Bobby Paine, Robbie Collins and Kevin Ekland also showed surprising talent. "Kevin Ekland, for example, was overlooked by me at the beginning of the year," commented Crowley. "But he threw relief in one game, made a couple of good catches in the outfield in another game, and proved to me that I should have used him much earlier," said Crowley.

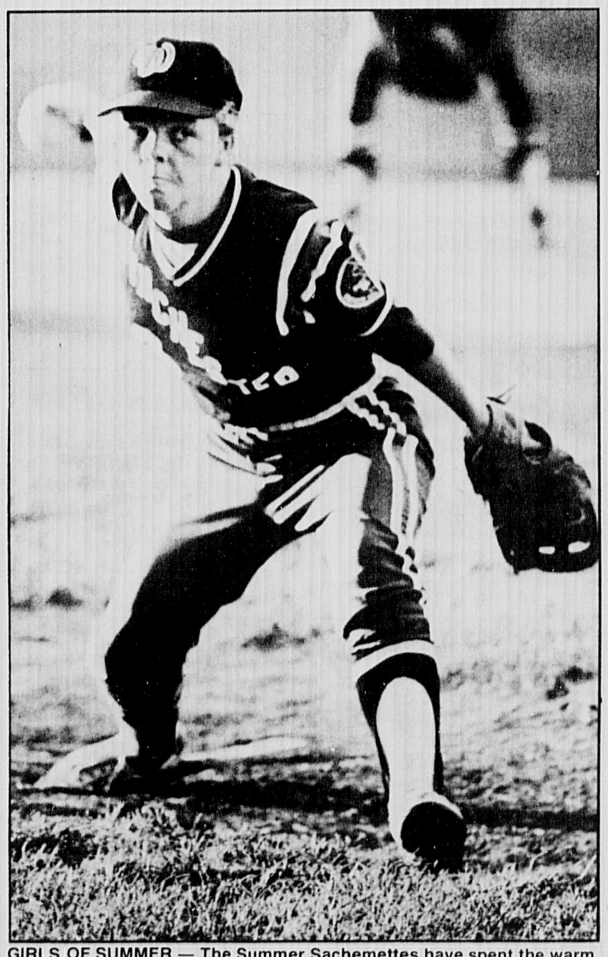

As for hitting, only a couple of statistics need to be mentioned for proof of the Summer Sachems' skill. Seven out of the starting nine hit over .300. Five of those seven hit over .400.

"A few coaches made comments to me that we were the strongest hitting team they'd seen this year," said Crowley.

Looking it over, it's a good bet that varsity coach Bill Chase can't wait until spring.

Winchester Kids Win Olympic Medals

There were gold medals, silver medals and bronze medal winners at the Mini Camps this week; yet the campers were all winners.

As a preview for this year's summer Olympics in Los Angeles, these great athletes held their own official Olympics down at Manchester Field.

This week's campers were able to show their ability, not just as soccer, baseball and basketball players, but they also were allowed to perform long distance running, 50- and 100-yard dash, long jump and discs throw.

The Athletes had a chance to perform individually as well as in teams. The countries from which sponsored teams were Bulgaria, Israel, Italy, France, Australia and the United States. The results were extremely close throughout the week. However, by the week's end, France just barely edged out the United States for the gold medal and the free ice cream certificates from Baskin Robbins. This left the United States the silver medal winners and Australia took pride in their bronze medal finish.

The competition began Monday. The young Olympians displayed their talents in the track and field events. Before the events started, there was an official opening ceremony parade in which the teams marched around the track.

Tuesday was a day for team relays and these brought about some of the most intense moments of the fun-filled week. In the running relay, France narrowly edged out Bulgaria in the closeout race of the day.

On Wednesday, the campers participated in some exciting games of soccer before the pouring rain brought the Olympics indoors. The rain didn't put a damper on things though as out came the hockey sticks and the competition continued. Some great games were played but the best thing about the games were the sportsmanship displayed by all teams.

The swimming events were scheduled for Thursday and you couldn't have asked for a better day. The sun was shining strongly as the campers walked over to Leonard's Beach. It was a day of fun in the sun as the kids escaped from the heat for a refreshing day at the beach.

Friday culminated a great week with some of the most fun the kids have had all year. The campers competed in an old clothes race which brought roaring laughter from everyone. The young Olympians were also treated to a delicious barbecue before the closing ceremonies were held. It was an extremely successful week for the olympians and also a great deal of fun. It was a week of competition, sportsmanship, teamwork, but above all, a week of winners.

Residents Invited To Play In Winchester CC Tourney

Community members are invited to play in The First Lawrence Memorial Hospital Golf Tournament to be held this fall at the Winchester Country Club.

The tournament will take place, rain or shine, on Thursday, Oct. 4. It will kick off with a shot gun start at 1:15 p.m., and will be followed at 5:15 p.m. by an open bar cocktail hour and reception.

The entry fee of $125 per player includes greens fees, an electric golf cart, the evening cocktail hour and reception, prizes and a free gift commemorating the event.

Proceeds from the tournament will benefit the Lawrence Memorial Assn. which raises funds to meet the hospital's patient care equipment needs.

A committee of hospital and community representatives has been established to plan the events. They are: Edward J. Gaffey, chairperson; Thomas O'Connor, co-chairperson; Daniel Bates; Robert and Marilyn Blumsack; Charles Cohen; Richard Dingolo; Paul Donato, Mayor of Medford; James M. Fallon, LMH associate administrator; Alexander Fay; Charles J. Johnson, LMH president; Edward Juskalian; Arnold Knox; John Lonergan; Donna Lee Umana Newcomb, LMH director of public relations and development; John Peledge; Roland Pothier; Vincente Rubin, M.D.; William Rumson; Henry "Skip" Sampson; Anthony R. Staffier, M.D.; and Paul Vernaglia, M.D.

For more information on the golf tournament, call the LMH Public Relations and Development office.

Husband-Wife Tennis Begins Saturday

It's family feud and the battle of the sexes rolled together, as couples take on other couples — and perhaps each other — in the annual Winchester Tennis Assn. Husband-Wife Tennis tournament.

The only champions the tournament has ever had — Neil and Cathy Hurley — will be trying to defend their title against the best of Winchester's doubles duos.

And besides the fun and excitement on the Packer Courts, there will be the fun of the annual tennis couples' ball at the Jenks Center, and the excitement of how the mystery couple is going to crash the party.

The tournament will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Packer Courts, with opening rounds Saturday, the semifinals Sunday morning and the finals Sunday afternoon, beginning at 1 p.m.

Other spouses working to make this event successful are Louise and Bob Trakimas, food coordinators; Linda and Alex Popp, publicity; Joan and Denis Byrne, scoreboard; Pinky and Al Samoiloff, court preparation.

Also, Angela and Vito Sammarco, cooking crew; Lucille and Paul Murray, beverages; Anita and John Gerrein, clean-up; Kathy and Neil Hurley, awards; Jane and Joe Lang, paper goods; and Stella and Bob Gallant, draw.

BOARD OF APPEAL
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The WINCHESTER BOARD OF APPEAL will hold a PUBLIC HEARING on WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1984 at 7:00 P.M. in the BOARD OF HEALTH CLINIC ROOM at the TOWN HALL on the following matters:

(1) PETITION NO. 2650 — That of WILLIAM R. SCHOFIELD concerning the property at 228 CROSS STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner seeks a special permit with Site Plan Review in accordance with Section 4.11 and 8.7 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law so as to be permitted to construct two (2) professional/medical office buildings. The petitioner also seeks a variance from Section 7.13 of the Zoning By-Law in accordance with Section 10, Chapter 40A of the Massachusetts General Laws so as to be permitted to reduce the parking stall size requirements and provide compact car parking spaces. The property is located within the IL (Light Industrial) zoning district and contains 3.35 acres.

(2) PETITION NO. 2651 — that of WILLIAM T. and AMY CORBETT concerning the property at 208 MAIN STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioners seek a special permit in accordance with Section 3.45, 6.25 and 8.5 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law so as to be permitted to construct an addition to their pre-existing non-conforming single family dwelling. The property is located within the RDB (Single Family) zoning district and contains 6,123 square feet.

(3) PETITION NO. 2652 — That of JAQULYN MCNEILL concerning the property at 13 FAIRMOUNT STREET, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioner is seeking an appeal in accordance with Section 8, Chapter 40A of the Massachusetts General Laws and Section 8.4 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law from the decision of the Local Inspector/Zoning Assistant that she has illegally converted a pool house/barn into a dwelling unit. The property is located within the RDB (Single Family) zoning district and contains 19,920 square feet.

(4) PETITION NO. 2653 — that of LESLIE JANE WILSON EWING concerning the property at LOT NO. 65 and PART of LOTS NO. 51 and 52 WESTLAND AVENUE, WINCHESTER, MA. the petitioner seeks a dimensional variance from Section 6.1 and Section 3.22 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law in accordance with Chapter 40A, Section 10 of the Massachusetts General Laws so as to be permitted to construct a single family dwelling. The property is located within the RDB (Single Family) zoning district and contains 10,000 square feet.

(5) PETITION NO. 2654 — That of CLAUDE and TINA TORLONE concerning the property at 11 WICKHAM ROAD, WINCHESTER, MA. The petitioners seek a dimensional variance from Section 5.1 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law in accordance with Section 10, Chapter 40A of the Massachusetts General Laws so as to be permitted to construct a storage shed/pool house that would be located too close to the side property line. The property is located within the RDB (Single Family) zoning district and contains 10,600 square feet.

Charles A. Murphy, Businessman And Former Rotary Club President

Local businessman and former Rotary Club President Charles A. Murphy, 75, died July 26 at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. Murphy was the owner of two service stations in Winchester, an executive of banks in Winchester and Woburn, and an official on several town government boards.

Born in Winchester, the son of William and Ellen (Lynch) Murphy, he was educated at St. Mary's School and Winchester High School.

He began in business at an early age, as the owner and operator of a gasoline service and repair station in Winchester Center.

He later owned a Texaco service station on Cambridge st. near the Woburn line.

Besides his service station business, Mr. Murphy was prominent in the local banking business. He was a member of the board of directors of the Winchester Cooperative Bank for many years, and in 1964 was elected vice president of the Woburn Bank and Trust.

He was also, at one time, a director of the Littlefield Lumber Co. in Cambridge.

In local politics, Mr. Murphy served on the town's Finance Committee and as a Town Meeting member. For many years, he was also the chairman of the Winchester Selective Service Board.

Mr. Murphy's interests didn't stop at business and politics, however. He was an active member of local clubs, civic organizations and charities.

He was extremely active in the Winchester Rotary Club, serving as a member of the board of directors and as the club's president. He was also a frequent visitor to the luncheon meetings of the Woburn Rotary.

Mr. Murphy was interested in Woburn's Winning Farm on the Winchester border, and served as a member of the farm's board of directors and as president.

Ten years ago, he was elected to the Civic Advisory Board of New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham, providing a link between the hospital and Winchester residents.

He was active as a director of the Mystic Valley Mental Health Assn., and was a member of the Charitable Irish Society of Boston, the Winchester Lodge of Elks, the Winchester Council Knights of Columbus, and the Winchester Post American Legion.

Mr. Murphy was a veteran of World War II, serving as staff sergeant with the 3104th Ordinance Co. of the 604th Ordinance Battalion, which saw considerable action in Europe.

He was making plans to attend a reunion of his Army outfit next fall in Michigan at the time of his death.

Mr. Murphy is survived by his wife, Grace (Rogers) Murphy; four brothers, James Murphy of Lexington, John Murphy of Lowell, Joseph Murphy of Forestdale and Frederick Murphy of Woburn; two sisters, Eileen Donaghey of Winchester and Nancy Davidson of Braintree; and several nieces and nephews.

He was also the brother of the late William Murphy of Winchester.

Funeral services were held July 30 from the Lynch-Cantillon Funeral Home in Woburn, follwed by a funeral mass at the Immaculate Conception Church.

Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charles A. Murphy Scholarship Fund, c/o Winchester Cooperative Bank, 19 Church st.

French Scholar Ruth E. Clark

A memorial service will be held next month for Ruth E. Clark, former chairman of the French Dept. at Wellesley College, who died July 23 in the Winchester Nursing Home.

The service for Miss Clark, who was 98, will be conducted at 1 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 23, in the Ripley Chapel of the First Congregational Church.

Born in Prague to missionary parents, the eldest daughter in a family of nine, Miss Clark came to the United States after World War II. She had lived in Winchester since the late 1950s.

She receved her doctorate from the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, and did postgraduate work at the Sorbonne in Paris.

She taught French at the Miss May's School in Boston, and then went on to Wellesley.

Miss Clark's career at Wellesley College spanned 32 years, including 17 years as chairman of the French Dept.

After retiring in 1952, she was named professor emeritus of French.

That year, she was also one of the first women to receive the cross of the Legion of Honor from the French government. The award, begun by Napoleon, is given to those who have been active in fostering friendship between France and other nations, as well as for military accomplishments.

France also bestowed upon Miss Clark the Les Palmes Academiques for teaching French and the silver medal of Reconnaissance Francais for her service to the country during World War II.

During the war, she took an active part in a program for the adoption of French children.

Miss Clark was a former president of the New England Modern Language Assn. and a member of the American Assn. of Teachers of French.

She wrote several books, including "The Life of Anthony Hamilton," "Strangers and Sojourners at Port Royal" and "Sir William Trumbull in Paris 1685-86." In 1952, she published "Lettres de Germain Vuillart," the result of a successful 20-year search for the missing letters of Vuillart.

Norris Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Sara Fisher Riley

Sara Fisher Riley, 97, of Church st. died July 27 at Winchester Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Fisher was very active in the Parish of the Epiphany — she was a member of various social groups within the parish, served as assistant treasurer for 20 years, and sang in the church choir for 20 years.

She was born in Delhi, N.Y., and attended the Oberlin Conservatory of Music in Oberlin, Ohio.

She was married to the late James A. Riley, and lived in Winchester for more than 68 years.

She is survived by two sons, Richard F. Riley of Wolfeboro, N.H., and David W. Riley of Plainfield, N.J. Both are graduates of Winchester's public schools.

Funeral services were held July 31 at the Parish of the Epiphany Church. The Rev. John Bishop officiated.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Norris Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Parish of the Epiphany.

Richard Tufts Peckham

Former Winchester resident Richard Tufts Peckham died July 24.

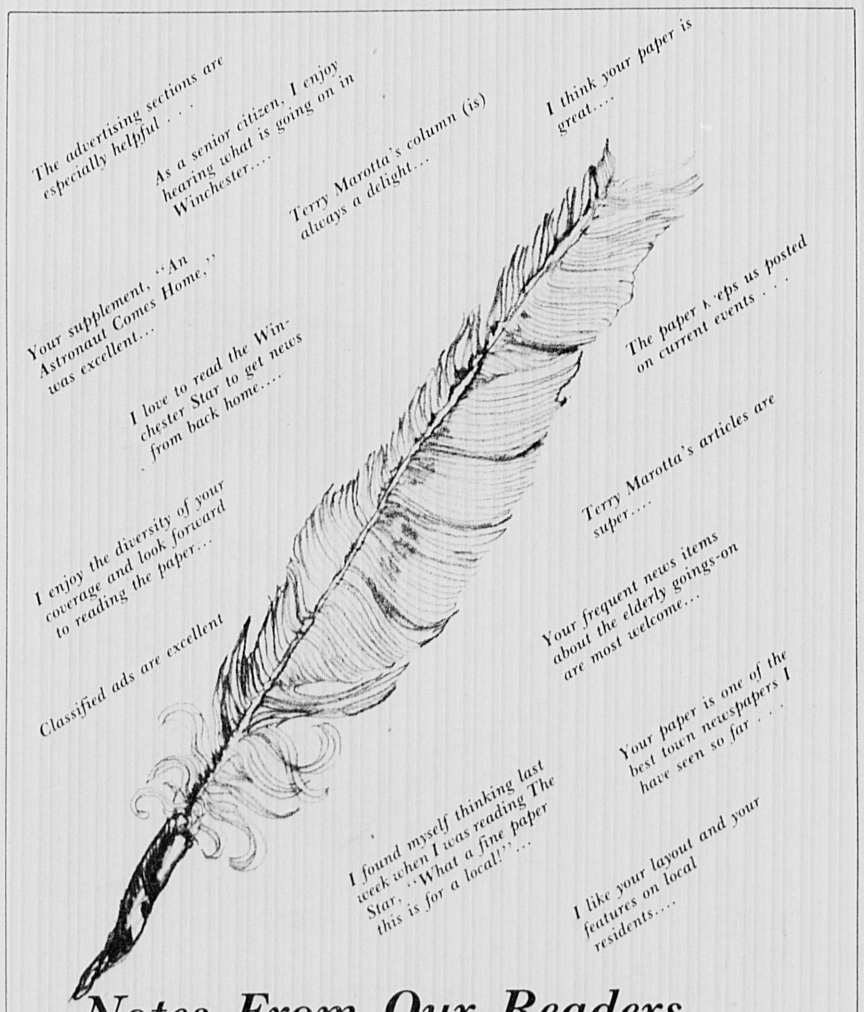

He is survived by a brother, George H. Peckham Jr.; and 11 nieces and nephews, David H. Peckham of Hollis, N.H.; James, Dow and Sally Peckham, all of Phoenix, Ariz.; Deborah Tagas of California, Allen Peckham of Westboro, Joel Peckham of Sharon, John Peckham of South Dakota, Jeff Peckham of Texas, Susan Martin of Vermont and Leora Cummings of Winchester.

Graveside services were held at Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford on July 27.

Magician Jim Vetter pulls apart the seemingly linked steel rings, with assistance from Brad Parsons, who thought he was just coming to Friday's magic show to film it for Continental Cablevision.

Vetter made the students take a "magicians' oath" before he taught them anything. Then, he would start each morning by leading relaxation exercises and mime techniques. By Thursday, the class was moonwalking, pushing imaginary objects against the wall, and creating obstacles out of thin air.

Vetter also had the mini-campers playing theater games, imaginary baseball, and tug-of-war without a rope.

"At first, I just tried to get their minds and body into it through exercises," Vetter said. "But by the end of the week, they were breaking out of the group and teaching each other tricks."

The mini-campers clearly loved every minute of it.

"I learned a ton of things," Josephine Theuer said after the show. "I can't wait to try some of them on my friends. It's too bad that it's our last day."

For his part, Vetter said that he too was disappointed that Friday was his last day with the mini-campers. "It was a wonderful week," he said.

Vetter performs as both a magician and a mime at parties and dances, and in Faneuil Hall. He has performed in South America and all over the country. His first love, however, is working with children.

"It's the best part of my work," he said, after saying good-bye to the campers he worked with all week. "First of all, it's an excuse for me to be a kid again. (Vetter is 25.) And, performing is a way of getting other people into that state of mind of being a kid again."

The audience that watched Vetter and his core of mini-camper magicians perform on Friday saw a display of magic that only whetted their curiosity, because the solutions to the tricks were nowhere to be seen, heard or told. The campers took an oath and were determined to keep it.

"Jim told us not to tell and we won't," a determined Theuer concluded.

★ Roll Call

against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE (H 6051)- House 120-24, upheld Speaker McGee's ruling that the three members of the conference committee on the deficiency budget were properly appointed by him. Challengers to the ruling said that under House rules, the three members are supposed to be "representative of the vote of the House," and pointed out that two of the members voted against some of the amendments approved by the House and rejected by the Senate and therefore cannot properly represent the will of the House in a conference committee.

Supporters of McGee's ruling said the members can properly represent the House because the House as a whole, including the three members, insisted on the House amendments.

A "Yea" vote is for upholding the ruling. A "Nay" vote is against the ruling.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

TRANSPORTATION BUILDING (H 5999)- House 90-50, gave final approval to and sent to the Senate, the bill authorizing the Theatre District Limited Partnership, a private partnership, to lease floor space in the Park Square Transportation Building for up to 36 years. The bill allows the partnership to rent space to retailers and restaurants and guarantees certain minimum levels of rent to be paid to the state.

Supporters said the bill is a model one which will revitalize the neighborhood and generate increased state revenues. They said it contains many safeguards to protect the state's interests.

Opponents said the bill sets a bad precedent by allowing the sale of alcoholic beverages in a state building and said the state will not receive enough rent under the bill. They said there are still too many unanswered questions about the bill.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Mary Aliberti Announces Candidacy For Governor's Council

(EDITOR'S NOTE: the following candidate's release was submitted by Mary Aliberti. She is running against two other candidates for Governor's Council in District 6 which covers Arlington, Winchester, Somerville and 15 other cities and towns.)

Medford School Committeewoman, Mary McQueeney Aliberti announces her candidacy for the office of Governor's Council from the Sixth District.

Aliberti is a graduate of Boston State College and a former teacher. She is married to Richard Aliberti an Everett High School guidance counselor. They are the parents of seven children.

A former vice president of the Medford League of Women Voters and a member of Zonta International, Aliberti has long been interested in issues which affect citizens. She was elected a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1980 and to the State Convention in 1983.

"Governor's Council serves as a liaison between the government beaurucracy and the average citizen. It is the only elected body which can meet with the Governor on a weekly basis and as such has the unique ability to ask questions on areas of vital interest to taxpayers," explains Aliberti. The position pays $4,000.00 (four-thousand dollars) annually. Some of the specific important responsibilities which the Council has are: advice and consent on judicial appointments, members of Parole Board, Industrial Accident Board, Appellate Tax Board, and the Department of Youth Services; also, certification of all checks or payments issuing from the State Treasurer's office, and examination of all extra work orders under State contracts with the Commonwealth."

According to Aliberti, there are presently no women serving on the eight-member Council. She believes that her election would enhance the stature of women in the state since the sixth district is broad-based including 18 cities and towns. "Women have much at stake in the future, raising children and hoping they find affordable housing, praying they benefit from quality education; but hopes and prayers alone don't achieve goals. Women must get involved to ensure their childrens' futures," says Aliberti.

As former vice chairperson of the Medford School Board and the top vote-getter in that city in the past two elections, Aliberti feels that elected officials have a unique opportunity and obligation to be active representatives, speaking frankly on the issues. "Citizens place their trust in those they elect and are entitled to fair, sincere, and outspoken representation", Aliberti concluded.

The Aliberti roots are in Malden where members of the family reside on Oliver st. in houses built by the candidate's husband's grandfather.

The Lenox Arts Center in Stockbridge put on a production of "Dr. Selavy's Magic Theatre" earlier this summer. The next production will be "Africanis Instructus"

Experimental Music-Theater Group Offers Unique Work By Silverman

By Leslie Kandell

Tanglewood is like a benevolent mother bird, its presence nurturing any talented youngsters that pop up near its Berkshire nest. One such chick is the Lenox Arts Center, an experimental music-theater group which attains swanhood this summer by exploring the unique works of composer Stanley Silverman.

"Dr. Selavy's Magic Theater," Silverman's 1969 collaboration with Richard Foreman, opened the Lenox Arts Center in a successful rerun. It was followed by "Nanook of the North," Robert Flaherty's 1922 silent film, for which Flaherty's estate chose Silverman to write a soundtrack. "Africanis Instructus," a Silverman-Foreman premiere, opens Aug. 8.

Reviews of Silverman's work (which includes other collaborations, directing, and drama scores) suggest that it is all very confusing, but you should go anyway, even if the critics can't explain why. Not much of an incentive — who wants to plunk down money to be confused, which most of us are already?

By now, though, Silverman's collected works cohere, telling a story well known and meaningful to all of us. Silverman pleas — poignantly, wittily — for the innocent against a hostile environment. Dr. Selavy (pronounced "C'est la Vie" because he represents life as an outsider sees it) and his staff are weirdoes; they put unsuspecting "patients" who flee from urban insanity through a time warp symbolized by musical styles.

Nanook, seemingly a world apart, is again one man battling starvation in the cruelly frozen barren Arctic. Susan B. Anthony, heroine of Virgil Thompson's "Mother of Us All," which Silverman directed last year, fights for women's suffrage in a recalcitrant society. Her big aria is not a triumphant one, but rather a meditation on whether she can overcome the resistance, and if it will be worth it.

A soft rock ballad in "Selavy" gives us Silverman in a nutshell: "Life on the inside lookin' mighty good

When you're on the outside lookin' in" (just as Silverman's protagonists are outsiders, so does he himself seem born out of his time. His music is not parody — it is his own "Gestalt." He completes a Bach fugue (played while Nanook builds an igloo), but so sure is his sense of period that he has also been "accused" (his word) of inventing video rock. And when he writes a 20s or 30s song it's so solid that he seems to have been imprinted by "Bill Bailey, Won't You Please Come Home."

"You're always going to be in trouble a lot if you don't go with your time," Silverman said in an interview. "Traditionally, artists I suppose do mirror society, but I've tried to be different. If my work seems off center in terms of place and time, I have a hard time convincing people other than Lyn Austin [the producer] to trust it."

But Silverman and Foreman have clearly won the trust of the Massachusetts Arts Council, in the form of a grant for "Africanis Instructus", the forthcoming production. It is billed as "a kaleidoscopic comedy about an expedition of pith-helmeted English intellectuals tromping around deepest Africa."

Still a mouthful, but once we understand where Silverman is coming from, a plot about sophisticates in the jungle seems natural. This Africa is not ethnic or racial, explains Silverman, but is used as a symbol for the unconscious mind — the hidden part of us that can knock the rest. To heighten the contrast, Silverman has scored the piece for what he calls the "Palm Court Trio" (after a posh restaurant in New York's Plaza Hotel). The chorus, of course, will be dressed for the bush.

"Africanis Instructus" opens Aug. 8 and runs till the 26th, Wednesdays through Sundays at 9 p.m. For reservations, call 413-298-9463.

Tanglewood's Sole Opera Aug. 2 And 4

Tanglewood also goes theatrical around the clock this time of year. Toward midnight, the Shed seems transformed into a carousel with a brightly lighted gold center-drum in the rear and wooden horses, chickens and lions in ornamental armor. Electric blue sky glimmers above the scene.

It looks like a mirage, but it's the scene preparation for Berlioz's "Beatrice and Benedict" the sole opera of the season. This annual event is usually decribed as "semi-staged," but David Kneuss (prnounced Neese) who stages for the Metropolitan Opera, doesn't like the term, because he thinks he's staging for all he is worth.

Unfazed by the challenge of transplanting a production from an opera house to an outdoor concert stage, he turns what he calls the Shed's "particulars" into assets. Since there is no orchestra pit, Kneuss plans to include the musicians in the staging, spotlighting those who have solos, and planning the action so the singer stands near that player.

The carousel was his own idea. Reasoning that carousels were first used as battle tools to improve knights' jousting skills — the idea to spear the gold ring — Kneuss drew an analogy to the mock battle of Shakespeare's lovers who inspired Berlioz. Benedict, Kneuss points out, was in fact a soldier — therefore a descendent of those for whom carousels were created.

Kneuss rents a lighting system locally, arranging for projections to be seen from as far back as the lawn. "My absolute favorite place is the row of benches behind the Shed," he claims. "There's a wide scope of col-

Backyard Gardener

Houseplants Vacationing Outdoors Need Care

Those houseplants that we've parked outside for the summer should be receiving a little routine attention during the summer as they fatten up for their fall and winter sojourn back inside our homes.

I have most of mine set on beds of damp peat inside free-draining wooden flats. A few are set into the soil of garden beds. When set in soil, they should be given a turn at regular intervals to prevent roots from growing out of the drainage holes and anchoring into the soil.

Houseplants vacationing for the summer outdoors in garden beds or on balconies or patios should be kept well watered, with a weak dose of water-soluble fertilizer added to the water once a week. A balanced fertilizer with trace elements such as 20-20-20 is good, or you can alternate between a high-phosphorus formula like 15-30-15 (also with trace elements) and liquid seaweed or fish fertilizer. Quarter the label direction strength if you fertilize weekly, halve it if you fertilize every two weeks.

Some bush-shaped plants like citrus and poinsettia will need frequent pinching to help them keep their neat, full figures. And keep up the bug watch. If you notice aphids going after your tender specimens, give the affected plants a weekly squirt of Safer's Insecticidal Soap.

And while you're on houseplant patrol, you might at the same time begin noting some garden plants that could easily adapt to the indoors as houseplants this fall.

Among the herbs, for example, you might find the small plant that could be potted and placed with your houseplants for bringing into the kitchen at summer's end. Basil and parsley are good subjects for indoor pots. Watch for the smallest plants, though, and cut them back a little after potting. Use a purchased, sterilized soil mix rather than garden soil or you could end up with an awful mess.

Many annual flowers, especially the dwarf kinds, can be grown indoors during the winter in a sunny window. Probably the easiest of all is the wax begonia, which never stops blooming. Not for nothing is it named Begonia semperflorens — always blooming.

Probably at this time of year if you lift one wax begonia plant you will find it can be divided into several pieces. Each can be cut back and potted individually. These have become my favorite and most successful winter blooming plants for the windowsill above our kitchen sink. The window faces south, and the plants are potted for the winter in a series of little blue and white Portuguese china pots.

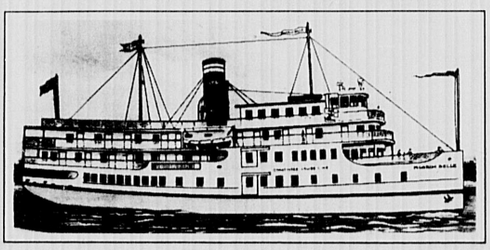

You will also find that many plants that need some shade in the outdoor garden in summer will flourish and bloom only if they are placed in a south window for the winter. Such are wax begonia, impatiens and browallia.

Browallia and impatiens both do well in hanging baskets, as it is their nature to spread and drape themselves over their containers.

Unless you can find a small impatiens plant in the garden to pot, you will do better to take some cuttings for young, vigorous plants. Short impatiens cuttings root very readily in the house in water. When roots have formed, pot each cutting individually and place each in a plastic bag or arrange a plastic tent.

Gradually bring them out after a week or so of this high-humidity treatment and place them with your other houseplants to be brought in later.

or; Act One starts at midday and starts with the moon rising."

As for maneuvering the singers around 70 orchestra players, he works it out on paper and memorizes it, since there is no time to look at the paper during rehearsal.

He does not consider thunderstorms or participating birds a minus at all, nor does he mind dismantling the set between concerts.

This year's production stars Frederica Von Stade as Beatrice and Jon Garrison as Benedict. There will be a public dress rehearsal Aug. 2, and the performance is Aug. 4. Both are at 8:30 p.m.

Tanglewood On Parade

Every Sunday at 2:30 thereafter, Tanglewood features a world-famous soloist: soprano Jessye Norman sings Mahler's "Resurrection" with the chorus and BSO Aug. 12; cellist Yo-Yo Ma plays Strauss Aug. 19; Aug. 26 flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal plays Mozart with the Cleveland Orchestra, which takes over for the final weekend when the BSO begins its tour.

Tanglewood-on-Parade is Aug. 14, any time after 2 p.m. Seiji Ozawa arrives by train, in festivities that encompass fanfares, popcorn, bagpipes, concerts of choral, chamber and orchestral music, Tschaikowsky's 1812 Overture, cannon and fireworks over the lake. Who could ask for anything more?

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with .58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

PICKING A FUTURE WINNER

It is a well known axion that location is one of the most important elements in property value. Let's take that one step further. An even better buy, would be an investment of a sound property in a so-so area that will INCREASE in value in the future. Buying into an area that is strongly on the comeback trail is one way to do this and shorten the success odds.

In an area of this kind, trend is everything. The trick is not to get in so early that you are one of the earliest pioneers but early enough that there is still plenty of appreciation left. Being an early pioneer is fine if you are a gambler possessed with lots of patience. It's safer, though, to buy into such an area AFTER the restoration trend is unmistakenly established.

A neighborhood that's a good candidate for restoration must have an intrinsic location advantage: say, next to a prestigious area or in a good walk-to-work location. It must also have good basic houses. Perhaps we can help you find just such a location for your future winner.

IT'S OFFICIAL

Century 21 WINCHESTER REALTY ASSOCIATES IS

NUMBER ONE!! IN LISTINGS AND SALES

Dear Winchester Residents,

Two and one half years ago we brought Century 21 to Winchester, establishing the area's most comprehensive real estate service. We presented up-to-the-minute sales techniques and a professionally trained sales force. You approved! A careful analysis of all available data on Winchester homes which were put under agreement in the first six months of 1984, proves that we have listed and sold more houses and condominiums this year than any other office in town. We will not rest on our laurels! We pledge to keep abreast of all the latest innovations and regulations in our industry, to continue to require on-going training for all our sales people, and to provide you with everything you need to buy or sell your property.

Sincerely,

A rare find! Substantially original five bedroom 2½ bath example of 19th Century quiet elegance.

Enjoy living in this home with warm mellow gumwood paneling and an air of spaciousness. The first floor is eminently suitable for gracious entertaining with all rooms off a magnificent center hall.

Built by the present owners' forebearers and occupied only by this olde Winchester family it is a reminder of a memorable past.

Proudly offered in 200's

New Orleans Cooks

By Toni Griffin
Copley News Service

NEW ORLEANS — Character and gusto.

That's what the exuberant city of New Orleans is all about, particularly when it comes to food and music. Twenty-four hours a day, musicians wail out jazz, blues, Dixieland, ragtime, rock ... you name it. And eating and drinking are allowed round the clock in elegant restaurants as well as on the streets of the city that never sleeps.

While recently visiting New Orleans, home of the 1984 World's Fair, I had a chance to zero in on the extraordinarily memorable foods of the area. Consider the dishes — always done "just right" and piled high — rich with zingy sauces reminiscent of the New Orleanians and their eating palaces that made the food famous. Ever present is the freshly caught seafood so abundant in the state: catfish, crab, crayfish (pronounced "crawfish"), gulf trout, oysters and redfish.

Legend holds that the good and righteous in Louisiana don't go to heaven, but to the big kitchen in the sky.

Hallelujah, brother!

With such outstanding diversions as those in New Orleans and at the fair, can good food be far behind? Certainly not in the city of such legendary restaurants as Antoines's, Arnaud's, Brennan's, K-Paul's, Galatoire's, Tujague's, Jonathan's — the litany brings memories of delight to the mind and tongue of the New Orleans traveler. And thoughts where food is outdone only by hospitality.

And for those who have not yet had the pleasure of dining at any of those establishments or in New Orleans? For those who have not tasted the succulent crayfish or sipped a Brandy Punch (cool milk, brandy and egg white with nutmeg dashed on top) during a Jazz Brunch — where the musicians move table to table to play personalized pizzazz from a muted horn or a gutsy plunking on a bass?

Into their bag of hope and plans, they can tuck the Crescent City experience — with its food and beauty, its characters and gusto and all that jazz that is New Orleans. For to know the soul of America is to include understanding of the Mardi Gras city of dreams.

Any culture that calls for "toes" of garlic in a recipe has the all-important quality in its food that sets it apart from ho-hum food. That quality is character.

Following are New Orleans recipes to enjoy at home — with all the gusto of the Crescent City.

SHRIMP ETOUFFEE

3 tbsps. butter
3 tbsps. oil
6 tbsps. flour
2 cups chopped onion
1 cup chopped green pepper
1 cup chopped celery
4 "toes" (cloves) garlic, chopped
1 (6 oz.) can tomato paste
2 (10 oz.) cans beef consommee
2 cups water
3 bay leaves
1 tsp. basil
½ tsp. thyme
1 tsp. chili powder
¼ tsp. cayenne pepper
¼ tsp. black pepper
1 tsp. salt
3 lbs. peeled shrimp
1 cup chopped shallots
2 tbsps. chopped parsley
½ cup sliced green olives (optional)
1 cup sliced mushrooms (optional)

Melt butter and oil in heavy pot. Add flour, stirring over low heat, until flour is brown. (This roux may take up to 20 minutes.) Dump chopped onion, green pepper celery and garlic in pot. Add tomato paste and mix well. Add beef consommee and 2 cups water. While this simmers slowly, add bay leaves, basil, thyme, chili powder, cayenne pepper, black pepper and salt. After mixture has simmered 45 minutes, add peeled shrimp, shallots, parsley and optional olives and/or mushrooms. Let cook about 20 minutes until shrimp are done. Let pot stand on back of stove for another hour. Reheat if necessary and serve over rice.

A must when visiting New Orleans is to enjoy some leisure moments over a pile of hot beignets, deep-fried chunks of dough usually served in a billowy bed of powdered sugar.

BEIGNETS
(Bayn-AY)

2 cups flour
1 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. baking powder
Pinch baking soda
1 cup milk
1 egg

Sift dry ingredients into bowl. Add milk and egg and mix well. Drop by spoonfuls into deep fat heated to 375 F. Fry until golden and drain on paper towels. Serve with powdered sugar (or syrup and butter) and cafe au lait (coffee with milk).

Although Copeland's Cajun-style restaurant won't share its secret recipe for this dish, here is a version that should be a close reproduction.

SHRIMP BUCKTOWN

1 lb. spaghetti, cooked
1½ lbs. medium shrimp, cooked and shelled
2-3 artichoke hearts, quartered
¼ lb. cooked ham, diced
½ lb. mushrooms, sliced and sauteed

Cream-cheese sauce:

½ cup butter
⅔ cup heavy cream
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
Salt, freshly ground pepper

Cook spaghetti until al dente. Drain, but keep hot. In saute pan, heat shrimp, artichoke hearts, ham and mushrooms in bit of butter or oil or both. To make sauce: Heat butter and cream in saucepan until butter is melted. Remove from heat. Add cheese, salt and pepper. Stir until blended and fairly smooth.

To assemble: Toss spaghetti with sauteed shrimp, ham and vegetables. Place in buttered ovenproof serving dish and top with prepared sauce. May sprinkle with finely chopped parsley and/or Parmesan cheese.

When Cincinnati Reds right fielder Dave Parker comes thundering down the third base line on his way to home, the catcher behind the plate must feel like a lone cowboy trying to stop an oncoming stampede.

Philadelphia Phillies catcher Ozzie Virgil was recently involved in a bone-crunching collision with Parker at the plate.

Of the collision, Parker says, "Most guys would rather wear a hamburger suit in a lion's den than mess with me."

Tommy Lasorda, the pasta-loving manager of the Los Angeles Dodgers, will be featured in the Saturday morning cartoon series "The Pink Panther" this fall.

Lasorda has been doing voice-overs for a character named "Tommy Lasagna."

Though the Tommy Lasagna gig is his first appearance on the kid-vid scene, Lasorda has had other roles on such TV shows as "Chips," "Hart to Hart" and "Fantasy Island."

Asked if he would land acting jobs if he were managing in, say, Cleveland, Lasorda replied, "Are you kidding? This is Hollywood. Everybody here wants to be in show business. And every celebrity I meet tells me their fantasy is to play for the Dodgers. They don't tell that to any other managers they meet."

Since the NFL Colts moved from Baltimore to Indianapolis, a war of words has been escalating between the two cities.

But a recent salvo from Indianapolis may have been the lowest of a series of low blows.

Sports Illustrated reports that a gift shop in Indianapolis is now selling Indianapolis Orioles T-shirts.

San Francisco 49ers Coach Bill Walsh has grounded his tight end Russ Francis.

Francis had been scheduled to fly a 6-liter airplane at an air show in Oroville, Calif., in an attempt to break a world speed record.

Of Walsh's decision, Francis says, "The 49ers' training camp begins in one week and Bill was concerned about rehabilitation time if I were to get injured.

"I told Bill that I would be flying 50 feet above the ground at 300 miles per hour. If anything went wrong, we wouldn't be concerned about rehabilitation."

Over the years, a myth has built up around Sports Illustrated magazine covers.

According to the myth, any athlete or team appearing on the magazine's cover is soon jinxed.

However, a pair of researchers at the University of Southern California looked into the matter recently and have concluded that the Sports Illustrated jinx is nothing but a hoax.

The researchers studied 273 covers from 1954 to 1983 and determined that teams and athletes improved their performance level 58 percent after appearing on the magazine cover.

But oddly enough, golfers and tennis players went into a slump 83 percent of the time after appearing on a Sports Illustrated cover.

As a major-league baseball player, Jimmy Piersall was hardly a household word.

But now he's a celebrity of sorts in Chicago, where he hosts a talk show.

What turned things around for him?

Says Piersall, "The best thing that ever happened to me was going nuts. Nobody knew me until I went nuts. Now, when I walk in downtown Chicago, the majority of the people know me."

Do We Need Fibers In Our Food?

By John T. Watts
Copley News Service

Dear John: From time to time I've heard various people say that our diet is too soft, that we need more fibers to be healthy and that we are eating our way to sickness through soft bread, etc.

What do you think about it? I don't recall that you have written about fibers.

Also, how do I get your leaflet on arthritis and the Pen Pal list? And how do I get on that? — Melody H.

Dear Melody: I haven't written about fiber because readers haven't asked about that before. And like you say, plenty of advice has been offered on roughage in your diet.

Which certainly doesn't mean that it isn't true.

In fact, it is claimed that thousands of Americans come down each day with gallstones, colon cancer, heart disease and other serious illnesses blamed on so-called prosperity diets of soft bread and all the other soft goods that go along.

What do we need fiber for? It aids the healthy functioning of the digestive system, providing the bulk needed to regulate elimination.

Diarrhea and constipation are probably the least serious things that can occur if you don't get enough fiber. And constipation is a contributing factor to appendicitis, hernias, colitis and hemorrhoids.

And it is claimed that difficulty in removing waste from the body increases the possibility of colon cancer because naturally occurring bacteria have more time to convert fat and bile acids into cancer-causing chemicals.

Also, fiber helps to prevent gallstones and heart disease by absorbing excess cholesterol and carrying it out of the body rather than cholesterol being stored by the body.

There is fiber in fruit, green vegetables and cereals. Pure wheat bran contains the most cereal fiber, about 50 percent.

If you have to eat bread, there are various whole-grain breads available, including Wasa fiber-plus crisp bread.

As to your other questions, the arthritis leaflet is available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to this column. A postcard doesn't do it. A loose stamp doesn't do it. A donation is welcome as I pay for these leaflets myself, but when the demand reached several hundred a week I was ashamed to ask for more.

The same is true for the Pen Pal list. Send an envelope. To get on the list, send in name and address and when the next list is compiled it will go on. Last list was dated March 1984, so new one won't be for a while.

But speaking of arthritis, it is a joy when we get letters like the following:

Dear John: I have arthritis in back of my knees and have been using a cane for some time.

Someone told me to try vinegar and honey, but it did not help.

My sister-in-law read about the grape juice and Certo and told me about it, but could not remember the amount of each to take.

So I started taking one glass of grape juice with two tablespoons of Certo — and believe me, it has helped. What I would like from you is the right amount of each per dosage.

Also, it is the first time in eight months I could go out without my cane. I am enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and a small donation. Only wish it could be more but I have been unemployed since this happened to me. — Joanna.

Dear Joanna: Thank you for your beautiful letter. I might point out that some people do get relief from the vinegar. It all depends on your constitution. Also, some people don't get help from anything.

Letters may be sent to Mainly for Seniors, P.O. Box 1744, Hemet, CA 92343. Volume of mail prohibits individual replies.

Doll house criticized

A doll house presented to Britain's Queen Mary in 1924 was criticized by Prohibitionists for containing miniature cases of alcoholic beverages.

Now hear this!

Helping to make your hearing possible are rows of delicate hair cells within your ears.

Shark's bite strongest

No other fish can match a shark's jaw power. The bite of an 8½-foot shark can exert pressure of 18 tons per square inch.

Big bird is light

Only 5 to 8 pounds is the weight of a great blue heron, which stands 4 feet tall and boasts a wingspan of over 6 feet.

Let's Talk

You Must Learn To Like Yourself

By Rev. Lee Truman
Copley News Service

When a person lets down his mask in counseling and I ask, "Do you like yourself?" I get about 30 "No" answers to every "Yes."

This kind of self-rejection is tragic because self-acceptance is necessary for a person to be emotionally healthy. This is the core cause of most chronic unhappiness.

Dr. Morgan Ballenger, psychiatrist, has written, "A proper regard for one's self is indispensable for all work and achievement."

He put his finger right on one of the first and great commandments for mature living: "Like yourself."

Does this mean smug satisfaction? No. What it does mean is a realistic acceptance of ourselves as we are, together with a sense of self-respect and basic human dignity.

Therefore, we do not lie awake nights comparing ourselves negatively to others, worrying because we do not have the self-confidence of Bill or the aggressiveness and push of Nancy.

We may criticize our own performance at times.

We may be alert to our own faults and deficiencies, but we approve of our own basic aims, motives and integrity. From this base, then, we tend to spend our energies in improving our weak spots rather than despairing over them.

In short, such persons have the same basic respect for themselves that they try to have for others. Another way to put it is that they can live with themselves without anguish.

This is a twig from the tree of truth, a person who hates everything and everybody, who mistreats and dislikes his fellow persons is expressing his own frustration and his very deep self-rejection.

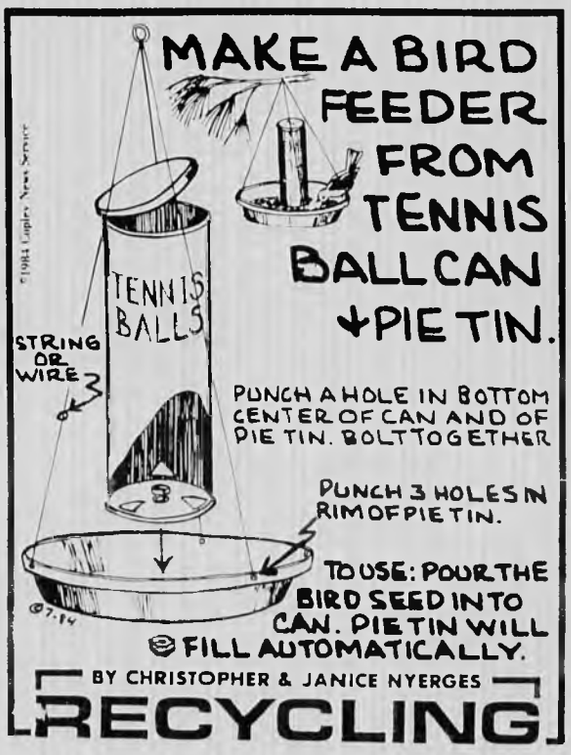

In my own thinking there are two things that are making this unhappy state of things all too common. The first is the extremely competitive society we live in. The value we have come to put on material success, prestige and the old treadmill price of keeping up with the Jones's make a lot of us feel inferior.

The second is a shaken faith in the fundamentals which is one of the corner stones of self-worth. These two negatives together set the stage for loss of self-worth and self-rejection.

You can see that when a person demands constant perfection in himself or others it is another form of egotism. If it is a hostess who is over exact in everything she does, she plans beforehand to the tiniest detail and she will have a no-risk, cold mechanical perfection of an affair. There can be nothing risked which might challenge her self-value, and her insecurity costs her joy, spontaneity and warmth.

It also needs to be said that to be completely dependent upon others for our happiness is to place too heavy a load upon those we love, and also takes out the whole possibility of joy in the relationship.

To like, respect and enjoy ourselves is as much a part of a healthy personality as is the ability to like, respect and enjoy others.

Near-Done Downtown Still Has Detractors

The new bricks are nearly laid, the streetlights are shining, and every storefront in Winchester Center will have a tenant by next month.

But some people just aren't happy with the downtown work.

So when a plan to expand the downtown work to cover the entire Center area was unveiled by Economic Development Coordinator John Connery Monday night, the downtown work's opponents took the opportunity to snipe at the project.

Residents complained that the bricks were hazardous, the lights were too bright and the granite curbs caused cars to bounce.

Selectmen complained that the sidewalk around the Common should have been done in brick, and complained even louder that they weren't asked if the sidewalk should be brick.

Which didn't stop the selectmen from voting to ask the state for $740,000 to do the rest of the downtown over.

If the town gets the grant, 5,000 yards of brick, 70 streetlights, and six crosswalks will cover the remainder of Mt. Vernon st., Waterfield rd. and Church st., Main st. to Mystic Valley pkwy, and in the other direction past the Winchester Savings Bank and Converse pl.

But before they voted came the kind of comments that have become a litany since the downtown work started.

Connery eloquently defended the project. He pointed out with pride that every storefront in Winchester would be filled in September, compared to a 14 percent vacancy rate before the project started, and that the nearly completed office building in the old Purity Supreme will bring in more money in taxes than the town spent on streetlights.

"I've listened to every complaint,

Friday Steeple Fire Damages Crawford Methodist Church

A Friday-night fire in the steeple of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church caused smoke and water damage to the four stories of the steeple, and smoke damage to the choir loft below.

After being alerted to the blaze by a passing motorist, firefighters found flames shooting from the steeple of the Church and Dix st. church.

The fire was quickly brought under control by the firefighters who hosed down the steeple from an aerial ladder and from inside the church, in the choir loft.

The steeple suffered an estimated $1,500 damage.

In speculating on the probable cause of the fire, Fire Capt. John Regan noted that roofers, laying copper flashing over the steeple, had been soldering seams and joints that day.

The copper flashing was laid over combustible brown paper and dry, old wood, Regan reported.

Regan also reported that one of two propane tanks left by the roofers in the steeple was leaking gas when firefighters went into the steeple.

The Fire Dept. was alerted to the blaze at 9:48 p.m., when a passing motorist pulled the call box at Church and Dix sts.

Regan ordered a first alarm when he spotted the flames in the steeple. Crews from Ladder 1 and Engines 1 and 2 fought the blaze, leaving at 11:30 p.m.

DPW Reorganization Plan Will Save Town $19,000

Changes in the management organization of the Dept. of Public Works will save the town at least $19,000, eliminate a supervisor, and create an assistant public works director and a half-dozen new foreman positions.

DPW Director Domenic Serratore announced his reorganization plans to the Board of Selectmen Monday night. The board didn't need to approve the plan, but they did have veto power over the changes. Selectmen chose not to veto the proposal.

The changes would affect the Water and Sewer, Buildings, Cemetery and Custodian Depts. in the DPW.

The savings would come from the elimination of the field supervisor from the Water and Sewer Dept. "Babe" Olivadoti, who held the position for nearly 25 years, died recently, leaving an opening.

"A few years ago, I said that as positions became vacant, I would evaluate them," noted Serratore. "And if they could be eliminated, I would take strides to do so."

There would be several other changes in the Water and Sewer Dept., Serratore continued. Currently, there are four foremen at the W-13 pay scale. With the field supervisor eliminated, one foreman would be made a W-15, two would rise to W-14s, and one would remain W-13.

Finally, the Water and Sewer Dept. operations manager would also take on the duties of assistant DPW director.

The promotion would solve two problems, Serratore noted.

Currently, said Serratore, department heads occasionally have to fill in for him, without having the title of assistant director or the pay.

Second, he noted, the DPW hasn't been successful in finding a replacement for Water and Sewer Dept. operations manager Richard Warrington, who left four months ago.

Adding the assistant director title and salary to the job might help attract qualified applicants, said Ser-

On The Campaign Trail With Senate Candidates

Dick Kraus Pedals Candidacy To Voters

BY LIZ WILLEN

State Sen. Richard Kraus' youngest son Karl once told his father that he wanted to be a politician. "He thought he would be discussing great issues," Kraus says with a smile. "Then he came door-to-door campaigning with me. He changed his mind."

Knocking on doors, shaking hands and ringing doorbells for 10 hours a day was not particularly glamorous, the senator's son realized. Yet for Kraus, who does all of his campaigning by bicycle, it is both necessary and enjoyable.

After two years in the Senate, the former administrative dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at Harvard hasn't changed his mind. He likes being a senator. He has worked hard at it. And he makes a point of telling this to voters during this summer's relentless door-to-door campaign.

Yet Kraus, who defeated James Lyons of Arlington in the 1982 Democratic primary (by fewer than 200 votes), admits that "most of campaigning is pretty ordinary, monotonous stuff."

The 47-year-old senator was previously a School Committee member in Arlington, for six years. As a freshman senator, his campaign literature says, he has been most interested in creating a fairer tax structure, initiating a fairer approach to local aid, and encouraging a more efficient state government.

At 8:20 on a typical campaign morning, the crew-cut senator, dressed in khaki pants and short-sleeved cotton shirt, is already cruising up and down the hill from his Arlington home. His tie is flapping in the wind, along with the plethora of campaign literature stuffed in a pouch on his bicycle.

The fact that Kraus has just returned from Ohio, where he attended his oldest son David's wedding before driving directly back to Arlington to begin campaigning again, does not seem to affect him.

There is little time to be tired on the campaign trail.

Headed for Precinct 9 in East Arlington, the heart of St. Agnes' Parish, Kraus will begin knocking on the doors of targeted Democrats in an area where he feels he is most likely to pick up some votes.

Kraus, who rides his bicycle to the State House when the Senate is in session, considers his chosen method of transportation to be practical and convenient.

"It saves me a lot of energy," he explains matter-of-factly. "It would be far more tiring to do this by foot."

Using his bicycle like a scooter, with one foot on the pedal and one foot

Macdonald Seeks Name Recognition

BY LIZ WILLEN

By 6:20 a.m. on a typical campaign day, Alan Macdonald is fully dressed in a suit and tie, ready to shake the hands of strangers all over the district.

By the end of this 17-hour day, hundreds of people all over the 4th Middlesex District will have heard him say:

"Hi, I'm Alan Macdonald, candidate for state Senate. It's nice to meet you. I would appreciate your support in September."

One of the challenges of running against an incumbent is getting people all over the district to know your name. Macdonald, who has been a selectman in Winchester for the past 4½ years, realizes this.

And he is doing everything in his power to meet that challenge.

By 7:45 a.m., Macdonald has already had breakfast at Jim and Rose's in Woburn with a group of retired men, most of whom he has met before at different political events and fundraising parties.

They are, Macdonald says, good people to know. Around the breakfast table, munching on toast with jam and eggs over easy, sits a group of men who "have a lot of connections" with people in Woburn.

These men say they eat breakfast together here every day. And they are glad to see Macdonald when he walks in.

"Hello there, Senator," they shout.

They sip coffee. They talk about a steak cook-out for Macdonald that many of them had attended the previous week. They tell the candidate what they believe needs to be done in Woburn.

Before they leave, Macdonald tells them to "spread the good word about my candidacy."

One of them, Charlie Delaney, a former elected official in Woburn (on both the Board of Health and the City Council for 24 years) will do more than that. He makes plans to introduce Macdonald "around City Hall" later that afternoon.

But first, Macdonald has two stops. One of them is a doughnut shop in Woburn, where he meets a supporter, Harold Dulong, a Winchester attorney who grew up in Woburn. Macdonald sips more coffee, shakes more hands, and chats briefly with the owner.

Then it is off to his Woburn campaign headquarters, where he returns phone calls, goes over some campaign details with his staff (whom he thanks repeatedly for all they have done) and draws up a list of calls he will make later on that day.

Macdonald, who is 40, does not

To beat an incumbent senator, you need name recognition. So state Senate candidate Alan Macdonald has been spending 16 hours a day shaking hands with voters.

Jenks Seminars To Explore

Planning Early For Retirement

After Lawrence Beckley retired four years ago and he started thinking about how to spend his time and money, he realized that he was thinking about it a little late.

"I realized that there were a lot of things I should have taken more seriously 10 years ago," said Beckley — things like post-retirement financial planning, investments, housing and health.

Beckley and a group of seniors from the Jenks Center are hoping that others will start thinking about their retirement before they get the gold watch.

The group, the Council on Aging's Pre-Retirement Planning Committee, has set up a series of lectures and workshops for September and October on getting ready for retirement.

"Our main objective is to raise people's consciousness of what the real benefits of early retirement planning can be," noted Beckley. "There are significant potential benefits."

There's monetary benefits of course — new tax laws and savings plans such as IRAs means an early investment can reap great rewards after retirement.

And there is also planning for the big change in lifestyle that comes after retirement. Decisions must be made on where to live and what to do. Just getting ready psychologically for filling days once taken up by work is important.

"There is no magic formula for getting ready for retirement — everyone's problem is a little bit different," Beckley noted. "What we want to do is show people how to get started."

The committee's targets are Winchester residents between the ages of 50 and 60, noted Helen Dame, who is serving on the committee with Beckley, Vincent Berger, Barbara Ciampa and William Keith.

"That age group, especially the people on the younger end, is not thinking about retirement," said Dame. "There are some men, who work for, say, MIT or Honeywell, who get retirement planning, but most of them don't.

"There are so many people who come down to the center who had been active people and now have nothing to do — they're just sort of hanging around," said Dame. "We want to tell these people, 'There are all sorts of options open.'"

To reach the age group, the Council on Aging sent out information on the pre-retirement seminar to 4,178 Winchester residents who, according to the 1980 census, were between 50 and 67.

Money for the mailing, to pay a small stipend to the workshop panelists, and to produce information pamphlets on the aspects of retirement, came from a $3,800 grant from the state Dept. of Elder Affairs.

The pre-retirement seminar will be broken up into two parts.

The idea of the forum, noted Beckley, is to get people thinking about their individual retirement needs. Then, when the workshops are held on Oct. 10, 17, 24 and 31, the participants will be ready with their questions.

To run the workshops, the Pre-Retirement Committee has enlisted bankers, investment executives, attorneys, government officials and doctors.

First, on Sept. 19, an 8 p.m. panel forum will review the program and give an preview to the work sessions scheduled for October.

Three experts will address financial security at the first workshop Oct. 10. Francine Kollias, regional field representative for the Social Security Administration, Rebecca Robinson, assistant treasurer at the Winchester Savings Bank, and Ali Malihi, an investment executive with Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis, will talk about government benefits, pensions and annuities, and developing a comprehensive retirement financial plan.

"Particularly in the last 10 years, with advent of tax shelters and IRA type accounts, there are possibilities for people that don't take too much of a drain on their resources," noted Beckley. "The important thing, though, is to start early."

"With housing, there are lot of aspects — what do you want to do, stay in the same place or consider other possibilities," said Beckley. "We have experts to answer that kinds of questions."

The second session, on Oct. 17, will address legal and estate planning and retirement investments. Topics such as wills and estate plans, trusts to conserve resources, real estate and estate taxes and investment plans will be covered by Harold Dryer, an attorney, and Paul Knouse, vice president of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

The seminars will move beyond finances on Oct. 24, with a session on retirement housing needs covering life care communities, congregate housing, home sharing, and home equity. Sherry Edmonds, a housing analyst for the Dept. of Elder Affairs, and Douglas Gherlone, vice president and senior loan officer of the Winchester Savings Bank, will speak.

The final session will cover the health and psychological aspects of retirement. Dr. Katherine Hesse, head of Geriatric Services at Mt Auburn Hospital, and Nancy Urquhart, associate benefits officer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will moderate the panel.

The cost of the pre-retirement seminar is $3. The deadline for applications is Friday, but committee members noted they would accept latecomers.

Bonnell Donates Cruiser

Taxpayers can thank Bonnell Ford for saving them the cost of a new police safety car. To celebrate its 60th anniversary next year, Bonnell decided to show its appreciation to the town by donating the cruiser, along with maintenance and a replacement every two or three years. Bonnell Ford's Bruce Bonnell (center) and Allan Eyden (far left) turned over the keys to the new cruiser to (l to r) Sgt. Kenneth Albertelli, Safety Officer Kevin Mawn, Police Chief John McHugh, Selectman Chairman Mark Lombardi and Selectman Alan Macdonald. (Photo by John Pawlick)

POLICE LOG

Friday, Aug. 3

— A Fletcher st. resident reported that the right passenger window of his 1980 Mazda pick-up truck was smashed during the night. In several other incidents on Friday, cars were vandalized and windows were smashed.

"We believe the incidents are related, but we have no idea who might have done the damage," said Police Chief John McHugh.

— A Palmer st. resident reported that the left front window of his Cadillac was smashed in.

— A Wedgemere ave. resident reported that his 1976 Subaru had the window smashed in.

— A Main st. resident found the window of his 1979 van smashed.

— The owners of a 1968 Chevrolet and 1965 International Scout reported that their windshields had been cracked, from what appeared to be a B.B pellet.

— A Niles rd. resident reported that her unlocked Buick Electra was entered, and $200 worth of cassettes were missing.

— Police put a swift ending to the life of a bat that was bothering a Harvard st. family. According to reports, the bat was climbing up the bedroom walls of the home when police entered the home and killed it.

Saturday, Aug. 4

— A Hollywood rd. man damaged his car, but not himself, when the car he was driving collided with another vehicle at the intersection of Highland ave. and Winthrop st. According to reports, there were 18 feet of skid marks left on Winthrop st. as a result of the collision. No one was injured, and no charges were filed.

Sunday, Aug. 5

— Three Malden men ignored the signs posted all over the Fells, and were charged with trespassing after police found them swimming in the north reservoir.

— A Winslow rd. resident reported that her 1966 Ford Mustang was scratched and damaged during the night.

— Obscenities were spray-painted in gray on the roof of a 1973 Mazda parked at a Ravenscroft rd. home.

Monday, Aug. 6

— A Main st. man was cited for operating a motor vehicle without a valid driver's license and inspection sticker, after police stopped him on Main st. Police later discovered that the man has been issued a temporary operator's permit.

Stable Foster Home Sought In This Area

Maryanne is an attractive 16-year-old girl from a suburb of Boston. Her parents are divorced, and neither her mother nor her father can adequately care for Maryanne.

For the past few months, Maryanne has been living with a friend's family; while she gets along well there, this is not a long-term resource for her. Maryanne needs a stable foster home where she can finish high school and learn the skills necessary for independent living.

Maryanne is mature and responsible, and has good relationships with adults. She can accept appropriate limits, but needs encouragement to begin making her own decisions. Maryanne wants continued contact with her family members, but she understands she cannot live at home.

Maryanne's social worker is looking for a young couple or a single woman in the Arlington-Winchester area, who can provide structure and rules, while at the same time helping Maryanne prepare for independence. A family or individual with a few other children would be acceptable, as well as one with no children.

Maryanne is a girl who really wants a foster home, and will present very few behavior problems in placement. Anyone interested in parenting Maryanne is urged to call DARE Family Services in Somerville.

At Wedge Pond Beach House

Haunted House Will Rise Again

They are the undead, the monsters and ghouls of Winchester's Haunted House, who survived the fire that burned down their home and will rise again next October.

The Haunted House, a tradition in town for 13 years, seemed to be history last spring, when a fire in the Camp Joy Girl Scout cabin destroyed the site of the monsters' manse.

But the Chamber of Commerce, which took over the management of the Haunted House from the Jaycees two years ago, plans to bring back the Halloween treat in a new location.

The Chamber convinced the Board of Selectmen to let them use the beach house at Wedge Pond as a haunted house next Halloween.

Selectmen voted Monday night to allow the haunted house despite objections of Police Chief John McHugh, who was worried about traffic, parking and trespassers in nearby Wildwood Cemetery.

But Chamber Executive Director Cathy Alexander commented Monday night that "I don't think from a police point of view, that the former location (on South Border rd.) was an ideal location either.

"Finding an alternative site is a difficult task," she said. "Haunted Houses are not a dime a dozen."

Allan Eyden, one of the Haunted House organizers, also commented that the Wedge Pond Beach site would be an improvement over the Girl Scout cabin.

"The speed is slower on the road (Palmer st.), and it is relatively straight," he said. "On South Border rd., we dealt with a lot of people parking on the shoulders."

Although selectmen approved the use of the beach house, they asked Chamber executives to come back to them before they held the event, in case they or neighbors had any last-minute problems they wanted ironed out.

Program Helps Elderly To Cope With Criminals

Older people who are the victims of crimes now have someone to turn to for help.

Ellen Frank is a victim's advocate operating through the Middlesex County District Attorney's Office. She recently addressed volunteers serving on the Elder Service Corps of Minuteman Home Care Corporation (MHCC).

According to Frank, the elderly and children are particularly vulnerable when a crime is committed against them. "Crisis intervention support, counseling and dealing with the aftereffects are important components of the Victim Witness Service Bureau. Many elderly people live alone and can't cope with the knowledge that the criminal may still be at large or with unidentified telephone calls.

"We try to stand by and be ready to help them throughout each step of the prosecution process."

MHCC is a 16-town agency serving the elderly in the towns of Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Boxborough, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, Harvard, Lexington, Littleton, Lincoln, Maynard, Stow, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

For further information about the volunteer program or other issues concerning the elderly, readers may call the MHCC Aging Information Center in Lexington.

Homes For Elderly Sought

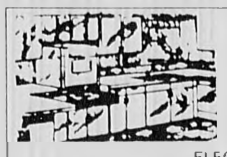

The Home Sharing Program of the Woburn Council of Social Concern attempts to match older home owners with home seekers for the benefit of both.

Many older people think of sharing a home with another older person when they first consider home sharing.

Another option is to share a home with a college student or a working man or woman. This arrangement has the advantage of another person in the home, especially in the evening, while allowing privacy during the day.

A younger person would also be available to do such things as shovel snow, or mow the lawn, if this is agreed upon.

Anyone who is interested may call Julia Christo at the Woburn Council.

KITCHEN, BATH & HOME INTERIOR
IDEAS
Inventions Can't Help If You Don't Know They Exist
Brought To You By Frank Drake, C.K.D.

It's too bad, but many homeowners buy new kitchens and never know about the great interior accessories that are available, the very things that make a kitchen modern. These are the work-easers, the things that eliminate bending and stooping and kneeling and other contortions that don't belong in a modern kitchen.

These are, for example, the slide-out trays (instead of fixed shelves), the lazy susan shelves that bring what you want to you, the shelf in a cabinet that brings your mixer out and up to working height, all kinds of special hardware that is available in fine cabinetry but that you never hear about unless you visit a kitchen specialist.

It is well worth looking into, because this kind of functionality is the difference between now and the 1930's.

So don't miss out on the state-of-the-art by default. A visit to our showroom will give you the opportunity to see what is new, what can help you, and any of us will be glad to discuss it with you. It's hard to know what you want if you don't know what exists.

on the ground, Kraus scoots from door to door, leaving personal notes for his constituents when they are not home, as is often the case

When they are home, the biggest challenge is being let in. Kraus admits. Usually, he stands outside, after introducing himself in a polite, but forthright manner.

"I'm Dick Kraus and I'm running for re-election to the Senate," he begins. "I'm new in the Senate, and I've worked hard. I'd appreciate your support."

Kraus says he spends surprisingly little time discussing campaign issues such as hazardous waste, Proposition 2½, or income redistribution with his constituents.

"Very few people actually want to talk about the issues," he says. "Instead, I end up hearing stories about illness, death or personal difficulty.

"This kind of contact builds up what I do most as a senator — helping people with mundane things," he continues. "And I guess that's what I like most about being a senator — helping people to do what they might otherwise not do."

For example, Kraus will advise an elderly person who needs Medicaid, or talk to a family about health care or placement of a sick family member.

"I hear a lot about illness," Kraus says, emerging from a Lewis rd. home, where he spends a longer amount of time than usual. "It's part of going door to door. There are some people who see me and they really want to talk.

"For the most part," Kraus continues, "people are polite and responsive, which makes it harder to judge how you are doing."

Of course, there are others who do not want to talk at all. Some are afraid to open the door. But, for the most part, people are not home — and Kraus labors over each personal note he leaves for those homes where he doesn't get a chance to talk.

"The notes are really important," Kraus says. "I take my time with them, because it shows people that I really care."

Kraus is ready to discuss the issues that he cares about with anyone who is interested. And, he will readily admit that his style of campaigning is similar to his style as a senator — he prefers a personal approach whenever possible.

"I'm much more comfortable talking to people when there is a fairly clear purpose — like this one," he says. "I tend to shy away from big parties. I'm not an extrovert."

For example, in the midst of a tough day of campaigning, Kraus prefers to go home and have lunch with his wife, Adele, who teaches school in Medford, instead of going to a restaurant where he might have the chance to do some more campaigning.

Although Kraus does make many public appearances as a senator, he says he is far more comfortable when he is actually working on something specific. He knows he is not a flashy, glamorous politician, nor does he have any desire to try to be this way.

"You end up with so many different people in politics that it is hard to know what people expect — or whether they have any standard perception of what a politician should be," he acknowledges.

Kraus is aware that many people refer to him as "liberal." He responds that he "does not use political labels."

"So much of what I do as a senator does not fit a political label," he explains. "So I don't use them. But a lot of people ascribe them."

It would be fair, he admits, to say that he is "more liberal" than his challenger, Alan Macdonald. However, Kraus says he is "a little skeptical" on where Macdonald stands on most issues.

"I get the sense that he is fairly consciously trying to get just to the right of me on most issues," he says. "But if there is one area in which we clearly differ, it is economic policy.

"I want a less regressive tax system and his policies clearly show he wants more," Kraus continues. "This is alien to my views."

Kraus has pushed selectmen, mayors and city council members of the district to support "Proposition 2," a resolution asks that $20 per $1,000 be made the maximum property tax rate in the state.

The resolution also calls for local aid be used to meet the costs of inflation within the district while communities lower their tax rates. Kraus has also supported a bill to allow communities to set a property tax rate at 2 percent or less.

If re-elected, he says he will place particular emphasis on Senate rules reform, the recommendations of a suicide commission (which Kraus introduced funding for in the 1982 budget to investigate the increase in jail suicides), improvements in human services and environmental improvements in the district.

"To me, it is enormously important that each generation try to leave a legacy that is better for the next one," Kraus says, explaining his political philosophy. "That means we need to take much better care of the environment, and it means that public education is going to be enormously important."

Kraus says there are a number of different areas that feed into his idea of leaving a better heritage for the next generation. As a senator, he believes he has been working hard to see that it happens.

Kraus says he does not have any political ambitions beyond the Senate. But he admits that many people who question him about this do not believe him.

"Believe me, it is true," Kraus says earnestly. "I've had my career (in education) and I don't have anything to prove. Also, I sense that the Senate is in need of people who really care and want to work there.

"I want to change things," Kraus continues, after finishing a note and sticking it under yet another Arlington door. "I want to stay long enough (in the Senate) to make a difference. If I have an ambition, it is to one day be president of the Senate."

But first, Kraus knows, he must be re-elected. And that means bicycling a lot of miles, and knocking on a lot of doors between now and Sept. 18.

Durland Graduates

Lynn E. Durland, a former Yale st. resident, was one of nearly 125 students who received degrees May 26 at Colby-Sawyer College, New London, N.H.

Lynne is the daughter of Barbara A. Durland of Cambridge, and Robert E. Durland, Woburn, Ma.

She earned a bachelor of arts degree in the American studies program. While a student at Colby-Sawyer, she was a member of the basketball team, received her associate in arts degree from Colby-Sawyer in 1982, received a Sawyer Fellowship, received the Crosby Award, was student academic counselor and vice president of the senior class.

seem at all tired, despite the fact that he has kept up this hectic pace for seven days a week since he announced his candidacy in February. His smile is warm, genuine and constant. His handshake is firm. He always remembers to thank others for their help and support.

He is clearly loving this campaign.

"The adrenalin keeps you going," Macdonald says. "I honestly don't feel tired. Really, it's been just great."

Macdonald, an attorney who works as a manager of government relations at General Electric in Lynn, has long been active in both the Democratic party and local government.

Macdonald is somehow managing to combine his work load at G.E. with his campaign schedule and his duties as a Winchester selectman.

He firmly believes he is qualified to serve in the Senate because of his political experience (he has coordinated three statewide campaigns — John Collins' 1966 Senate bid and Robert Quinn's campaigns for attorney general and governor) and his work experience (he lobbies and represents General Electric as a spokesman on government issues).

"I've gained a lot of practical knowledge and I have seen the effects of tax policy," Macdonald says.

"There are a number of times when the tax issue becomes important and too often decisions are made from only one viewpoint," he continues. "The effect of public service on tax policy in the state is important in making a balanced judgment on tax matters."

Macdonald also believes that his experience as a selectman has exposed him to a variety of local concerns. However, he says he differs most from Sen. Dick Kraus on economic development.

"The biggest difference is in our approach to economic issues of public concern," he explains. "And a big part of the difference is what I perceive to be his ignoring of the economic consequences of certain proposals made in the legislature, such as the Right To Know bill in 1983 and the plant closing issue."

The orginal proposals, Macdonald charges, did not take into consideration the value of private industry. He says that Kraus has not paid enough attention to the interests of both activists and the private sector, and that his decisons were not as balanced as they should be.

Macdonald has lived in Winchester since sixth grade (except for the 2½ years that he worked with Gulf Oil in Pittsburgh, Pa., and Washington, D.C.) He even married his Winchester High School sweetheart, the former Jane Hess.

He knows a lot of people in Winchester. However, it is in Lexington, Arlington and Woburn that he most needs to get his name known. And he is working tirelessly to accomplish this.

After being introduced as "the next state senator" to various Woburn officials in City Hall, he is given the same treatment in a Woburn office building, chock-full of attorneys and businessmen.

Macdonald doesn't miss an opportunity to shake a hand, find out if someone lives in the district, remind someone to vote, or urge them to at least "spread the good word" about his candidacy. Even in the intense, 95-degree heat, he doesn't falter, complain, or deviate from this routine.

By noon, Macdonald is back in his Arlington headquarters, where he checks in with his staff. Then, he's off to lunch at Peter's Kitchen on Mass ave. in Arlington.

The owner, who comes over to say hello, delivers a plate of fried clams, shrimp, and scallops. Lunch is on the house.

After lunch, Macdonald's schedule gets even more hectic. He is attending a sidewalk sale, going door-to-door campaigning in Precinct 9, and must be back in Winchester by 3, when the town of Winchester will receive a police cruiser donated by Bonnell Ford.

After that, there will be more door-to-door campaigning, followed by a band concert in Lexington and an Italian Fiesta in Winchester. The following day's schedule includes a picnic, a dinner dance, a parade, and more door-to-door campaigning.

But Macdonald is not complaining.

Although this schedule takes a huge chunk out of family life, something that Macdonald thoroughly enjoys, he says he is lucky that his family (he has a 7-year-old son and a 13-year old son) has been so supportive and helpful throughout the campaign.

"This whole thing has been a team effort," Macdonald says. "It is unbelievable how many wonderful people I have working for me — all kinds of people. It's just great."

Macdonald has no intention of slowing down the pace. He has wanted to be a state senator for a long time. (He wanted to run in 1982, but was not eligible because of the time he spent out of the state.)

Macdonald believes he has a good chance to win. But if he doesn't, he says he is not "thinking about what is down the road."

"I've enjoyed this experience for what it is," he says.

Trodella Begins New Company In Town

A new company, Trodella Materials Handling Corp., has been founded in Winchester by Joseph E. Trodella, president of Trodella Electrical Corp., in partnership with Anthony D. Mazzola, who will be president of the new organization.

In a joint announcement, Trodella and Mazzola said the company would offer a wide range of material handling services throughout the six New England states. In-house capabilities include sales, design, engineering, installation and 24-hour service for overhead cranes, hoists and monorails, as well as robotic systems and hydraulic commercial passenger elevators. The company already employs 12 people with plans to engage a further 14 within the next six months, and its fully equipped and manned service vehicles are already on the road.

Trodella established his own company, Trodella Electrical Corp. on River st. two years ago and has already developed into a $5 million organization offering full service electrical contracting throughout New England. He is the president of Associated Builders and Contractors of Massachusetts, a position he also held when he was president of Interstate Electrical Services Corp.

Macdonald Wants Repeal Of Income Tax Surcharge

(The following press release was submitted by state Senate candidate Alan G. Macdonald of Winchester.)

Alan G. Macdonald, challenger for the state Senate in the Fourth Middlesex District, this week completed requirements to place on the November ballot a non-binding question that would instruct the state senator on repeal of the state income tax surcharge.

Macdonald filed papers with the Secretary of State containing more than 1,400 signatures from Arlington, Lexington, Winchester and Woburn. The ballot question asks whether voters from the Fourth Middlesex District should instruct their senator to vote to repeal the surcharage that has been on the books since 1975.

Macdonald explained that the taxpayers now pay a flat 5 percent tax on their income, plus a 7½ percent surcharge on the tax due.

"The legislature imposed the surcharge in 1975 to eliminate the budget defeit at that time," Macdonald said. "But now, nine years later, the state has surplus revenues and the surcharge on our income tax is unnecessary taxation."

"The so-called 'temporary' surcharge represents approximately $200 million of annual state revenue," Macdonald stated. "Last year alone, the state received twice that amount in other additional tax revenue due to the active economy. If we do not repeal this 'temporary' surcharge now, while the economy is strong, the legislature may continue the surcharge forever."

Macdonald charged: "The incumbent senator from the Fourth Middlesex District, Richard Kraus, has repeatedly voted to retain this surcharge, and he has stated publicly he would vote to do so again despite the additional revenues which the state is now receiving. This is fiscal irresponsibility. The taxpayer is being punished even when there is no longer any need for extra sacrifice.

"This ballot question will allow voters to voice their tax preference at the same time they choose their senator," Macdonald said. "I challenge Mr. Kraus to tell the voters if he will still insist on the extra tax if the voters of his district instruct him to vote for repeal. He owes us a forthright answer now.

"I will continue to speak out against those pro-tax enthusiasts in the Legislature who believe that all taxes must be permanent and that it is up to the state to find a way to spend the money," Macdonald stated.

"I believe in taxation according to need, and the need for this extra tax is long gone. With state revenues already at an all-time high from the usual tax sources, why must the merry spenders in the Legislature be allowed to make Massachusetts taxpayers sacrificial lambs? On Nov. 6, the voters will speak on the tax issue. If elected, I commit myself to follow their wishes."

"Captains Courageous" To Be Shown Today At Library

There's been a change in the Winchester Public Library's movie today.

Instead of showing "Moby Dick," the library will be presenting the classic 1937 adaptation of Rudyard Kipling's "Captains Courageous," starring Spencer Tracey.

The film will be shown at 2 and 6:45 tonight in the Library's Meeting Room.

COMMMENT

Dreams Of Childhood Home

By TERRY MAROTTA

I dreamed the other night about my childhood home.

It was our summer place, to be exact. It was on a hilltop in the Berkshires.

We used to go there around the first week in June, when the nights still held a springtime chill, and the mornings brought us lawns cool and crunchy with dew. We used to stay until after Labor Day, when the youngest maples had already begun turning red.

We went there from the time I was a newborn until my 17th summer. Snapshots of the place show both my sister and me in the ruffled sunsuits of toddlers, plopped chubbily in wading pools or gumming a Zwieback. They have that amber caste, these photos, and a kind of misty haze surrounding the captured image that is typical of pictures taken in the dawn of color photography.

But in memory these warm tones seem to have pervaded our days as well as our snapshots of them, as if they were blessed somehow, and set apart — as if they were ladeled over with a kind of invisible honey, or dusted with the powdery gold of a lily.

And they were that, I guess; they were blessed and set apart. Because this was a place we came to as children only. No adult cares diluted our joy as we woke mornings to the sound of the rooster down the road. No adult concerns infected our peace as we played in the long evenings or slept, dreamless, in the black and sequined country midnights.

"I dreamed of this place last night. I visited it again in all its wild beauty. And I seemed to see in sleep things lost to waking memory: a certain stand of birches; two large white rocks jutting up along them...; and the ferns that foamed up along the rocks.

I dreamed of this place last night. I visited it again in all its wild beauty. And I seemed to see in sleep things lost to waking memory: a certain stand of birches; two large white rocks jutting up among them, deposited, I guess by some ancient glazier; and the ferns that foamed up around the rocks, softening their contours, like a gathering of lace at the throat softens, in portraits, the faces of the Founding Fathers.

Especially, though, I dreamed about the house we lived in there. My grandparents had built it, they who had spun their dreams before the century's turn. It held the fragrance of those dreams, somehow; it smelled old-fashioned, I seem to recall.

It looked old-fashioned too. A shingled house, it had weathered quickly in the raging winters, and by my era, had softened to the greyish-brown of a rabbit's coat. Even the lilacs that embraced its corners looked weathered. They were the palest lavender, and they smelled like a memory.

Last night I saw the Victorian couch that stood in front of the windows; the large fireplace; the old piano, made out of rosewood and embellished with a tangle of nineteenth-century carving.

I saw the whole upstairs too: the room where I remember first learning, during a thunderstorm, how to tie my shoe; the one where I spent two weeks coloring and drinking grape juice one long and mumps-filled summer; and the room where my sister, as a 1-year-old, had climbed from her crib, upset a bottle of baby oil, and then walked in it, leaving forever embedded in the grain of the floor, her tiny, unreproduceable footprint.

We sold this house that I dreamed of the summer I finished high school, and the sale marked for me the end of childhood. We closed it up one day that September, and we drove away from it. I never saw it again.

It belongs to some other people now, who bought it from the people who bought it from us. They own the birch trees, I guess, if people can be said to own birch trees. They own the enduring rocks, and all the generations of fern that ruffle the cuffs of the forest.

They have our house. They have the lilacs, and the fireplace, and the way it smelled as it worked up a hearty blaze on evenings in September. They even have that little footprint on the floor of my mother's room; They can look and look at its miniature outline, and wonder and wonder about the baby who made it.

But they will never have an answer, for all their wondering.

They'll never know about the summers of the honey-colored photographs. They can't have those memories. They belong to me.

I keep them safe.

And I visit them when I dream.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Johnson Rd. Hill Is Dangerous, Town Should Act

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

In June, The Winchester Star covered recent efforts of residents to reduce the number of accidents which occur at the town's most dangerous intersection of Wildwood and Cambridge sts. We support these efforts.

It is crucial, however, to broaden these efforts to include Wildwood st. west of the Cambridge st. intersection, where it joins Johnson rd. According to Safety Officer Mawn, 27 accidents occurred there in nine years, making it one of the three most dangerous spots in Winchester.

Unlike the Wildwood and Cambridge st. intersection, the accidents in this area are usually not the fault of the driver. These accidents generally occurred in the winter and were caused by a combination of icy roads and an engineering problem with the east bound lane. Drivers become victims when they hit slippery conditions that send their cars down a hill, around a curve, out of control.

Two signs warn motorists of the road conditions. However, when the driver sees the second, more obvious sign, it is too late. In the winter, the town sands the area. However, often the sand truck arrives after an accident has already occurred. Winchester potentially bears a heavy liability due to the known history of the problem and failure to correct it.

We recommend the following steps:

1. Increase police surveillance during inclement weather.
2. Install a sign with flashing lights warning of the hill and curve.
3. Fill in the dip in the road immediately prior to the downhill curve to improve tire traction.
4. Re-engineer the road's curve and slope.

The cost of potential solutions is high. However, the money should be spent on preventative measures rather than on lawsuit damages as a result of a tragic accident.

This problem must be corrected permanently, rather than just be discussed in the winter and forgotten each spring.

Lynn M. Papale

This scene of a winter accident on Johnson rd. is becoming too common for residents who say they are concerned over the dangerous conditions on Johnson rd. during the winter. Icy conditions cause cars to slide down the steep hill near Robin Hood rd.

Robert Forest Recognized

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to recognize the resignation of Dr. Robert G. Forest from the Winchester Public Schools by expressing my appreciation of the ability, dignity, and humor he has contributed to the system for the past 14 years.

His academic and administrative excellence was enhanced by his outstanding demonstration of concern for the individual - from the frightened third grader who accidentally set off a fire alarm, to the parents, to the faculty, and to all school employees.

It has been my pleasure to work with him as a parent from the opening of Ambrose School and as an employee during his service as acting Superintendent of Schools.

Sincerely,
Mary E.Vitka

Leonard's Lifeguards Commended

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Sunday I had the pleasure of being at Leonard's Pond in Winchester with my family.

At 2:30, it started to thunder and the lifeguards cleared the pond until the danger had passed.

Suddenly, the lifeguards blew their whistles to clear the pond immediately. Seven lifeguards began to simultaneously dive off the dock in a pattern to cover the area. This continued for 5 to 8 minutes. I had never seen this done before and was impressed by their professionalism.

We were informed later that a girl had been seen diving into the water, but not coming up. As it turned out, she had swam under water and come up out of sight.

The quick response of the lifeguards brought back my confidence and assurance with those who protect our children.

I would publicly like to commend Nancy Monteith, Kim Donlon, Mike Minutoli, Jenn Parker, Robert deMars and Hugh Murray for doing an outstanding job.

WHA Director's Final Statement

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like you to publish my full statement upon resigning from the Winchester Housing Authority.

"The executive director of the WHA is resigning effective Sept. 1, due to the unrealistic expectations on the part of EOCD (the state Executive Office of Communities and Development) regarding the amount of work and time required to effectively manage and supervise an authority of this size.

"There is no dispute between the board and myself. I have a wonderful working relationship with the members of the board. They all should be commended for their dedication and diligent efforts on behalf of the residents of the WHA and the citizens of Winchester."

I would also like to note that the grant application, mentioned in your story of July 26, was for modernization funds.

Downtown Bricks Are A Waste Of Money

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I walk a great deal. Mostly in the Fells on the marked trails, but also all over town. One of the many observations that I have made in the course of more than 25 years as a resident and taxpayer of Winchester is that there are dozens if not hundreds of stretches of sidewalks in town which are in need, some in dire need, of repair. But not a single one of these broken and cracked stretches were in the center. In fact the center had the newest, the most attractive, and most expensive sidewalks in town.

So where is the money for sidewalk repairs being spent? In the center. What else? I asked one businessman who presumabaly will benefit from the monstrous, tax money-wasting operation, the brain child of our politicians and town planners. If he had counted the new customers the brick sidewalks presumably will bring him. His answer was: I do not need a computer.

Has any one who has built or bought a house in Winchester the last 50 years or so ever checked out the center before closing the deal? I doubt it. They are far more likely, it seems to me, to check the condition of the sidewalk where they plan to settle.

Kaspar O. Marvaagnes
Orient st.

Editor's note: Economic Development Coordinator John Connery, who has been listening to similar complaints about the downtown project since it was first conceived, came up with his most eloquent defense of the project yet during Monday's selectmen's meeting.

"When the project started, we had a 14 percent vacancy rate on the first story downtown," Connery replied to a complaint voiced at the meeting. "As of September, we will have none. No vacancies.

"We have a new 30,000 foot office space that will bring 150 new employees to the downtown. The tax yield from that will be a lot more than the tax dollars spent.

"I've listened to every complaint, every problem, and I tell people they should not be afraid to grasp Winchester's potential.

"I've been here three years, and I'm coming to the end of my tenure, which I'm sure will please a lot of people. And the most amazing thing I've seen is that people will not reach out and grasp that potential — this downtown has a beautiful waterfall that they let weeds grow in for 20 years.

"Winchester's vision isn't the one that let that waterfall sit — Winchester's vision is the one that created that waterfall.

"I hope anything we've done fits that vision. I think it has been done with attention to quality and care. And I think it will pay off."

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

The House and Senate are still meeting informally and there were no roll calls last week. Although many bills have been signed into law during the first seven months of the 1984 session, the first half of the session was also important for the hundreds of bills which have been defeated. While many bills are still pending in various states of approval, many have also been defeated outright on roll call votes and are in effect dead for this year.

This week's report reviews local representatives' votes on 12 key bills which were defeated on roll call votes in the House.

CONVENTION AUTHORITY(H 2235) — House 125-10, rejected a bill abolishing the Massachusetts Convention Authority, established by the legislature in 1932 and charged with a variety of tasks including expanding convention facilities throughout the state.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill abolishing the authority. A "Nay" vote is against abolishing the authority.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh did not vote.

MBTA (H 2283) — House 109-40, rejected a bill requiring the MBTA director to prepare a plan to contract with private vendors for the operation and maintenance of the T's rapid transit system.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

SEAT BELTS (H 726) — House 122-30, rejected a bill requiring every private passenger car driver and passenger over 10 years of age to wear a safety belt. Currently, infants up to age 5 are required to be in child restraints.

A "Yea" vote is for the requirement. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

TV ADS (H 4861) — House 127-18, rejected a bill prohibiting any commercial television stations from charging candidates for political advertisements and requiring the stations to provide all political candidates equal access to ads.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill prohibiting charging for political ads. A "Nay" vote is against the bill.

Saltmarsh voted no.

MARIJUANA (H 1014) — House 111-17, rejected a bill moving marijuana from its classification as a class D substance to a class C one and thus increasing penalities for its use.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

HELMETS (H 5194) — House 99-44, defeated a bill modifying the current state law requiring all motorcycle drivers and passengers to wear helmets. The measure still requires all passengers to wear helmets, but requires only drivers under 20 to do so.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill modifying the current law. A 'Nay" vote is against the bill.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

REGISTRY (H 1294) — House 143-5, rejected a bill abolishing the Registry of Motor Vehicles and creating a commission to draft a plan to allow cities and towns to handle the registration of motor vehicles, driver's license renewals, and other such services currently provided by the Registry.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill abolishing the Registry. A "Nay" vote is against the bill.

Saltmarsh voted no.

DRAFT (H 4719) — House 95-43, rejected a bill prohibiting eligible persons who have not registered for the draft from being admitted to a state college.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

ART INTERNS (H 5555) — House 98-46, rejected a bill establishing a $1 million student intern program for theater management and administration at the Wang Center for Performing Arts, and providing that Massachusetts college students be allowed to participate in the program free of charge or at a reduced rate.

A "Yea" vote is for the intern program. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

VOTER LISTING (H 1199) — House 127-25, rejected a bill allowing names on the annual street listing prepared in each city and town to be included in the register of voters if they meet all other qualifications to vote. The measure essentially automatically registers these persons to vote.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

PARKING EXCISE (H 797) — House 80-73, rejected the bill allowing cities and towns to establish up to a 15 percent excise tax for off-street parking. The bill would apply to all communities, but Mayor Ray Flynn and the Boston delegation were in the forefront lobbying for the bill for the city of Boston.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

CABLE TV (H 2530) — House 93-48, rejected a bill extending the maximum term for renewal of cable television licenses from 10 to 15 years.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

A Salute To Those Who Serve

Art Association Brings Beauty & Appreciation Of Art To Town

By Malcolm Campbell

Generally speaking, the art world contains two distinct groups: the artists and the appreciators. Although one occasionally hears of an artist who would be better off as an appreciator, and vice versa, the extent of commingling between the two groups is usually slight. The artist creates, the appreciator appreciates, and never the 'twain shall meet.

In Winchester, however, this dichotomy is not so pronounced. The Winchester Art Association (WAA) has taken upon itself the task of spannign the void separating the artist from the appreciator.

While artists comprise more than three-quarters of the WAA membership, it is not a run-of-the-mill artist guild or an elite social club where members can debate the merits of using oil paint as opposed to acrylics.

Rather, as WAA president Susan Vrostos puts it, "It is an educational and artistic resource for the town of Winchester."

The WAA's emphasis on education is a product of the group's membership. Vrostos explains that since very few artists ever make a living from their work, many WAA members choose teaching to suplement their incomes. Being teachers, WAA members have a natural inclination toward education. Vrostos herself is a lecturer at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

The WAA also focuses on education in order to help us appreciators do our jobs of appreciating. Vrostos feels that people are often intimidated by art work that is different from what they are used to seeing or that is hard to understand. This is especially true of contemporary art.

Vrostos uses the example of Claude Monet who was reviled in his day but is now considered to have been an artistic genius. She believes that by exposing people to new works of art, the public gains an insight into what is happening in their world as well as a better understanding of artistic expression.

Judging what is good art and what is bad art depends on an individual's point of view, according to Vrostos. But, she adds, such judgments are only valid when made from an informed position.

The art work of WAA members can be viewed throughout the town. While standing in queue at the Winchester Co-Operative Bank or the Cambridgeport Bank, a patient customer will notice a number of original paintings hung on the walls. These are works of WAA members. Other displays appear at Town Day, the public library, and at the annual Town Hall Prize Show.

In addition to these displays, the WAA has operated a small art gallery on Main st. since last December. The gallery houses the work of WAA members exclusively, and exhibits change every three weeks. Even though all work in the gallery collection is for sale, there is no high-pressure salesmanship, and the public is encouraged to stroll in and browse.

The gallery also serves as an educational resource for students attending Winchester schools. For two weeks this past spring, six high school seniors ran the gallery while exhibiting their own work. Vrostos says that this program was so successful that the WAA plans to repeat it next year.

One of the more unique features of the WAA enables town residents to borrow some of the original works of WAA members. By purchasing a yearly subscription to the Picture Lending Program, the subscriber is entitled to borrow one or more works and exchange them every four months for new works. Every WAA member who is an artist is required to donate two works to the program.

The proceeds from these subscriptions go toward a scholarship given to a Winchester student who has distinguished him or herself in the visual arts. Last year, the WAA raised $2,000 for the scholarship.

The WAA's activities in town go beyond hanging pictures in local living rooms. The WAA sponsors frequent lectures and workshops throughout the year on subjects ranging from antique furniture restoration to theater set design. Any event held at the library, and most are, is open to the public. The WAA also takes numerous tours to museums in the area, often accompanied by a WAA lecturer.

Beyond the service to the art appreciators in town, the WAA acts as a combination clearinghouse, support group, and social club for local artists. Vrostos says that WAA artist members are at all stages of their careers; some are just starting out, others are world renown. The WAA can help any artist, no matter what level they are at, she said.

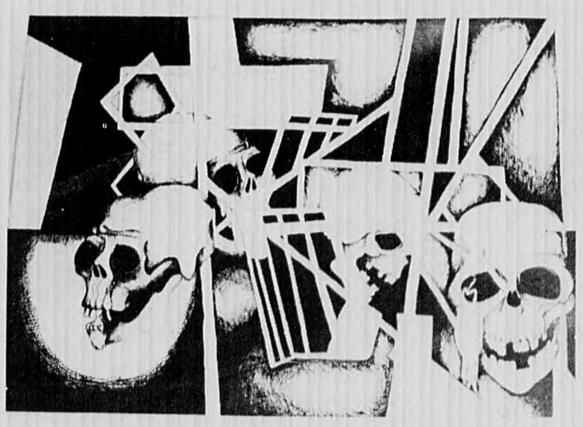

Vrostos says that in the future, the WAA would like to expand to include other arts. "It is important to broaden our relationship with other art groups in town," she says. During the prize show this September, Vrostos says the WAA would like to sponsor a multi-cultural show which would include elements of music and dance.

"What we'd like to see is some kind of cultural center in Winchester," says Vrostos. "There are a lot of things that go on in churches and other areas in town, but they are all scattered. Other towns have taken old school buildings and converted them. Our hope is that by creating a forum for cooperation, we can get a group of people together who can see their way through to this."

Vrostos concedes that this kind of cooperation is not in the immediate future of the organization, but by testing the waters this fall with the prize show, the WAA should get a good indication of what direction to follow.

By bringing the arts to the people of Winchester and thus making Winchester a more beautiful town in which to live, the WAA closes the gap between artist and appreciator. Their commitment to the town, and their level of involvement, in no small way contributes to the quality of life in Winchester.

Fiesta Brings Fun To Winchester

A family tradition, started before the turn of the century and revived three years ago by the descendents of the original organizers, returned to town this weekend.

It was the Italian Fiesta, two days of carnival rides, parades, fireworks and food put on by the Society of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

The festival has two purposes, noted organizer John Mercurio.

The first is to raise money to build a shrine to the Virgin Mary in Winchester.

But the shrine is a long way off — the organizers make only a modest profit off the two-day fiesta.

The main purpose, noted Mercurio, "was to reunite the families of the area."

The fiesta accomplished that goal, as Mercurio should know. His father, one of the fair's organizers in years past, came up from Florida for the event, as did many other former residents.

The mass, music and fireworks which ended the fair turned out to be the most popular event of the two days.

Although the heat of Saturday afternoon kept all but a couple hundred fun-seekers away, the crowd had swelled to more than 1,000 by evening, and even more stopped by for the 10 p.m. fireworks.

The rides at the Society of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary's Italian Fiesta this weekend, along with a parade, music and fireworks, drew hundreds to Leonard's Field.

During the Italian Fiesta parade Saturday, residents, including Peggy DeTeso, pinned money to a statue of the Virgin Mary wheeled through the streets. The money will go toward building a shrine to the Virgin Mary.

Bill Ferry screws up his face and smashes a serve during the finals of the Husband-Wife Tournament. But strong serves weren't enough to win the championship from the Hurleys. (Photo by John Pawlick)

Although she made quite an effort, like this dive for the ball, Anne Ferry wasn't able to defeat the six-time Husband-Wife Tournament champions, the Hurleys.

The Hurleys Win Sixth Straight Husband-Wife Tennis Tournament

By ALEX POPP

Once again, Kathy and Neil Hurley established themselves as the best husband-wife tennis team in town. They did it with a 7-6 (7-4) tie-breaker 6-0 victory over former finalists Anne and Bill Ferry.

This championship gives the couple the most titles with six, over the previous record of five held by Gail and Bill McNeil. The only other couple to win the tournament is Monika and Ron Salter, in 1975.

The championship match against the Ferrys produced a very exciting first set with both couples displaying their talents with excellent shot making.

However, Kathy and Neil, as they have consistently done, played the big points better and took the first set in a tough tie-breaker.

Possibly feeling a sense of frustration, Anne and Bill were not able to continue at the same level of intensity during the second set and the Hurleys ran it off 6-0.

Not only have the Hurleys won six straight titles but they have not lost a set in doing so.

Whit Gray, the court supervisor for whom the tournament bowl is named, told the Hurleys if they win 10 in a row, they could keep the cup forever.

The Hurleys just might have that in mind.

The road to the finals found a lot of teams playing excellent tennis despite the heat and humidity over the week-end.

In the quarter-finals, Gloria and Lou DesMarteaux, playing in their first tournament, defeated Abbie and Joe Culhane 6-4, 6-4. Anne and Bill Ferry beat Bonnie and Mark Totman 6-4, 6-3. The Totmans made the quarters by upsetting Leslie and Vandy French 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Joan and Denis Byrne took out Karen and Ted Martin 6-3, 6-3.. and the Hurleys beat Katherine and Tom Dunn 6-4, 6-3.

In the semi-finals, the Ferry s beat the DesMarteauxs 6-4, 7-6, and the Hurleys bested the Byrnes 6-3, 6-4.

Wolfes Win Consolation Bracket Title

Chris and Bill Wolfe overcame a rocky start and went on to defeat Stella and Bob Gallant 4-6, 6-2, 6-4 in a very long and exciting consolation championship match.

Stella and Bob made it to the finals with a 7-5, 7-5 win over Chris and Dave Campbell, while the Wolfes beat Louise and Bob Trakimas 6-2, 6-1 in the quarter-finals and won by default in the semis when Lucille and Paul Murray were unable to play.

For Chris and Bill, who ran this tournament along with Bonnie and Mark Totman, this win made it all worthwhile.

Once again, a great time was had by all with excellent tennis and a super party. And most couples were still speaking to one another Sunday afternoon.

Do Double Faults On The Court Lead To Fault-Finding Off Court?

By GARRY PUDDISTER

On one of the gray-brown clay courts at the William S. Packer Courts on Palmer st., Saturday Kenneth D'Arcy, a Cambridge lawyer, was appealing for another serve after his wife Mary Ann's double fault on the grounds of a questionable rule.

"This is family doubles. There's a special rule. When the ball hits the net it's always a let," explained D'Arcy with a smile.

The D'Arcy's, playing in Winchester's husband-wife tournament, lost 6-2, 6-4 despite Kenneth D'Arcy's lucky all-green tennis togs.

"I'm Irish. I wear green for luck and to be colorful," he said. "I love to wear it. Guys kid me that I only have green socks."

Mary Ann D'Arcy jokingly offered her explanation for their loss: "I wasted the summer on the beach when I could have been practicing."

The D'Arcy's were one of 35 couples entered in the 12th annual husband-wife tournament. Neil and Cathy Hurley of Town Way won the tournament with their strong, consistent play for the sixth consecutive year. They bested Bill and Ann Ferry of Johnson rd., 7-6, 6-0.

Is playing doubles with one's spouse hazardous to the health of a marriage? Does a double fault lead to fault-finding off the court and land couples in divorce court?

Bob Gallant of Laurel Hill ln., one of the four founders of the tournament, noted, "Of the 43 couples in the original tournament, 20 percent are divorced. We lose couples from the tournament because of moves, divorces and separations."

Winchester couples at the tournament had some thoughts of their own on playing doubles together.

Joan Richardson of Hawthorne rd., who has no problems playing doubles with her husband Philip, said that "there are people who play together who kill each other, but who still come out and keep playing."

Some husbands use the supportive approach to inter-marriage doubles. Paul Murray of Squire rd. is behind his wife Lucille's tennis effort all the way.

"This is her annual tennis match and I promised only to encourage her. We're here to have fun," he said.

Denis Byrne of Partridge Lane said that "my wife's the better player." His wife Joan, however, felt that Byrne was being kind.

"That's nice but it's not true," she said smiling. This selfless attitude got the Byrnes to the semi-finals this year and the finals in past years.

For some couples there is a little tennis court strain and not just when reaching for tough shots down the alleys. "I yell at her too much on the court," Richard Campobasso said about his wife Helen.

"Did he say he yells unfairly?" Helen Campobasso of Emerson st. said with a laugh. "It gets me mad at first, but then I try harder."

Tennis is a popular sport in Winchester, thus the success of the husband-wife tournament. The tournament attracts good and not so good players — athletes of all abilities. The tennis can get serious in the finals, quarter-finals and semis, but the common denominator for all the players is to have fun and meet some new people.

"It's a social event, but there's an inate thing. When the competition gets tough people play hard," said Lou Desmarteaux of Washington st. "Winchester has some good strong players."

Desmarteaux knows good tennis when he sees it. He is a former Davis Cup player for Canada who, with the help of his very expectant wife Gloria, made it to the semis. In fact, the Desmarteaux' met on a tennis court.

"She was taking lessons and I was teaching," he said.

Inevitably, there are some players who take the game too seriously. "There are a few couples who take it very seriously," said D'Arcy. "There's a guy I call Mr. Intense. He walks around briskly between points. As soon as the match is over he lights a cigarette. I just want to leave the court feeling better than when I went on and have some laughs."

Socializing, though, remains the focus of the tournament. "The nice thing is that everyone hangs around the court after. It's easy going," said Desmarteaux.

"The tournament is a good way to meet people. It's a great social affair," said D'Arcy. "The courts are the melting pot of Winchester in the summer. You can play with two or three generations of Winchester."

Indeed, the tournament party, held at Jenks Center again this year, seems to be as important as the tennis.

"The big attraction is the party. That caused the tournament to go over well," explained Gallant. "Without the party, just a husband and wife tournament wouldn't have worked."

OBITUARIES

Henry Peluso Jr.

A funeral mass will be celebrated Saturday for Henry Peluso Jr. of Washington st., who died Aug. 7 in Winchester Hospital after a brief illness. He was 50.

Mr. Peluso was born in Somerville, the son of Marie G. (Schiavone) Peluso and the late A. Henry Peluso, but moved to Winchester at a young age and lived here all his life.

He was a graduate of Winchester High School and Boston University.

For 25 years, Mr. Peluso was financial manager for Norwest Finance Co. of Malden.

He was a former president and treasurer of the Medford Lions Club, and the former treasurer of both the Winchester Pop Warner Football League and the Muraco School Cub Scouts. He was also active in Winchester Cap League baseball.

He is survived by his wife, Carol A. (Sparaco) Peluso; his mother; and five children, H. James Peluso of San Jose, Calif., John Peluso of Winchester, Joseph Peluso of Winchester, Diane M. Spezzaferri of Burlington and Amy M. Peluso of Winchester.

He is also survived by a sister, Rose Marie Cammarata of Winchester; and a brother, Robert Peluso of Bridgewater. He was also the brother of the late Anthony M. Peluso of Winchester.

A funeral mass will be celebrated by the Rev. George Butera at St. Mary's Church on Saturday, Aug. 11, at 10 a.m.

Burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation, c/o David W. Donahue, 4 Alesworth ave.

J. Philip Gallivan

Funeral services will be held Friday for J. Philip Gallivan, 85, of Alden ln., who died Aug. 7.

Mr. Gallivan, a former resident of Medford, was the retired principal of Medford's Roberts Jr. High School.

A veteran of World War I, he was a member of the Disabled American Veterans Barracks 2202, and of the American Legion Post 45.

Mr. Gallivan graduated from Tufts University with the Class of 1923, and received a master's degree from Tufts in 1948.

He was a native of Meriden, Conn.

Mr. Gallivan is survived by his wife, Anne (Hughes) Gallivan; a daughter, Dr. Sheila G. Baler of Cambridge; and two grandchildren, Philip Hedegard and Allen Baler.

He is also survived by a brother, Dr. John Gallivan of Weathersfield, Conn.

Visting hours will be today, from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Funeral services will be held from the Gaffey Funeral Home, 43 High st., Medford, on Friday, Aug. 10, at 9 a.m., followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church, Winchester, at 10 a.m.

Burial will be in Bethany Cemetery, Monson.

Thomas A. Brett

Attorney Thomas A. Brett, 70, died unexpectedly at his Squanto rd. home Aug. 1.

Mr. Brett was born in Boston and had lived in Winchester for 30 years.

He was a graduate of Suffolk Law School in Boston and a member of the Massachusetts Bar Assn.

Mr. Brett was also a member of the Disabled American Veterans Assn.

The husband of the late June B. (Bates) Brett, he is survived by two children, Steven T. Brett of Denver, Colo., and Beverly A. Brett of Nova Scotia; and a brother, John Brett of Providence, R.I.

Funeral services were held from the Lane Funeral Home on Aug. 4, followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery.

Mary McLaughlin

Funeral services will be held today for Mary Jane McLaughlin, 88, of Glenwood ave, who died Aug. 6 in Winchester Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. McLaughlin moved to Winchester from her native Ballston Spa, N.Y., at the age of 8, and remained in town for 80 years.

She attended the Winchester schools and graduated from Winchester High School.

For 18 years, she worked at the local New England Telephone office on Washington st. as a telephone operator.

She was active in two local church organizations — the Winchester Guild of the Infant Saviour and the Ladies Sodality of the Immaculate Conception Church.

For many years, she also sang in minstrel shows held in Winchester, Woburn and surrounding towns.

The wife of the late James A. McLaughlin, she is survived by two sons, James A. McLaughlin of Winchester and Daniel J. McLaughlin of Woburn; seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The funeral services will be held from the Lane Funeral Home at 8:15 a.m., followed by a funeral mass in the Immaculate Conception Church at 10 a.m. today.

Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Ruth M. Meskell

Lifelong Winchester resident Ruth Josephine (Mullen) Meskell, 81, of Westley st. died Aug. 3 at the Aberjona Nursing Home after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Meskell was the wife of the late David J. Meskell Sr.

A native of Winchester, she was educated in the Winchester schools.

Mrs. Meskell was a longtime member of the Winchester Grange and a member of the Middlesex-Essex Pomona Grange.

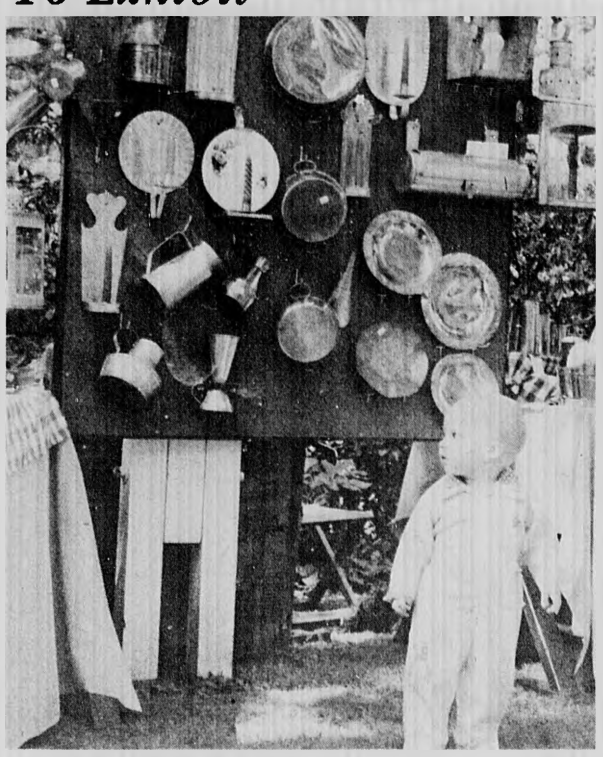

She is survived by a daughter, Joanne Hall of Haddonfield, N.J.; a son, David J. Meskell of Snellville, Ga.; two sisters-in-law, Claire Mullen and Gladys Mullen of Winchester; six grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at the Robert J. Costello Funeral Home on Aug. 7. The Rev. William Huegel of the First Baptist Church in Winchester officiated.

Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery. Costello Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Markey Appoints Connolly And Boylan

Cong. Ed Markey has announced the appointments of Winchester residents Agnes Connolly and Barbara Boylan as Winchester coordinators for the Markey for Congress campaign.

Connolly and Boylan will work with the Markey campaign in organizing events in Winchester, distributing campaign literature and informing Wincheter residents of the Congressman's stands on issues.

She has been active in the past in Winchester politics, working for Selectman Wade Welch and School Committeewoman Cathy Alexander. She was active in the Mystic School Parents Assn. before that school closed. She and her husband, Patrick Connolly, are the parents of Tim and Amanda Connolly.

Barbara Boylan of Nassau dr. is a lifelong Winchester resident. She has been a volunteer on Markey campaigns since 1978.

She is an architect for a Sudbury firm and has a master's degree in architecture from MIT. She received her bachelor's degree from the University of Notre Dame and is a Matignon High School graduate.

In her architectural work, Boylan has a special interest in solar energy. She said she admires Markey's stand on solar energy and other alternative sources of energy.

Boylan said she also based her support of Markey on his legislative work on behalf of the elderly.

The idea for the tournament happened when Gallant and three friends were having a beer after playing doubles. "We realized that there were over 100 tennis couples in Winchester," he said. This was the early '70s, the height of the tennis boom. One of the early tournaments drew 63 couples. About this time it was decided that the tournament trophy would be called the Witney Gray Bowl in appreciation for Gray's 30 years of work for Winchester tennis.

Gray, who is 75 and still works full-time at the courts besides playing tennis, started playing tennis at the age of 7. "We took our lunch and played all day long," said Gray.

Gray's love of tennis matches Winchester's. Desmarteaux, who moved to Winchester a year ago, said that "I've played more tennis in Winchester than I have in the past five years."

Human Rights Committee Is Seeking To Expand Membership, Solicit Volunteers

The Human Rights Committee of Mystic Valley Mental Health Assn. would like to expand its membership, and invites volunteers to participate in the committee as citizen and consumer advocates. Those interested can call chairperson Norman Goldstein at 641-0970.

In accordance with State Dept. of Mental Health regulations, the Human Rights Committee monitors mental health and mental retardation services and procedures in order to protect the human, civil, and legal rights of clients.

Its major focus has been to monitor, through regular site visits, MVMH's mental retardation programs, including the Kelliher Workshops and community residences, to insure that certain state licensing requirements are met.

In addition, the Human Rights Committee reviews and approves all research projects that involve direct contact with center clients.

The committee meets approximately 10 times a year.

ratore, who noted he had interviewed 15 candidates for the job, and that two of his top choices had declined because of the salary level.

There will also be new positions created in the Buildings and Cemetery Depts.

In the Buildings Dept., currently managed by Frenchy Barrow, there are two W-4s, a plumber and electrician, and two W-13s, a craftsman and a carpenter.

The carpenter, Serratore noted, "has management skills and in Frenchy's absence assumes responsibility.

"I feel a person who takes responsibility should be compensated," Serratore said. "I want to reclassify him to a W-14, so we won't lose an excellent person and so he will be on the same pay scale as the people he supervises."

In the Cemetery Dept., where there are currently two W-13 foremen, "it is not working out well," according to Serratore. "We need someone to take ultimate responsibility, someone to blame."

The solution, said Serratore, is to create a W-14 position, "a cemetery supervisor, call it what you want."

Serratore's final recommendation was to promote the DPW custodian to head custodian, from W-12 to W-13.

"He's the only one in the building, and he should be compensated for the work he does."

Acting Town Manager Rick White also noted he was planning on raising the salary levels of the DPW's fleet coordinator and facilities coordinator.

"They are two positions that are grossly undervalued," White said. "If we had to replace those positions now, and try and get the same skills these men have, we couldn't do it."

Graduates Receive Degrees

Assumption College awarded degrees to two Winchester residents at its 68th commencement exercises this spring.

Annette M. Ferry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ferry of Johnson rd., graduated with a major in social and rehabilitation services.

Thorpe E. Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe Wright of Mayflower rd., graduated with a major in management.

every problem," said Connery. "And I tell people they should not be afraid to grasp Winchester's potential.

"I've been here three years, and I'm coming to the end of my tenure, which I'm sure will please a lot of people," he continued. "And the most amazing thing I've seen is that people will not reach out and grasp that potential — this downtown has a beautiful waterfall that they let weeds grow in for 20 years.

"Winchester's vision isn't the one that let that waterfall sit — Winchester's vision is the one that created that waterfall.

"I hope anything we've done fits that vision," he concluded. "I think it has been done with attention to quality and care. And I think it will pay off."

Connery wasn't alone in supporting the downtown work — resident Paul Stoeller noted "I'm one person for it," and Selectman Alan Macdonald commented, "I can't believe the amount of negative comment that he (Connery) gets day in and day out, every time he comes here. I, for one, am glad John Connery's here."

But for the most part, Connery got one more dose of negative comment.

"I cannot see this money being spent to put red brick down, which might not be the safest thing, said Jeanne Thomas, who noted she was speaking as a citizen and not as the chairman of the Board of Health. "As I sit here and listen, I have butterflies in my stomach. Why do we have to do more?"

"Nobody likes it," she said. "I'm here to say I hope you don't get the grant."

Church st. resident Judith Wiegand weighed in next, noting "while I generally like the sidewalks and the streetlights, there were a couple of problems I hope are not repeated."

Wiegand's main complaints was "the streetlights glare — you go to the downtown and get blasted by the lightbulbs."

Connery, who at one time had to calm Town Meeting members who feared the lights would be too dim, noted that the bulbs were the lowest wattage available.

Wiegand also asked about the granite crosswalks, saying that every time she drove over them, she could feel the bump. Connery explained that the problem would be solved once the streets were repaved.

The selectmen took the biggest licks at Connery. Wade Welch and Michael Saraco complained that brick sidewalks hadn't been installed around the Common.

"I'm no architect, but I can't understand why you're not doing the brickwork around the park," said Welch. "If I set the priorities, it would have been my first."

Connery noted that bricks were never promised for that part of Church st., and that the sidewalk there was macadam before, the same as it is now.

That didn't satisfy the selectmen, who wanted to know why they weren't the ones who decided whether or not to put in the brick, especially since leftover construction funds were used for in front of the post office.

"If you'd asked me what to do with the extra money, at least I could have told you to do the park," said Welch. "I wasn't asked, and now I'm getting hit for it. You could have told me no, but at least I would have gotten my say."

"I'm not happy the way things are going," said Selectman Michael Saraco. "I'm not happy that changes were made without coming before the Board of Selectmen."

Connery replied he regularly met with the selectmen to tell them the latest on the downtown project.

"If we get less than the $740,000, who'll make the decision on what roads will be done and whether we'll put brick around the Common?" asked Saraco. "We're the ones who get the flak."

As far as getting the $740,000, Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh said "I'm in no position to say how much the town is going to get" from the state Executive Office of Transportation and Construction.

"But we've got a good shot at a substantial amount of money," said Saltmarsh, who helped get the legislation that provides the money.

Saltmarsh noted that the state wanted to fund projects that could go out to bid by the end of the year. Winchester, therefore, is in a good position to get the money since its plans are already drawn up.

The grant will be awarded on Aug. 31, according to Saltmarsh.

Tomato Secrets From the Florida Tomato Exchange

1. Never put tomatoes in the refrigerator. Remember the old banana jingle? "Never put bananas in the refrigerator!" It's the same with tomatoes. Cold kills flavor in fruit and tomatoes are a fruit, just like bananas.

2. Don't eat pale pink, over-firm tomatoes.

You don't have to. A few days at room temperature will redden and soften fresh tomatoes to eating perfection. The time it takes depends on how red they are when you buy them.

3. Put tomatoes in your fruit bowl. It'll remind you they're a fruit. Besides, they benefit from association with other fruits.

4. Use a ripening bowl if you have one. They help retain moisture as well as ripen. But, right out on the counter or in an open fruit bowl is fine, too.

5. Be sure they're right side up! Smooth end down and stem end up is the right way to keep tomatoes. The bumpy "shoulders" of the stem end are the tenderest part of the tomato and will bruise simply by the weight of the fruit. Remember, stem end up!

Fresh tomatoes are low in calories, low in sodium and high in nutrition. A medium-sized tomato contains only 27 calories and 4 mg of sodium but provides half of the recommended daily allowance of vitamin C and nearly a quarter of the RDA for vitamin A. Tomatoes are also a good source of potassium and contribute iron, the B vitamins, phosphorous and calcium.

Tomato and Onion Slices

Peel and slice 4 tomatoes
Thinly slice one onion
Layer ingredients, sprinkling with salt, pepper, half cup of minced mint.
Chill several hours

Stuffed Tomatoes

Core tomatoes
Mix the tomato meat with bread crumbs, salt, pepper, butter. Stuff tomatoes, sprinkle each with salt, pepper. Top with butter. Bake in baking cups at 350° degrees, for half an hour.

Quick Skillet Tomatoes

4 medium-sized tomatoes
3 T. butter or margarine
½ c. onion rings
¼ t. minced garlic
1 t. salt
1 t. basil leaves, crushed
1/8 t. ground black pepper

Cut tomatoes into 6 or 8 wedges; set aside. In a large skillet melt butter. Add onion and garlic; saute for 2 minutes. Stir in salt, basil and black pepper. Add reserved tomatoes; stir gently over moderate heat just until tomatoes are hot, 2 to 3 minutes.

Grilled Tomatoes

Slice the top off 4 tomatoes and sprinkle with salt and pepper.
Combine bread crumbs, shredded American cheese (¼ c. for each 4 tomatoes), melted butter.
Sprinkle mixture over tomatoes. Top with parsley. Wrap in foil and cook in moderate heat for 20 minutes.

Scalloped Tomatoes

Put bread crumbs in bottom of pie plate. Add slices of tomatoes sprinkled with salt, pepper and dotted with butter. Put bread crumbs over, more salt, pepper and butter. Bake 350°.

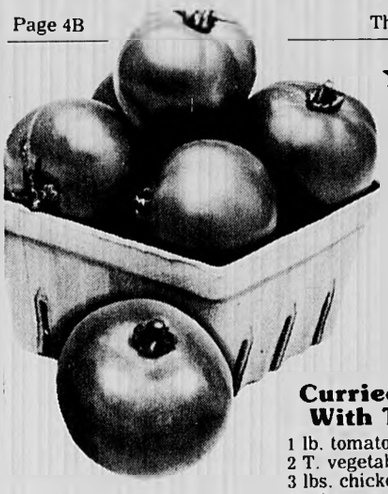

Fried Tomatoes

Slice tomatoes 1 inch thick
Sprinkle with salt and pepper
Dip in egg and cracker crumbs
Dry slices one hour in refrigerator
Fry in butter. Drain before serving.

Savory Scalloped Fresh Tomatoes

1 lb. tomatoes
2 T. butter or margarine
¼ c. chopped onion
½ c. coarsely chopped green pepper
1 T. flour
1 t. salt
1 t. sugar
3 slices toasted white bread, cut in ½-inch squares

Preheat oven to 350°F. Coarsely chop tomatoes (makes about 2½ cups); set aside. In a medium saucepan melt butter. Add onion and green pepper; saute for 3 minutes. Add flour; cook and stir for 1 minute. Stir in tomatoes, salt and sugar; cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens. Stir in half of the toast squares. Pour into a greased 1-quart casserole. Top with remaining toast squares. Bake until hot and bubbly, about 15 minutes.
Serves 4

Curried Chicken With Tomatoes

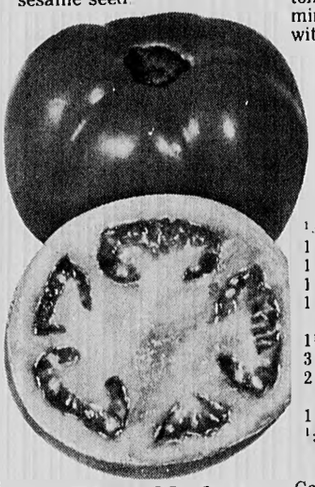

1 lb. tomatoes
2 T. vegetable oil
3 lbs. chicken parts
1½ t. curry powder
1 can (13¾ oz.) full-strength chicken broth
¼ t. salt
¼ t. garlic powder
1 c. green pepper strips
1½ t. cornstarch
¼ c. water

Cut tomatoes into wedges (makes about 2⅔ cups); set aside. In a large skillet heat oil until hot. Add chicken; brown on all sides; remove and set aside. Drain off all but 1 T. of the drippings. Heat drippings in pan until hot. Add curry powder; cook and stir over medium heat until browned, 10 to 15 seconds. Stir in chicken broth, salt and garlic powder; bring to a boil. Add reserved chicken; simmer, covered, until chicken is almost cooked through, about 40 minutes. Add green pepper; simmer, covered, until pepper is crisp-tender, about 6 minutes. Add tomatoes; simmer, covered, until tomatoes are almost cooked, about 2 minutes. Combine cornstarch and water; stir into cooking liquid; cook and stir until clear and thickened, about 2 minutes. Serve with steamed rice, if desired.
Serves 4.

Tomato Salad Mandarin

1¼ lbs. tomatoes
Lettuce leaves
4 oz. fresh mushrooms, sliced
¼ c. white vinegar
3 T. vegetable oil
4 t. soy sauce
2 t. sugar
½ t. ground ginger
¼ t. garlic powder
2 t. toasted sesame seed

Cut out stem ends of tomatoes. Cut tomatoes into ¼-inch thick slices. Arrange slices around the edge of a lettuce-lined serving platter. Place mushrooms in the center of the platter. In a small bowl combine vinegar, oil, soy sauce, sugar, ginger and garlic powder. Spoon over tomatoes and mushrooms; sprinkle with sesame seed

Pizza Made With Biscuits

Open 1½ cans of oven ready biscuits (10 to a can). Stretch them a little completely to cover pizza pan. No opening in biscuits. Pat down tightly. Add tomato sauce, sprinkle with oregano and shredded mozzarella. Add whatever additional topping, sausage etc., that you have and bake for 10-15 minutes at 350° or until done.

Mrs. Frances Russo
Arlington

Hot Gazpacho

2 lbs. tomatoes
1 can (46 fl. oz) cocktail vegetable juice
2 c. peeled and diced cucumbers
3 T. chopped scallion (green onion)
3 T. red wine vinegar
½ t. garlic powder
½ t. salt
½ t. sugar

Use tomatoes held at room temperature until fully ripe. Cut out stem ends of tomatoes. Dice tomateos (makes about 5 cups). In a large saucepan combine tomatoes with juice, cucumbers, scallion, vinegar, garlic powder, salt and sugar. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until tomatoes are soft, about 5 minutes. Serve hot topped with croutons, if desired.

American Chop Suey

¼ c. vegetable oil
1 large onion chopped (1 c.)
1 green pepper, diced
1 rib celery, chopped
1 c. ground tomatoes (1 lb. 13 oz. can)
1½ lb. ground beef
3 c. water
2 c. elbow macaroni, uncooked
1 T. salt
½ t. pepper

In large skillet heat oil. Cook onion, pepper, and celery in it until golden. Add meat. Stir to break up lumps as it browns. Drain off fat. Add undrained tomatoes, water macaroni, salt, and pepper. Stir to mix well. Cover and cook 15 to 20 minutes stirring occasionally until macaroni is tender. Add more water if needed. Makes 6 servings.

Mrs. Frances Russo
Arlington

Marinated Tomatoes And Onions

1 lb. tomatoes
¼ c. olive or vegetable oil
1 T. cider vinegar
¾ t. basil leaves, crushed
½ t. sugar
¼ t. salt
1/8 t. powdered mustard
1/8 t. garlic powder
1/8 t. coarse ground black pepper
1 small sweet onion, thinly sliced
2 T. chopped parsley

Cut out stem ends of tomatoes. Cut tomatoes into ¼-inch thick slices. Prepare marinade by combining oil, vinegar, basil, sugar, salt, mustard, garlic powder and black pepper; mix well. In a shallow serving bowl arrange half of the tomatoes in a layer; scatter half of the sliced onion and parlsey over tomatoes; sprinkle lightly with marinade. Repeat. Cover and let stand at room temperature for 1 hour before serving.

Fresh Tomato Sauce

3 lbs. tomatoes
1 T. vegetable oil
½ c. chopped onion
½ t. minced garlic
1½ t. salt
½ t. Italian seasoning, crushed
1/8 t. ground black pepper
1 small bay leaf
2 T. dry white wine (optional)

Dice tomatoes (makes about 7½ cups); set aside. In a large skillet heat oil until hot. Add onion and garlic; saute until tender, about 3 minutes. Add salt, Italian seasoning, black pepper, bay leaf and reserved tomatoes; bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, until tomatoes turn to a broth, about 15 minutes, stirring often. Add wine; continue to simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes longer. Remove bay leaf, Serve over fresh cooked pasta or vegetables.

EXPERIENCE THE Steamer Class™ Era

Coastwise Cruise Line introduces 2½ to 10 day coastal and waterway cruises on the sheltered waters of the East Coast aboard the first of the new Steamer Class™; the "Pilgrim Belle".

Cruising on this newly constructed 192' diesel powered, steel vessel allows you to slip gently into the 1920's, to a time known for its exceptional service, staff and ambiance. Nowhere else is there a comparable vessel and itinerary to be found.

Launching in 1984. To learn more about experiencing this gracious style of cruising call 617-778-6996 or write to Dept. CN for a free brochure and the name of our Travel Representative nearest you.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people We are part of the North South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period The 10th Battery competes with .58 cal rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and .32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds We welcome all shooters regardless of experience Our team members live all over from Maine to Rhode Island to New York but more are from eastern Massachusetts Call Ron Borgeson at 1-835-3102 for further information

BUY CAKE, NOT FROSTING

Would it make sense to marry a lady because you like the shape of her nose — but everything else about her was completely unsuitable? If you did, chances are you would end up with a pretty nose and lot of unhappiness.

Yet, this is one of the common mistakes that a househunter can make. All too often, a family will fall in love with an eye-catching feature, such as a rock garden, a chandelier, a built-in radar oven or a fancy fireplace and end up buying the wrong house. This mistake happens frequently and in all price ranges. You have to resist the temptation of paying too much attention to a frill and forgetting the importance of the overall house, location and price.

Yielding to superficial attractions like these can result in your family winding up with a thoroughly unsuitable house. Bear in mind that these same, alluring features can usually be added to another house at a relatively small cost, considering the amount of the overall purchase. Buy a house — not the frosting.

YOUR NEW CAREER IS DAWNING IN THE DARK

If midnight is the time of day you start to function best, BayBanks Systems, Inc. has the opportunities that are sure to brighten up your nights. We are the centralized facility for the entire BayBanks Corporation of more than 210 full service branches. We process millions of paper-based transactions each year. Openings include:

OUTPUT CLERKS

As part of our Midnight-8:30 AM team, you'll be involved in a high production area, sorting computer reports for distribution to our branches as well as operating output equipment. With a constantly changing work flow pattern, we need an adaptable person who can keep up with each situation as it arises. We offer on-the-job training, so experience is not necessarily required, however, prior 3rd shift experience is highly preferred.

RECONCILIATION CLERKS

In this more traditional banking function, you will be responsible for entering data onto a CRT, in addition to handling reconciliation of customer accounts. Keyboard and general office experience is helpful; proficiency on a calculator is required.

You'll find the 3rd shift offers a uniquely different environment where you'll enjoy a host of benefits including tuition assistance/reimbursement after just 6 months, the potential to move ahead and a 15% salary differential.

So if you're looking for something new to do with your nights, shift to BayBanks Systems where the difference will really pay off. Call Mindy Rakusin at 642-1424 or Karen Hodgson at 642-4129. Or stop by our Personnel Offices and fill out an application. BayBanks Systems Inc., 1025 Main Street, Waltham, MA 02154. An Equal Opportunity Employer, M/F/H/V.

Seniors

By John T. Watts
Copley News Service

Dear John: I wish to share my treatment of psoriasis with you and your readers.

I had psoriasis all over my legs, and hearing about the aloe plant being used to treat burns I decided to experiment. Every morning after showering I would break off a piece of the plant, split it open and rub it generously over the psoriasis.

When I ran out of plants, I used aloe vera gel, applying with cotton. This treatment alone seemed to dry my skin more, so I used Vaseline Intensive Care lotion after the aloe dried.

It has been 18 months since I first started this treatment and those ugly red spots are nearly gone. I hope it will help others. — Irene E.

Dear Irene: Aloe vera is good for many things.

Dear John: We read your article in the local paper and hopefully you will give us some light on the following: Polymorfus light interruptis.

This is the diagnosis the doctors have given my son. Thank you. — Mary E.

Dear Mary: This doesn't sound like a disease I've heard of. Unfortunately, my three years of Latin have long gone after all this time.

It sounds more like a runaround. When doctors, or anyone else, start talking in technical terminology, I tell them to speak English. I think the mark of a good doctor is that he can put what he has to say in layman's language.

Dear John: Please send me your Certo formula for arthritis.

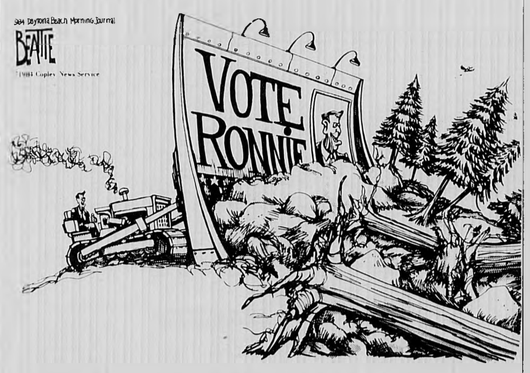

Vinegar (apple cider) is good for the shingles and poison ivy, or any bites. — Mrs. Bobo H.

Dear Bobo: Thanks. Vinegar seems to be good for so many things. Whenever I mention the arthritis leaflets I must explain for the benefit of new readers — and there seem to be so many — that they must send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to this column.

And please don't forget the stamp. Many have recently. Also, please don't ask for the leaflet to be sent out to several friends and relatives. The leaflets are becoming quite expensive — 1,580 printed last week.

Letters may be sent to Mainly for Seniors, P.O. Box 1744, Hemet, CA 92343. Volume of mail prohibits individual replies.

THE WINCHESTER STAR

VOL. CIII, NO. 52 ...Pages Main Section, 20 Page Calendar Winchester, Mass., Thursday, August 16, 1984 Two Sections 50 cents

FINISHED — After three months of construction and detours, the downtown work will be completed next week. Only a few stretches of brick in front of Randall's restaurant and the Post Office remain to be done. Before and after photos of Church st. show the changes from barren concrete sidewalks to brick, light poles and trees.

Before And After

Ushering In A New Era For Center

By DAVE LEECO

With less than a week to go on the downtown project, one last, final problem cropped up. The brick manufacturer suffered an equipment breakdown, and it looked like the project would be finished a week late.

Sitting in his Town Hall office Tuesday, Economic Development Coordinator John Connery finally got word that the bricks would, in fact, arrive on time.

The new downtown, three months in the making, will be finished tomorrow.

Things didn't go altogether smoothly — besides the late bricks, there were the shocked complaints when people realized what three months of downtown construction really meant, delays in delivering the new lights and benches, and a week of rain that almost left Thompson st. dug up for Town Day.

But now, the work is done, the 120,000 bricks are laid, the 76 light poles are in. And downtown merchants and shoppers are nearly unanimous in their praise. (See separate story.)

For Connery, despite the headaches of being a midwife to the birth of a new Center, it was all worth it.

"I really enjoyed it — really," said Connery. "And the reason was because it really happened. If we had gone through it all for nothing, I would feel different. But it happened."

"The big thing that has happened downtown, noted Connery, isn't the new bricks. It's a new confidence in the downtown — a confidence demonstrated by merchants who are putting up new signs and putting in new displays for their stores, and by investors who are bringing a host of new stores to Winchester.

"We've got the book store coming in (on Winchester terr.), the two restaurants, the new clothing store on Thompson st., Diane Lewis and Jane Kasarjian's new places, and the office building coming into the old Purity Supreme," noted Connery.

"What we've done with the bricks and all is nice, and I like it," continued Connery. "But I like signed leases a whole lot better."

With the reconstruction of the streets and the merchants' morale completed, the next challenge for the downtown to face is how to make the most out of the new improvements.

"I think the merchants are going to have a lot of new opportunities," said Connery. "They've have 60 to 70 new people coming in when the Purity Office building opens. The night time business from the restaurants is going to help — especially the Christmas trade.

"But each individual merchant is going to have to take advantage of the opportunities," said Connery.

Residents, Merchants Applaud

Winchester Center finally has a whole new look.

Electric street lights illuminate the new brick sidewalks and newly planted trees. New signs are going up on storefronts.

There are suddenly benches to sit and eat ice-cream on during a hot summer night. Even trash has a quaint new place to go — in curly, decorative new garbage receptacles.

In less than two months, a host of empty stores have been rented out. There is a new hope and a new spirit in the town. Merchants are optimistic about the future. Shoppers are strolling on the bricks, pointing out the new changes with pride.

The $650,000 face-lift is almost complete.

Of course, not everyone is enthusiastic about the changes. However, the overwhelming majority of merchants and residents interviewed recently by The Star were thrilled by the new downtown.

• "I think it is wonderful — beyond my wildest expectations. It's a bit of Rodeo dr. come to Winchester. I absolutely love it." — Dorothea Breslin, owner of Dorothea Florist.

• "Who wouldn't like it? It looks great. I'm just relived that it is finally done." — Joseph Polvere, owner of One Or Two Things.

• "I think it makes the town more quaint — like Lexington. It looks a lot better. — Lulu Kermond, student.

• "It's a lot classier." — Rhonda Wozniak, The Mittering Method.

• "I was a real skeptic in the beginning, but now I'm 100 percent behind it. We should have done this decades ago. It's so nice to see the town using the benches and the lights. I hope some of the stores will begin staying open one night a week now, too. I'm grateful that John Connery came along." — Joan Blank, owner, The Praying Mantis.

• "I like it, but I would prefer to see the bricks around the Common, instead of on the sidewalks. I feel it

New Entrees Into Town

One Restaurant Seeks Liquor License, Second To Follow Suit

By DAVE LEECO

The restaurants are coming.

One restauranteur, Louis Manzone, who hopes to start a restaurant on Converse pl., submitted his application for a liquor license to selectmen this week.

And the second entrant in the restaurant scene, Steven Yanoff, is one or two weeks away from completing plans for his Winchester Crossing on Winchester terr., and will soon be making his bid for a liquor license.

Although Yanoff was the first of the two to begin plans for a Winchester restaurant — back in March — Manzone got his proposal together quickly.

Manzone made his first presentation to the selectmen in May, explaining that he duplicate the success of his Needham restaurant, Maximilian's, by putting a Maximilian's into the Converse pl. store now owned and occupied by Wilson's Upholsterers.

Since then, he has signed a lease, put the finishing touches on his interior plans, and decided to re-do the exterior of the building.

This week, Manzone sent a letter to selectmen asking them to grant him one of the three liquor licenses the town can give out. One of the three is already held by Randall's Restaurant on Mt. Vernon st.

Selectmen have set a hearing on the application for Sept. 10.

Maximilian's would be a relaxed, informal restaurant, "classy, but not so formal that people don't feel comfortable coming in in sports clothes and sitting for a couple of hours drinking coffee and eating pastry," Manzone told selectmen in May.

The menu at the Needham version of Maximilian's is laden with rich desserts, ice cream, and all kinds of sandwiches, stuffed with everything from avocados to smoked lamb.

Woburn Loop Eyed For Housing

Preliminary plans for building moderate-income, scattered site housing in town will be presented to state officials this week.

A sub-committee of selectmen and members of the Planning Board and Winchester Housing Authority has been discussing building housing units along the Woburn Loop land and on town-owned sites near the North Reservoir.

The 24-odd housing units would be built in two- and three-family homes, with rents subsidized through the Winchester Housing Authority.

"The town now owns three houses, on Alben st., Reservoir st., and Highland ave., that might be used for moderate-income housing.

But the Woburn Loop land, stretching 100-feet wide from the Center to the Woburn border, now looks like the best place for subsidized housing, town officials feel.

The town is negotiating to purchase the Woburn Loop property. A title search — the last step before the town and the MBTA pass papers on the property — has just been completed on the land.

Those possibilities — especially the Woburn Loop — will be explained to state officials in a meeting between the town sub-committee and the Executive Office of Communities and Development this morning.

A final proposal for state funds will be submitted by Aug. 31.

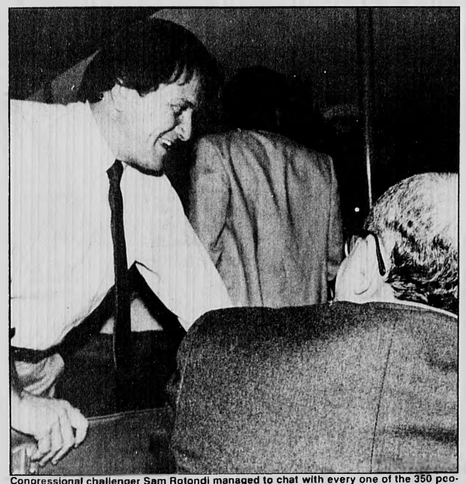

The town has two reasons for moving quickly on housing plans proposed last month by the Winchester Housing Authority.

The first is the town's promise, made more than a year ago, to investigate scattered-site housing as part of the town's Fair Housing Policy.

The second is more practical. The

Markey And Rotondi On The Campaign Trail

Congressional challenger Sam Rotondi managed to chat with every one of the 350 people on a "Support Sam" boat cruise in Boston Harbor last week. (Staff photo by Amy Sweeney)

Rotondi Is On Attack

BY LIZ WILLEN

Sam Rotondi was standing behind a huge banner bearing his name in Revere last week, waving as people drove past him in the thick early morning fog.

"You've got my vote," a man in a station wagon shouted.

Rotondi, who is hoping to defeat incumbent Cong. Edward Markey on Sept. 18, turned to one of his campaign workers and smiled. "Those are the greatest words in the world," he said.

There is nothing Rotondi loves better than campaigning.

When he took a two-day break this summer to vacation on The Cape with his wife and four young children, he found he couldn't relax. "All I could think about was this campaign," he admits.

And Sam Rotondi is the quintessential campaigner.

The former state senator is supremely confident, assertive and animated as he convinces voters that he deserves to be sitting where his opponent is right now — in Congress.

Rotondi is bursting with ideas, energy and attacks on Cong. Edward Markey during a frenetic day of campaigning. From 7:30 a.m., when his

Markey Stresses Record

BY LIZ WILLEN

Campaigning for re-election requires a seemingly endless amount of energy and stamina. But for Cong. Ed Markey, who has been putting in 16-hour days of campaigning when he isn't in Washington this summer, it requires a strong stomach as well.

"It's a good thing that I have a bottomless pit," laughs Markey, in between bites of an Italian cookie. During a jam-packed, food-filled campaign day, people are constantly trying to feed the congressman.

At a morning house party in Winthrop, the hostess keeps piling his plate high with dougnuts, muffins and Greek pastries. He is not allowed to leave the house without a manila envelope stuffed full of fresh peaches and peppers from the garden.

Fragrant Portuguese specialties are placed before him at a Portuguese festival in Woburn. He is served ice-cream cake at a birthday party in Wakefield. A mid-day visit to a Tewksbury home is worth a ham sandwich and a glass of milk.

It's lucky that Markey loves to campaign as much as he loves to eat. And with less than a month left before the Democratic primary, he is going

Victim's Advocate Now Available For Elderly

Older people who are the victims of crimes now have someone to turn to for help.

Ellen Frank is a victim's advocate operating through the Middlesex County District Attorney's Office. She recently addressed volunteers serving on the Elder Service Corps of Minuteman Home Care Corp. (MHCC).

According to Frank, the elderly and children are particularly vulnerable when a crime is committed against them. "Crisis intervention support, counseling and dealing with the aftereffects are important components of the Victim Witness Service Bureau. Many elderly people live alone and can't cope with the knowledge that the criminal may still be at large or with unidentified telephone calls. We try to stand by and be ready to help them through this difficult period."

The service includes acting as a link with the victims throughout each step of the prosecution process.

MHCC is a 16-town agency serving the elderly in the towns of Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Boxborough, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, Harvard, Lexington, Littleton, Lincoln, Maynard, Stow, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

For further information about the volunteer program or other issues concerning the elderly, readers may call the Minuteman Aging Information Center, 83 Hartwell ave., Lexington.

Micro Cookbook Is Now Available On Computer

Are you an adult that feels left out of the computer revolution? Can you kids calculate rocket trajectories in the time it takes you to turn the computer on? Would you rather cook than compute?

Well take heart! "Micro Cookbook" is now at the Winchester Public Library. "Micro Cookbook" is an amazing piece of software based on the premise that adults would rather eat than play computer games all day.

The program provides access to hundreds of recipes in many different ways. If you know what you want you can go right to the "Recipe Index" and put a recipe on the screen by name. If you happen to like cheese you can sort all the recipes with cheese with the push of a button. There is also a "Classification Index" which will allow you to list a certain type of recipe like "Mexican" or desserts."

The program even lets you combine commands so that you can find "meatless Italian" or "French desserts". Or you can find a recipe to make with the ingredients you have available. For example, if you have chicken, tomatoes, and onions, you can type that in and the computer will list those recipes that have those in gredients.

You can even add your own recipes or modify existing ones. If you are having 8 for dinner and the recipe feeds 4, you can enter the number of people and the "Micro Cookbook" will adjust the amounts of the ingredients.

Tournament Winners

Presenting the trophy bearing her name to the winners of the Mildred Gardinor Prunaret Tournament held recently at the Winchester Country Club is Mildred Prunaret (c), a past president of the Women's Golf Assn. of Massachusetts, a former state champion and former member of the U.S. Curtis Cup team. Martha Mooney of Holden Hills (l) and Marie McFadden of Franklin won the Women's Golf Assn. tourney held Aug. 6 to 8. One of the 104 teams playing came in with a 7 under par 67, and local teams participating werre Shirley O'Connor and Jane Welch, and Mary Wilkinson and Georgia Pierce. Mrs. J. Paul Sheeran served as chairman of the tournament.

Poll Officers Needed

The Board of Selectmen and the Office of the Town Clerk have announced that applications are now being accepted from men and women who would like to serve as election officers at the polls for the state Primary on Tuesday, Sept. 18, and the state General Election on Tuesday, Nov. 6.

"The Board of Selectmen will be appointing more than 50 election officers to serve at the town's four polling places this fall," said Town Clerk Carolyn Ward.

Unenrolled (Independent) registered voters as well as Republicans and Democrats are needed.

"A workshop for election officers will be conducted by the town clerk's office early in September so that new people can have some training before the primary and some of our veteran workers can have the opportunity to brush up on the many regulations and procedures governing the elections," said Ward.

For information on salary, duties and hours, interested persons are urged to contact the town clerk as soon as possible.

Villandry And Hurley Are Guest Doubles Champs

By ALEX POPP

In the second Annual Member-Guest Doubles Championships, held last weekend at the Winchester Swim and Tennis Club, Dave Villandry and Neil Hurley won for the second straigth time.

The long-time partners defeated Alex Popp and Bill Wolfe 3-6, 6-4, 6-4 in a very tough and long match.

After nearly two hours of play, the champs broke Popp's serve at 4-5 in the third with excellent returns and a match-ending lob to take the title.

In the semi-finals, Popp and Wolfe defeated Steve Powers and Chris Scanlon 6-4, 6-4 while Villandry and Hurley swept by Steve Brosnan and Marco Cosentino 6-2, 6-1.

Sixteen teams participated in this years men's member-guest event, and it included a consolation round tor first round losers which was won by Vincent Cortina and Paul Carden.

Cortina and Carden posted a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Terry Fuller and John Peterman.

Jack Corf, the tournament director, was pleased with the tournament's second version and is hopeful that this event will become an important one on the local tennis scene.

The tournament also featured a steak cook-out and cocktail party held at the club Saturday evening, coordinated by Club Manager Bob Lynch.

An excellent time was had by all the members and guests and everyone is looking forward to round three next year.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.
New Grapefruit 'Super Pill' Gives Fast Weight Loss
No Dieting - Eat All You Want Pill Does All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. (Special)—An amazing new "super" grapefruit pill has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose at least 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

"Pill Does All the Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise, and NO hunger pangs." It is 100% safe. You simply take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients are so effective they take over and you start losing weight immediately.

Pill Has ALL Daily Vitamins

The powerful and unique combination of ingredients are what make this a "super-pill". It contains highly potent grapefruit concentrate and a diuretic to help eliminate bloat and puffiness. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements.

Contains Japanese 'Glucomannan'

Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "glucomannan", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovery from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public

You can order your supply of these highly successful "super" grapefruit pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail order only) by sending $12 for a 14-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check, or money order to: Citrus Industries, 9903 Santa Monica Bl., Dept. W14, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard, and Amer. Express OK. (Send card number, expiration date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call toll free 1-(800)-862-6262, ext. W14.

Adventure Connection Spends Three Days

Heading For The Hills

"The Old Man in the Mountain," a 3½ hour hike to the top of Mount Washington, and a trek to Arethusa Falls were the three main events of the three-day, two-night camping trip to the White Mountains with The Adventure Connection, a group for youths in grades 7-12 organized by the Winchester Recreation Dept.

"The Old Man in the Mountain" was the initial destination for the group of nine on Monday morning. After a break for lunch and a thorough tour of the mountain area, the group continued onto the Beech Hill Campground to set camp.

The counselors discovered immediately that these 14- and 15-year-olds were not to be outdone by their counselors, Mary Willcox, Jil Gediman, and Frank Muggia, as they hurriedly set up their tents, leaving plenty of time to go for a long swim at Echo Lake — accompanied by enough screaming by John Hirschhorn, Peter Byrne, and Leigh McGrath so that the fact the Winchester Recreation Dept. had arrived was echoed throughout the lake for everyone.

Back at camp everyone quickly searched out their mess kits and eagerly awaited the serving of Muggia's infamous spaghetti and sauce. Kevin Cummings was unanimously elected dishwasher, a foreshadowing of his job for the entire trip, as Willcox handed him a few pots and a soapy sponge and faced him in the direction of the water.

These kids were spunky and bedtime did not arrive with the setting of the sun. The rest of the night was filled with all sorts of games including two hours of 'flashlight capture the flag'. Unfortunately Muggia was on the losing team and can still be heard complaining, "I know the other team cheats."

John Theuer tries sliding down a line as part of the Adventure Week mini-camp visit to Project Growth Outdoors in Essex.

The hikers arose early the next morning and were on Mount Washington by 9:30. Led by speed demons Hirschhorn, Mike Jordon, and Jason Upper, the mountain climbers took a break at The Lake in the Clouds Hut and then cruised on to the summit, completing the entire trail in a total of quick three and a half hours.

Jordon's only comment was, "I could have made it in two." Although everyone had exerted themselves all day, a rematch of capture the flag was on everyone's minds (yes, Frank still lost). Byrne then treated everyone with his popcorn expertise.

And to finalize the evening, Jordon and Hirschhorn brought out creepy Halloween masks to scare everyone. Shaking, everyone went to bed.

On Wednesday, after many blueberry pancakes, the group looking a bit tired from the previous day's journey, hiked to Arethusa Falls.

Everyone concluded that the trip was a great success and the beautiful White Mountains were well worth their time and effort.

At Cross St. Project

Developer Wants Three Buildings

A medical-office-building developer wants to triple the size of the project now under construction on Cross st.

Developer William Schofield has already finished one medical building at 228 Cross st., a quarter-mile from Winchester Hospital.

Now, he wants to complete his original intention of putting three buildings, linked by glassed-in walkways and set in a horse-shoe shape, on the site.

Schofield went to the Board of Appeal this week for site plan review on the project — a review that wasn't required on the first building, but became necessary after Town Meeting changed the zoning by-laws this spring.

Schofield told the Board of Selectmen Monday night that he wasn't making any changes to the original plans of John Lane, who sold the development to Schofield last year.

The only changes, he noted, where for the better.

"I can honestly say that I took John Lane's plan and pumped $50 to $100,000 more into the development," said Schofield. "And I dropped the price to make it work."

Schofield has also done extensive landscaping to the site — something that Alan Macdonald noted "was a major point of discussion" at the Town Meeting that rezoned the site.

Area residents' main concern about the rezoning — which allowed access from the residential zone in the front of the site to the industrial land in the rear — was that they didn't want to stare at a barren office park.

Schofield noted that he waited to ask for the Board of Appeal's verdict until the landscaping was completed, so he could show the quality of his project.

"I did $15,000 worth of landscaping there," said Schofield. "I have an in-ground irrigation system, trees, shrubs. The greatest victory for me so far was when I took the chairman of the Planning Board there, and he said, 'This is pretty.'"

If Schofield wins the Board of Appeal approval (due in 30 days) he will start construction this fall, he said. "By spring you'll see three buildings there," he promised.

The newly completed first building is one-quarter full, Schofield noted, and he has an offer from a group of doctors to take over the whole second building.

Deadline Near For Voter Registration

On Sept. 18, Winchester voters will be flocking to the polls to cast votes in many crucial races across the state. There are over 100 seats in the Massachusetts House and Senate being fought for, a hotly contested congressional seat up for grabs, and the seat being vacated by Sen. Paul Tsongas to be filled.

But 32 percent of all the people who could vote in this fall's elections are not even registered to vote.

The Town Clerk's office has announced additional voter registration hours scheduled in the remaining days before the close of registration for this fall's state Primary on Sept. 18.

The final day for registering to vote in the Primary is Tuesday, Aug. 21, and on that day, registration hours in the office of the Town Clerk at Town Hall will be from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Special registration hours are also scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 18, from noon to 8 p.m.

"The deadline to register to vote is now only one week away," said Secretary of State Michael J. Connolly, as he announced the eight day countdown to the close of registration on August 21. "There are currently 1.3 million eligible voters in Massachusetts who remain unregistered. That is unacceptable in an election year of such great importance. That many unregistered people is not only shameful, it is dangerous...as small voter turnout means that only those with a personal stake in an election will vote. A larger turnout opens up the democratic process by encouraging those voters to participate who simply want to see the best possible officeholders elected."

The voter registration process is simple, quick, and accessible. Any citizen of the United States who is a Winchester resident and who will be 18 years old by the next election day may register at Town Hall between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, or during the special evening and Saturday sessions.

Tuesday, Aug. 21, is also the last day to change party enrollment. All registered voters, whether they are enrolled as Democrats or Republicans or are unenrolled (Independent), may participate in the state Primary; however, unless they change their enrollment by the Aug. 21 deadline voters are reminded that Democrats and Republicans may only request the ballot of their respective party. Independent voters may request either ballot by declaring their party choice at the polls.

Additional information on the voter registration process may be obtained by calling the Town Clerk's office.

Weight Control Workshop Will Be Offered At Hospital

A 10-week Weight Control Workshop will be offered by New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham beginning Wednesday, Sept. 5. Under the direction of a registered dietitian, the course runs from 7 to 9 p.m. in the hospital cafeteria.

This unique program developed by the professionals at NEMH has enjoyed a remarkable success rate. It is designed to help you understand why you are overweight and teach you the methods of reaching and maintaining ideal weights. Health screening, including a computerized health appraisal, an individualized diet and exercise suggestions will be given to each participant.

The teaching team for the workshop includes a physician, physical therapist, psychologist as well as the registered dietitian. Course fee is $70. For additional information or to register call the Health Education department at New England Memorial Hospital.

KITCHEN, BATH & HOME INTERIOR IDEAS
Custom and Stock Cabinets Differ: Here's How Brought To You By Frank Drake, C.K.D.

Why do some cabinets cost two or three times more than others of the same size and type? It's a common question and one that deserves an answer. But it happens that the answer is an easy one.

Generally, custom cabinets cost more than stock cabinets, although they often are made in similar factories. But stock cabinets are made in quantity to be stocked in warehouses until sold. Custom cabinets are not made until your kitchen has been designed and sold, so your cabinets are made specifically for your kitchen.

Many stock cabinets are very good indeed. But custom cabinets offer better woods, better construction, better joinery, better hinges, better drawer slides, better finishes, plus many more choices in sizes, types and interior convenience accessories.

The many added choices in sizes and types of cabinets mean your kitchen can be fitted perfectly into its space.

And all of those "betters" can be translated into more money, because they mean better quality.

We can show you differences easier than we can tell you. We carry lines we can be proud of, because they mean real value for the money.

Stop in and see us soon.

To Help Care For The Terminally Ill

Hospital Links Efforts With Hospice

Hospice Care and the Choate-Symmes Health Services have linked efforts to care for dying patients and their families in Winchester.

The two health care organizations have signed a contract, under which Choate-Symmes will make available to Hospice Care of Arlington two semi-private rooms at Symmes Hospital for hospice patients who need hospitalization.

According to Hospice Care Administrative Director Edward Dolan, Symmes is the first hospital in the area to provide beds to a Hospice group. "I am excited about this," Dolan said. "It's something new, and will be a significant benefit to our patients."

Hospice Care, which serves Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Winchester and Woburn, is a program which helps care for the terminally ill and their families.

A team of physicians, nurses, social workers and volunteers work to help the patient reduce the emotional and physical pain of dying, and helps the patient and his family maintain as normal a life as possible.

One of the major goals of the program is to keep patients in the home environment as long as possible. A basic tenet of Hospice Care is that even when there is little expectation of a cure, the patient always has a right to care. Patients may be referred to Hospice Care by their doctor, family members or hospital staff.

They become a part of the program if their life expectancy is approximately six months. While many of Hospice Care's clients are cancer patients, Hospice Care serves anyone who is terminally ill.

Under the new agreement, Symmes Hospital will be responsible for the overall care of the patient, including admission to the hospital and primary nursing care. The patient's own physician will have temporary privileges to admit and care for the hospice patient.

Symmes hospital will waive routine admission tests, ensure that its staff consults with the Hospice Care staff when needed, and allow 24-hour access for the patient's family.

Symmes will allow members of the Hospice team to attend, counsel, and serve Hospice patients who are in-patients under this agreement, Dolan explained.

Hospice Care staff will help the hospital staff establish an appropriate patient care plan, to follow through on the home care plan. In addition to providing in-service training for the Symmes staff, Hospice Care will organize weekly team meetings to review the patient's care, and will provide monthly support group sessions for the hospital staff. The Hospice Care staff will continue to visit and counsel the patient and the family during hospitalization.

The agreement between Hospice Care and Choate-Symmes helps Hospice move closer to Medicare certification. Under legislation passed by Congress in 1982, those receiving hospice care can be covered by Medicare. To qualify for Medicare payment, the hospice provider must deliver comprehensive services and deliver them themselves, Dolan said.

Dolan is optimistic about the collaborative efforts of Hospice Care and Choate Symmes. He said it is possible Medicare-coverage eligibility will be achieved by the end of the year.

A Decade At The Helm

Groux Looks Back At Town Manager Years

By DAVE LEECO

Most people who dealt with Town Hall during the past nine years only saw the cool, granite facade of Town Manager Thomas Groux.

The voice never rose above a calm, considered inflection. Even when residents were screaming or selectmen were bickering, Groux never lost his cool.

As Selectman Wade Welch noted, the only way to tell Groux was mad was when "the muscles in the back of his neck got tight."

But every once in awhile, the icy facade cracked. And often, a sense of humor shone through.

Like the time he went into a Finance Committee budget-cutting session carrying a hatchet.

Or the time he included, on the annual budget's page for out of state travel, a cartoon reading, "The fastest solution to local government problems: Leave town."

Or, the time he spent an entire selectmen's meeting busily taking notes that turned out to be a three-page list of every cliche the selectmen had uttered during the meeting.

Tom Groux was a complex man in a complex job.

And his job really doesn't seem to have changed that much since he left the position of Winchester Town Manager last month and took on the title of Dean of Administration for Middlesex Community College.

He's concerned with traffic (from Middlesex's Burlington Campus), still oversees a police department, public works crew and budgets, and still chases after state grants (for Middlesex's new North Campus).

"So far, I'm finding it really interesting," said Groux of his new post. "I'm finding it has a good deal of variety, which I hadn't expected and which I like."

There was certainly variety to Groux's job in Winchester Town Hall for 9½ years.

Budget matters were his main concern, true. And he does point with pride to the changes he made in the way Winchester allocated its money — changes that allowed him to keep the budget in line for his tenure.

But he also had a hand in construction projects like the DPW building, the sewer rehabilitation, the new police station and the downtown project.

And he had to play a variety of roles — a politician, defending budgets at Town Meeting; a mediator, interjecting a calm voice during heated debates between selectmen; a hard-liner, shaking up the organization of the town departments; and a listener, hearing out the complaints of citizens.

And in everything he did, Groux felt, he had to be the best.

"In a way it was easy to be the first town manager, in the sense that there were no standards, no other person, to measure me against," said Groux. "Except that the town had very high standards for everything.

"In that way, it was very difficult coming into Winchester, because the town expects quality performance in everything — budgeting, finances, tax collection, teaching, snow plowing," continued Groux. "I couldn't afford to let down."

Groux credits his first Board of Selectmen for teaching him how to meet Winchester's standards.

"They taught me more about, not just Winchester, but about good government, good ethics, and good style," said Groux. "They taught me to have respect for every citizen, no matter how valid or invalid their concern."

Besides meeting those standards in his first years, Groux had to deal with changing the way Winchester's government did business.

From a collection of nearly independent town departments, all under control of independent elected boards, Groux had to mold a town organization run by one man, himself, and one board, the Board of Selectmen.

"I was new, an outsider, coming into a situation where, for instance, you had 70 percent of the DPW employees reporting elected boards that were abolished," said Groux. "The Cemetery Dept., the Water and Sewer Dept., the Park Dept., were all dealt with by different standards.

"I had to set one standard of performance for everybody," continued Groux. "And that caused a great deal of irritation in the early years."

The salve for that irritation was talk.

"Sometimes people were upset because they weren't consulted, so you listened," said Groux. "And sometimes, you might find out it was something completely different that was really bugging them. So you'd listen and find out what was really wrong.

"That may have been something I overlooked too much," said Groux. "You get hung up in Town Hall. I should have gotten out more."

That's one of the few things Groux overlooked.

He was always prepared for debates, selectmen's meetings or interviews. Even chatting about Middlesex's new budget, he immediately pulls out a thick, three-ring notebook to illustrate his point.

Groux hasn't gotten away from items like budgets in his new position. But he has gotten away from the grind of the weekly selectmen's meeting.

And for now, he's just savoring that freedom.

"There've been four Monday nights now when I haven't been working," said Groux. "I just sat on my back porch, and got aquainted with how to spend a Monday night."

Insects Invade The Indoors

By TERRY MAROTTA

I've become interested in bugs lately.

Frankly, I've had no choice in the matter. The bugs have become interested in me. At least 200 separate species of them are living in my house.

The place is being painted this summer, see, and fitted out with new combination storm windows. So the screens are all down. Even the metal tracks that once held them in place are gone. They've all been pried or twisted off by the jolly crew of workmen, and bounced gaily onto the sidewalks far below.

The result is, we've brought the outdoors in this summer. Our rooms buzz and hum with the bustle and commerce of a whole civilization of insects. There's more air traffic through my upstairs than Logan sees in a week.

Houseflies as large as helicopters bumble through the bedrooms, lighting and then lifting off, lighting and then lifting off. Mosquitoes wend their whining way, doing loops and rolls, buzzing their victims before finally coming in for the kill. Even Junebugs can be seen taking a slow zoom around the living room late at night, droning like prop planes from the dawn of aviation.

Now I used to be afraid of bugs in the old days. I didn't understand them, I guess, and so, like most humans, I responded with fear and aversion.

I'd never liked ants, for example; their sheer numbers seemed to terrify me. There was a time when I was 10 or so that the neighborhood sadist showed me how to melt ants, by training a magnifying glass on them in a strong sun. I knew it was wrong to do this, but there was something so awful about how they always swarmed, like moving jimmies, on the ice cream dropped from your cone onto the ground.

And I hated moths too, with their kamikaze attacks on my flashlight at summer camp. I recall one long August night when I went hand-to-hand with this moth who kept not only dive-bombing my reading material, but flying inside my pajamas as well. There's nothing in this world worse than feeling the flutter of little wings disappearing up your pant leg.

But that was then and this is now. A month ago, I would have been horrified at the thought of insects moving into anybody's domicile. I wouldn't have wanted to live next door to myself even, if I'd known I'd be running a bug hotel.

I don't feel that way so much anymore, I guess because I've come to know them better.

I've met bugs with six legs and four wings; with eight legs and no wings. Some wear their legs long and peer out at the world with eyes like bicycle reflectors. Others have no legs at all that I can see, though it may be that they retract them in flight, like the landing gear on an airplane.

Some bugs like to help me read at night, circling slowly around my book and chanting. Some keep me gamely engaged in contests, the mosquitoes especially; how much of my blood will they draw, with those long and pointy hypodermics they have, before I slap them smartly into insect heaven? How much will they drink before they explode of their own gluttony, like the shark in the most recent Jaws movie?

There's no end, it seems, to the kind of fun we can have together. Bugs are pert and chatty. And above all, it's been my pleasure to learn, they're human too.

How do I know this? I fell asleep watching TV the other night, and woke an hour and a half later. The "Tonight Show" was on: Joan Rivers was doing the monologue; and 2000 insects covered the screen. They kissed her all over; they hummed when she said, "Can we talk?"; they applauded when she told her Liz Taylor jokes.

They're like us after all, I thought, and here I've been, screening them out all my life. We sat then, in companionable silence, me and m' bugfriends.

Two thousand-and-one of us - glued to the set.

Punch

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Although more than 8000 bills were filed for consideration during the 1984 session, only a small percentage ever make it through the lengthy and complicated legislative process of approval by both the House and Senate and end up being signed by Gov. Dukakis. Even fewer are approved on roll call votes in both branches.

This week's report updates action on six key bills and records local legislators' votes on these measures which were approved by roll call votes in both branches. The House and Senate continue to meet informally and there are no formal sessions planned until after the September primary. Some legislators, however, are talking about trying to force the legislature back into session to act on several vetoes by Gov. Dukakis.

LOCAL AID (H 5443) — Approved by House 137-0, Senate 26-8 on Feb. 13, were resolutions declaring the intent of the legislature to provide no less than $159.5 million in additional local aid to cities and towns in fiscal 1985. The amount of new local aid in the fiscal 1985 budget later passed by the House and Senate exceeded the figure in the resolutions and was well over $200 million. The resolutions are not a proposed law and therefore did not need Governor Dukakis' signature.

A "Yea" vote is for the resolutions. A "Nay" vote is against them.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes. Sen. Richard Kraus voted yes.

ABORTION (H 673) — Approved by a joint constitutional convention 120-67 (House approved 101-50, Senate approved 19-17), was a proposed constitutional amendment stating "no provision of the Constitution shall prevent the general court from regulating or prohibiting abortion unless prohibited by the U.S. Constitution, nor shall any provision of the Constitution require public or private funding of abortion, or the provision of services or facilities therefor, beyond that required by the United States Constitution. The provisions of this article shall not apply to abortions required to prevent the death of the mother."

The anti-abortion amendment must be approved by the 1985-1986 legislature and would then go on the 1986 ballot for voter consideration. If approved by the voters, it would become a part of the state constitution. The proposed constitutional amendment does not need Governor Dukakis' signature.

A "Yea" vote is for the proposed amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes. Kraus noted no.

FISCAL 1985 BUDGET (H 5858) — Approved by House 133-21, Senate 28-3, and signed by Gov. Dukakis on July 14 was the compromise version of the long awaited $8.1 billion fiscal 1985 budget. Dukakis signed the bill, which is 10 percent higher than the fiscal 1984 package, only after vetoing two key sections. He eliminated a $75 million reserve to finance a possible future tax cut and also axed $31.6 million in new local aid to cities and towns which would have been distributed by giving each community $35 for each school aged child. He also vetoed several other sections totalling $25 million.

A "Yea" vote is for the budget. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes. Kraus voted yes.

CAPITAL OUTLAY (H 5582) — Approved by House 145-1, Senate 25-2, and signed by Gov. Dukakis on July 14 was an $8.5 million capital outlay budget. Provisions include $3.2 million for state park acquisition and a section allowing the Secretary of Administration and Finance to determine the useful life of items whose costs may be bonded in the budget. The budget prohibits bonding of any furnishings or equipment with a useful life of less than seven years. The package also contains what supporters called "corrective legislation" relating to the fiscal 1984 capital outlay budget.

A "Yea" vote is for the budget. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes. Kraus voted yes.

SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET (H 6081) — Approved by House 123-19, Senate 22-7, and signed by Gov. Dukakis on July 11, was a $93 million fiscal 1984 supplemental budget. Before signing it, Gov. Dukakis vetoed a section providing an increase of $200 in the personal exemption for all taxpayers, a $500 hike in the personal exemption for non-wage earning spouses and future increases in the exemption for non-wage earning spouses until it reaches the level of wage earning spouses in 1988. He also axed a section eliminating the 10.7 percent tax on a portion of unearned income for persons over 65.

A "Yea" vote is for the budget. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes. Kraus voted yes.

TRANSPORTATION BUILDING (H 5999) — Approved by House 90-50, Senate 18-11, was the bill authorizing the private Theatre District Limited Partnership to lease floor space for up to 36 years in the Park Square Transportation Building. The lengthy bill allows the partnership to rent space to retailers and restaurants and guarantees certain minimum levels of rent to be paid to the state including $50,000 annually for the first five years.

As of Thursday, July 19, Gov. Dukakis had not yet signed or vetoed the bill.

Saltmarsh voted yes. Kraus voted yes.

The House and Senate are still meeting in informal session and there were no roll calls last week. While far fewer bills are brought to a roll call vote in the Senate than in the House, during the first seven months of the 1984 session there were several key bills defeated on roll call votes in the Senate.

This week's report reviews local senators' votes on six key bills rejected in the upper chamber on roll call votes. Most of these measures will be refiled for consideration in the 1985 session.

DRUGS AND BAIL(S 250)- Senate, on a 19-19 tie vote, defeated a bill denying bail to anyone charged with possession of illegal drugs with a street value of more than $25,000.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill denying bail. A "Nay" vote is against the bill.

Sen. Richard Kraus voted no.

TENANTS(S 718)- Senate 19-18, barely defeated a lengthy bill requiring "just cause" for termination of tenancies by a landlord. "Just cause," according to the bill, includes a tenant failing to pay rent, continuing to disturb the peace, using the apartment for illegal activities, violating terms of the lease, refusing to allow the owner reasonable access, or refusing to pay a reasonable rent hike.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

OPTOMETRISTS(H 1060)- Senate 24-14, tabled a bill allowing optometrists to use certain drugs and perform tests, previously reserved for ophthalmologists, in diagnosing and examining a patient's eyes.

A "Yea" vote is for tabling the bill. A "Nay" vote is against tabling.

Kraus voted no.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Minister Thanks Teens For Alerting Fire Dept. About Steeple Fire

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

About nine years ago Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church found it necessary to install a burglar and fire alarm system because teenagers were sneaking into the building at night. Candles, matches, cigarette butts were found in the various sections of the steeple. The danger of fire, the safety of persons and property were clearly a risk.

Last week when the church's steeple caught fire due to some work being done on the steeple roof, it was two teenagers who happened to be passing by, saw the flames and rang the call box on the street corner. The responsible action of these two, Jay Stewart and Will Hunter, prevented serious damage; and it was so quick that the Fire Dept. was on the scene as the church's alarm system sounded the alarm.

Praise must also go to the Fire Dept. Contrary to the reports in The Star last week, the professional action of the firemen prevented water and smoke damage to the lower areas of the steeple and sanctuary. In fact, worshippers who came to church two days later could not tell that there had even been a fire, so careful had the firemen been in extinguishing the blaze.

So our gratitude to two responsible young people and to Winchester's skilled Fire Dept. Without either of these, damage to our beautiful building would have been considerably more extensive.

Sincerely,
David A. Purdy

Resident Praises Connery For Improving The Winchester Center

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I compliment Economic Development Coordinator John Connery for the excellent job he has done for Winchester during the last three years.

The downtown area has never looked so good and I am sure, when completed, will be an excellent and exciting place to visit.

It is obvious, "you can't please all the people all the time." I would expect the selectmen to realize this fact and support the needed downtown improvements.

I would like to see John Connery stay for another three years and continue his fine work. We need many more improvements, planning, money, insight and accomplishments if we are to reach Winchester's potential.

Sincerely,
Paul M. Perry

To the surprise of some people, and the chagrin of others the Japanese Olympic baseball team beat out the Americans for the gold medal in the first ever baseball competition in the summer games

The Japanese victory indicates that baseball, like Mom and Apple Pie, is not enjoyed exclusively in America. Rather, baseball has come of age in the world, and perhaps someday the World Series will reflect what its name implies.

But back in hometown USA, baseball remains an American institution — a summertime tradition. And Winchester is no exception

The lure of the diamond and drama of the championship season continue to attract an increasing proportion of Winchester's youth to the game despite a growing popularity of other summertime sports. Yet, were it not for the volunteers of the Youth Baseball and Softball program in town, organized baseball would probably not exist outside of the high school

Some 250 town residents volunteer their time, and often their money. Most decide to volunteer because they have a child in the program, others simply because they enjoy baseball and working with kids. Many of the volunteers stay with the program long after their children have grown beyond the age group able to participate

George Parker has just completed his 18th season with the program, more than any other Youth Baseball volunteer. He initially got involved because his son wanted to play. As a team manager, Parker says that he has remained with the program because he enjoys working with the kids in addition to being a fan of the game

William Morton, who ended his ten-year-reign as president of the program last year, says that he first became interested in the program mainly to help out around the town. And when his son reached the eligible age of six, Morton followed him through each of the five leagues in the program

Morton says that he receives a lot of satisfaction from working with young people. But he credits his ability to have enjoyed being president to the other individuals who support the program

"The difference between having to work awful hard and having a job that is quite easily handled is having a good group of people around you," says Morton. "That is something we were able to accomplish all the years I was president."

Robert Nutile, a lifetime resident of Winchester, has been a coach for the program for the past 13 years. He also played on Youth Baseball teams as a youngster

Nutile feels that Morton, during his tenure as president, changed the character of the entire program by raising the competitive level for all teams in each league without sacrificing the fundamental purpose of providing "recreation." George Parker concurs with Nutile and adds that 98 percent of the kids who want to play can find a place on one team or another.

Morton says that for the last four years, the goal of the board of directors has been to provide a combination of competitive and not so competitive leagues, especially for the younger kids. "It's geared so that as a child gets older, he has an alternative to playing in a competitive league and can stay in a more learning atmosphere," Morton explains.

"The interesting thing I've found in my years of experience is that you will always find that as you get up to the regulations size diamond, some of the boys who never played in the competitive league turn out to be good, or sometimes even the excellent athletes in the high school in baseball," says Morton.

"A lot of it has to do with how a child grows, how he develops his coordination," says Morton. "It depends on his own mind ... deciding for himself whether he likes it and wants to go on.

Nutile feels that the increased intensity of some of the leagues will lead to improved baseball teams at the high school level. Nutile's team, which he has coached for the past five years, boasts a record of 56 and 2.

Perhaps the most significant change to occur in Youth Baseball is the inclusion of a girls' softball league two years ago. Girls are encouraged to play on the baseball teams and there are some who do, particularly among the younger kids.

Nutile says that among the older kids, in the 10- to 12-year old age group, the girls could play, but don't. He thinks one reason the girls don't play is that they haven't been given the same opportunities to learn and develop basic skills as the boys have been. He says that whereas the boys have been playing since they were six and seven, the girls tend to start at an older age.

Still, Nutile feels that the girls program today is where the boys baseball was in the 1950s. He doesn't doubt that some years down the road, the girls will be competing at the same level as the boys. Moreover, he wouldn't be surprised if someday there were women playing professional baseball.

The devotion of the Youth Baseball volunteers to the kids who play ball is typified by Nutile when he says that he isn't involved for himself. "I'm not looking for anything; I'm not a frustrated athlete," says Nutile. "I don't know why I do it, but it keeps me active and away from the refrigerator. The kids are great, they're fantastic, they're like my own. I guess I just love it."

Winchester will always have its Moms and its taste for Apple Pie, and thanks to Youth Baseball, the town will also always have the third part of that great American trio of traditions: baseball.

Winchester's Own Gong Show

At the Recreation Dept.'s Gong Show last week, the best skit was declared to be "Twisted Students," by Kevin and Michael Queenan, Frank Perrone and Lisa Carter. In the skit, Kevin Queenan plays guitar, then puts a gun to the head of his teacher. Michael Queenan continued the action with his dance. One of those who wasn t so successful in the show was Stephen Griecci, who tried an impression of Tina Turner before getting gonged. (Photos by John Pawlick)

For the finest quality drycleaning of all types of garments, try Utopia Cleaners.

For more than 23 years, Utopia Cleaners, located at 40 Park ave., Arlington, has taken care of the dry-cleaning needs of the people of Arlington and surrounding towns.

Owners Angie and Stan Kritsepis are perfectionists who make sure every drycleaned garment or laundered and pressed shirt that leaves Utopia Cleaners is done right.

"We make sure everything we do is perfect, and we will re-do a garment before it leaves the shop to be sure the customer is satisfied," explains Angie. "We stress quality not necessarily price."

The quality at Utopia Cleaners can best be reflected by the customers themselves — some have patronized Utopia Cleaners for 23 years and have shared their satisfaction with friends. The result has been ever-growing clientele at Utopia from word of mouth advertising.

In addition to the meticulous attention Utopia devotes to drycleaning, Utopia also specializes in cleaning and pressing shirts, making sure they, too, are done perfectly.

Other specialty areas include silk, suede, leather, and down coats. "Our drycleaning specialist Stan has more than 15 years of experience with these delicate fabrics," Angie explains. "He's the best in the area."

Utopia cleaners also offers storage of all types of garments and will clean and preserve wedding gowns and store them in air-tight boxes.

Utopia Cleaners also does alterations on all types of garments. "Our tailor has 25 years of experience with all types of men's and women's garments," Angie adds. "We can also alter something in 24 hours if necessary."

In addition to top-notch quality and friendly service, Utopia Cleaners also offers plenty of parking for its customers.

"Our slogan is: once you try us, you will never leave," Angie explains. And, with the percentage of repeat customers, number of longtime satisfied patrons, and number of new customers who hear about the quality at Utopia from friends, it would seem Angie's boast is right on the money.

For the finest quality drycleaning of all types of garments from silk to suede and leather, or for wedding gown storage, cleaning and preservation, or alterations on any type of garment, bring your garment to Utopia Cleaners at 40 Park ave., Arlington like so many others have for more than 20 years.

Utopia Cleaners is open Monday through Friday 7-6:30, Saturdays, 7-5:30.

may be hazardous, especially to the elderly. But aside from that, I like it. We had do do something. I hope this will bring some more stores here so that there will be something to come downtown for." — Marjorie Lapoint, Taft dr.

• "It's very, very nice. I was away, so I didn't know all this was coming. I was shocked when I saw those lamps and those benches. It's very tasteful. I think it really goes with the town. Now, I'd like to see them bring Filene's back." — Jean Garvey, Washington st.

• "It's awesome. I just wish we had a Newbury Comics." — Levin Yilmaz, student.

• "I don't like it. It's too much like Harvard Square. And the lights are too bright. We're being blinded by the lights." — Neil Cullen, Forest st.

• "It brings a quality atmosphere to the town. I'm very happy about it." — Kevin Foley, owner of the Locatelli Trust building in the Center.

• "I like the lights, but it doesn't really make that much of a difference to me over all." Deborah Cogan, Winchester Drug.

• "I don't like it at all. I think it looks funny. It doesn't look right " — Mary Ellen Flynn, student.

• "People said the downtown needed a softening, and that's what we gave it. For so long, we kept hearing, 'Why can't we be more like Lexington?' Well, now we are. It's a lot more aesthetically pleasing." — Richard Malcolm, president of the Chamber of Commerce and owner of Winchester Jewelers Ltd.

• "It gives the town a certain flavor, but there wasn't much they could do. We need a better attitude towards the center. I mean, the sidewalks might look impressive, but we need a winning shops as well." — Robert Mario, Vision Care.

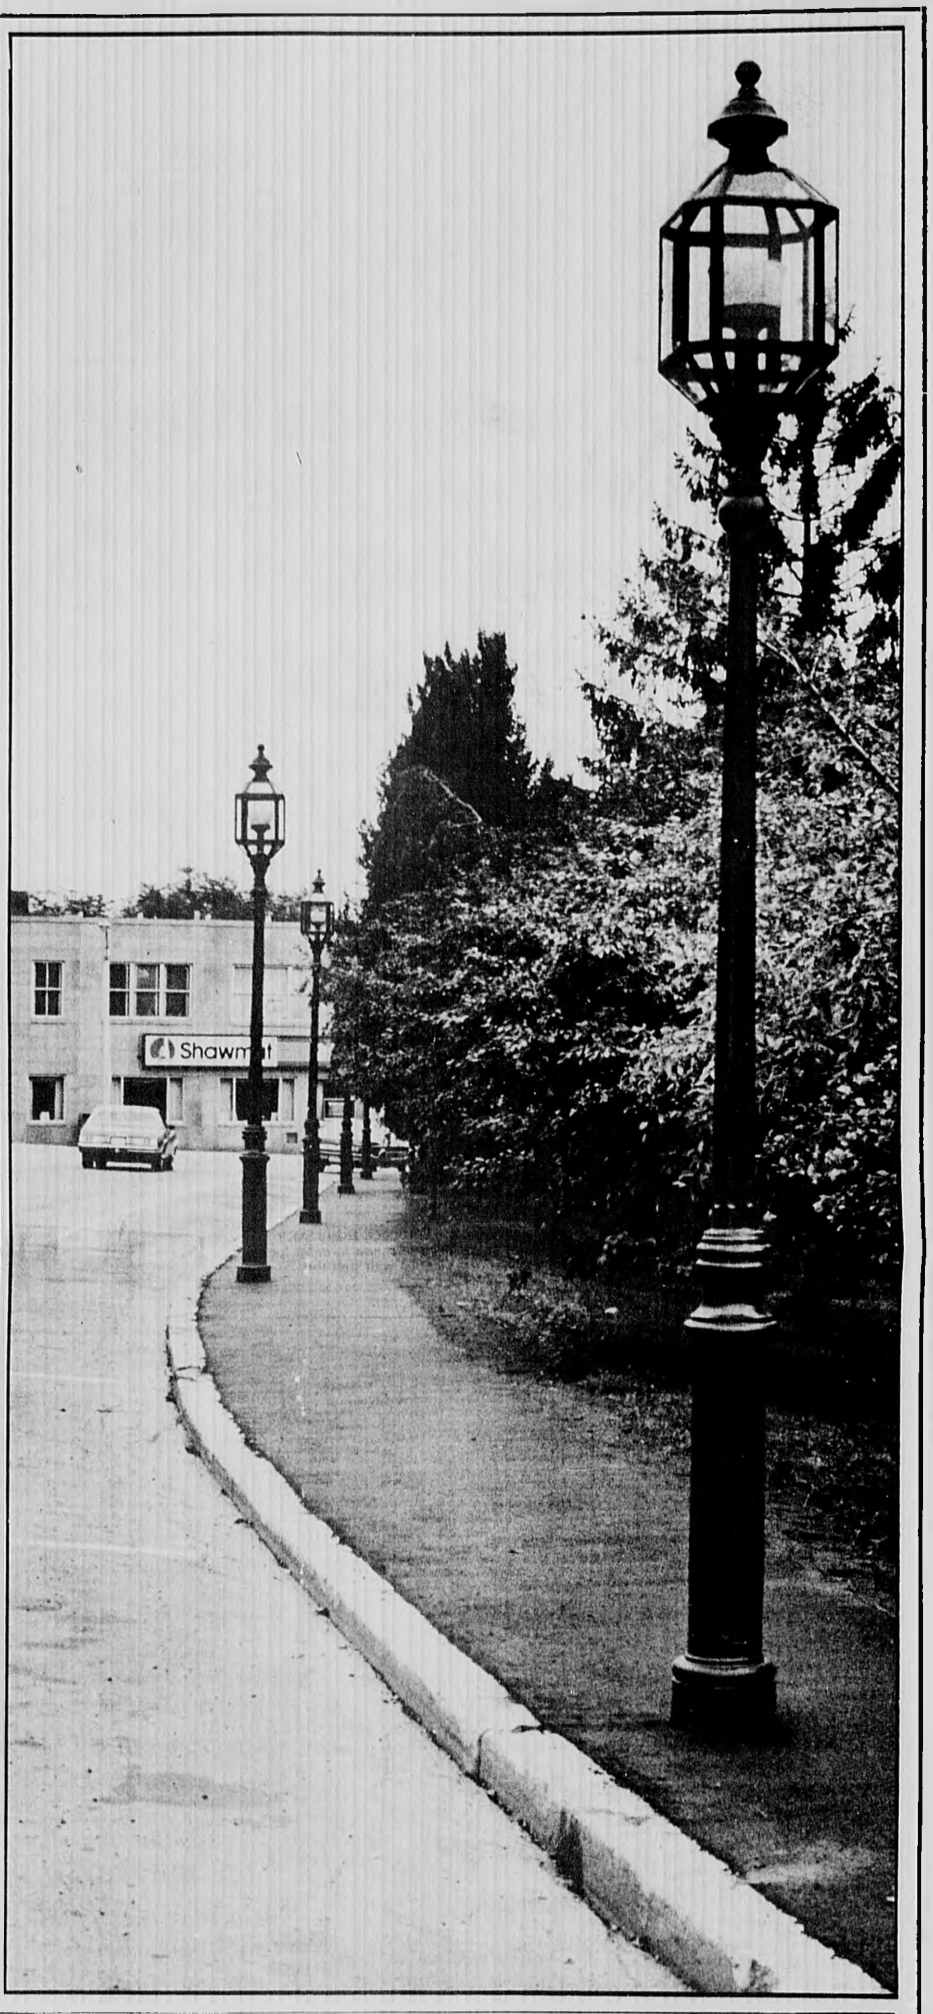

• "I'm ecstatic. It's about time Winchester Center had a facelift. I have a few reservations about the lighting, but I think I'll wait a bit on those." — Police Chief John McHugh

• "It looks nice, but it doesn't improve the shops. I'd like to see some more clothing shops in town." — Kay Durante, police secretary.

• "It's the old-fashioned look. Wonderful. — Jane Wynn, The Mitterling Method.

STRING OF LIGHTS — Instead of saying they don't like the brick sidewalks downtown, some of the center project's critics have begun saying their aren't enough bricks — that Church st. along the Common should have been repaved. Yet the downtown project did put a string of lights along Winchester's centerpiece, and replaced the cracked and pitted macadam sidewalk along the Common with fresh macadam.

"They've got to make the storefronts look better, make their signs look better.

"We've got a beautiful new store from Diane Lewis, we've always had a beautiful store from Joan Blank in Praying Mantis," continued Connery. "What she (Blank) has done is an excellent example of what you can do with good signs and good storefronts.

Some landlords have already started to promote improvements in the downtown, Connery noted.

Kevin Foley, the landlord of the Locatelli Trust building which covers much of Main and Thompson sts., has started a program to help his tenants pay for new, carved, wooden signs.

"He realizes it's a plus to his building, as well as helping the look of the downtown," noted Connery.

But that kind of cooperation isn't unexpected. The entire downtown reconstruction project required that people pull together.

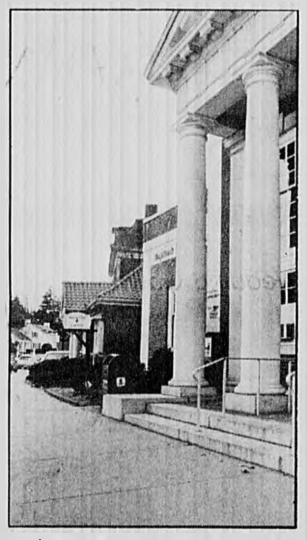

"All the people I worked with — the Economic Development Committee, the selectmen, the Planning Board — I always felt I had a lot of local support," said Connery.

And a good deal of the credit for the success of the downtown project goes to a local resident, Fred DeSimone, whose B&J Development Co. was put in charge of the work

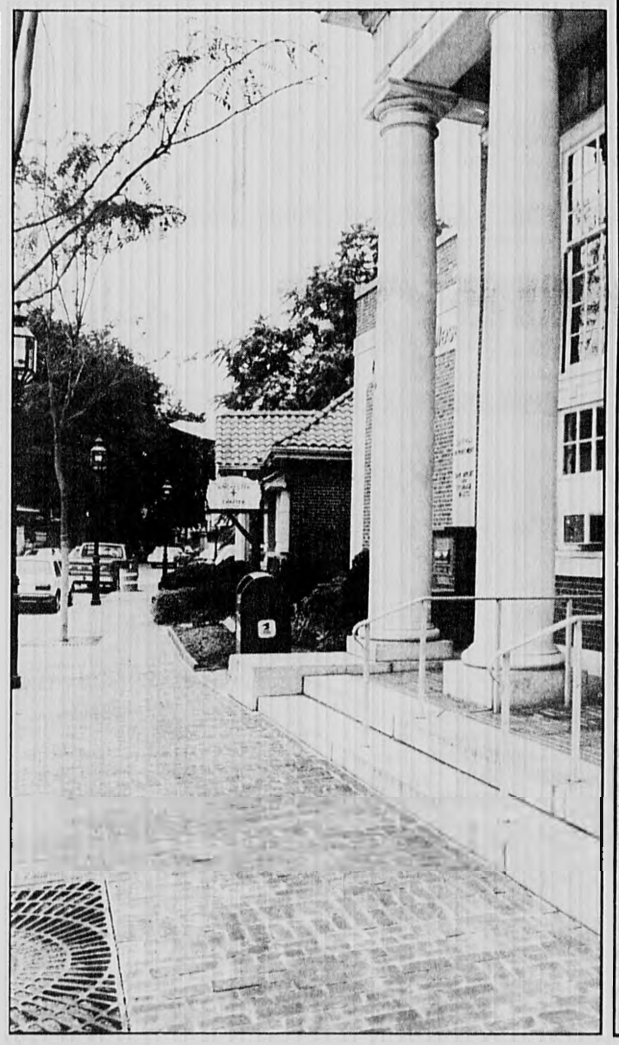

DeSimone personally supervised the downtown work, making spot checks every evening and meeting with Connery and architect Paul Lu every week. As a resident, he wanted to make sure his neighbors would have no complaints.

"I can't say enough about Fred, and on the day-to-day work, about John Santucci, a heck of an efficient project manager," said Connery. "The merchants appreciated them so much, by the end they were buying the workers coffee."

Now, it is up to others to put an effort into the downtown.

BRICK WORK — More than 120,000 bricks replaced the concrete sidewalks of downtown Winchester. Finishing up the brickwork is the final job left for the downtown project — the bricklayers are just waiting for the brick manufacturer to provide one last load of bricks, so they can finish up Mt. Vernon st. and Waterfield rd. The final brick should go in by tomorrow.

Probably the biggest change in the downtown came along Main st., where two small pedestrian malls, complete with trees and benches went on the corners of Thompson and Main sts.

Campers Complete Adventure Week

The Winchester Recreation Department's Mini Camp just completed their sixth week of camp, which was called "Adventure Week." Adventure Week opened with a game of exploring your senses.

The campers tasted blue milk, smelled onions, felt zippers, heard sounds of telephones ringing and a whole lot more. Everyone found it to be interesting as well as baffling. In the afternoon, the kids headed to Wedge Pond with their fishing poles and high hopes. Although they didn't fish Wedge Pond dry, there were many happy little fisherman.

On Tuesday, the campers biked to the Stone Zoo where they visited the animals. They picnicked there for lunch and on their way home they stopped for an ice cream which was enjoyed by all.

Wednesday morning meant a hike to the Fells, where the campers learned to track one another in the woods. That afternoon the participants took a trip to the Museum of Science and explored all it had to offer, including a Planetarium Show on stars.

Thursday morning began with a treasure hunt. After hunting all over Manchester Field, the campers were rewarded with a watermelon. That afternoon, the kids toured Channel 56 and met Meteorologist Jerry Brown. They discovered how programs are shown on the air, how the newscasters read the news off the camera and how Jerry Brown puts his weather forecast together. An added treat for the kids was that they got to see themselves on the 10 o'clock news.

To top off the week, on Friday, the mini campers took a bus to Essex, where they attended a program called "Project Growth." Here, the kids tested their rope skills and bravery. The campers went through obstacle courses of ropes. It began with a Burma Bridge, which then lead to walking a single rope with one above you to hold on to and the course finished with a 25 ft. drop off a tree while being supported by a rope and pulled. This challenged the kids physically as well as mentally. Overall Adventure Week was a breath taking success.

Dennis Hoffman, Kevin Queenan, Kan Katsumi and Jim McCarthy used various methods of climbing a net during the Adventure Week mini-camp's day at Project Growth Outdoors in Essex.

★Markey

to be doing a lot more of both.

Between bites on the campaign trail, Markey tells funny anecdotes and stories, shoots a few hoops at a Wakefield home, greets the numerous old friends he keeps running into, and expounds on his accomplishments as a congressman.

He is relaxed and witty in the front seat of his plush, rented campaign car, which is usually driven by a member of his campaign staff. Markey makes the most out of the time he spends in the car — he pulls out a tiny, portable television set and watches the Olympics.

The congressman chats amicably about athletics, music and movies before moving on to the topic that has been subject to constant scrutiny throughout the campaign — his record.

"I have a record of achievement on Central America, women's issues, arms control and the environment," he says en route to a "literature drop" in Tewksbury. "I've been a national and a local leader across the board. I've got experience, seniority and a knowledge of how the federal government works."

Despite the pride he takes in his "proven record of accomplishment," the 38-year-old, four-term congressman tells voters that "this re-election campaign is the toughest race I've had."

One of the reasons this race is so tough is because Marky's major opponent, former state senator Sam Rotondi, has already spent $61,000 on radio and television commercials that depict the congressman as indecisive on a variety of issues — including his decision to drop out of the Senate race and run for re-election.

However, Markey quickly dismisses that attack, insisting that "the overwhelming majority of voters understand that I had a tough decision to make when I dropped out of the Senate race. I feel I can get a lot more accomplished in Congress."

Nor does he feel he hurt the other announced candidates (Rep. Michael McGlynn and Rep. Nick Paleologos) by his sudden decision, made less than three hours before they could file for re-election to their old jobs in the State House.

He admits that "my timing wasn't the best," but explains, "I waited as long as I did because it was such a difficult decision for me. I regret any inconvenience I may have caused anyone, but they (McGlynn and Paleologos) were able to file on time.

And, aside from the issue of the late decision, Markey feels that Rotondi has little to challenge him on.

"If he (Sam Rotondi) had anything positive to run on, then he clearly wouldn't be running a negative campaign against me," Markey says. "He simply doesn't have the confidence, or the record of achievement on Central America or the arms race to build a positive campaign."

Despite his feelings about the Rotondi campaign, Markey is not making any concessions to his opponent while campaigning. Markey feels he can beat Rotondi in his home territory of Winchester. So far, he has not spent any money at all for television or radio advertisements. And he rarely, if ever, mentions Rotondi's name during a day on the campaign trail.

Most of Markey's attacks are instead directed at President Ronald Reagan, and "the ridiculous amount of money that we are spending on our defense budget."

"We have a tremendous political opportunity this year for Democratic unity," he tells supporters in Winthrop. "The issues are powerful."

Markey paints a dismal picture of what will happen if "we allow Reagan to remain in office."

"There is a real likelihood that Reagan will send troops to El Salvador," Markey says, before launching into an anecdote about a childhood friend from Malden, "the smartest kid on the block," who came home from Vietnam in a coffin.

"I remember seeing that coffin, and when I became a congressman I swore to myself that I would never have to explain why we have to send our boys to war," Markey says, adding that "the defense budget under Reagan is at the highest peacetime level in history."

If re-elected, Markey tells his supporters, he will continue to "advocate using our limited national resources on programs for the human race, not for encouraging the arms race."

"I believe we have to freeze defense spending and cut back on synthetic fuels," he tells supporters at a house party. "I also support a mutual, verifiable nuclear weapons freeze, a fight I led in Congress."

During the course of a campaign day, Markey frequently mentions the leadership role he says he has played in Congress concerning the nuclear freeze resolution "that I quarterbacked in the house," along with the fight to stop deployment of new U.S. nuclear weapons in Europe and his efforts to ban testing of new nuclear weapons by the Soviet Union and the U.S.

But despite Markey's emphasis on the nuclear freeze, he vehemently denies Rotondi's charge that he is a "one-issue candidate."

He says he has been a leader in the fight to protect the environment, and the author of the New England Acid Rain Protection Act. Markey also points to his work on Superfund II, a measure to provide funds to clean up toxic waste sites and compensate victims of the sites.

At a gathering in Winthrop, Markey gives several examples of the work he has done in a number of areas. He also describes some of the issues by giving frightening examples.

"What do you tell a father who calls up and tells you that his son was born without ears?" he asks the crowd. "This is why we must fight toxic waste sites. It's an oxymoron, just like nuclear war — we simply can't have it."

Markey illustrates his concern for the problems facing older Americans by relaying the example of taking his own elderly mother to the hospital after she fell down and broke her wrist — and discovered that it cost $1700 for treatment. He notes that he is the cosponsor of a bill to expand the scope of Medicare. He tells supporters that "older Americans should receive the benefits they have been promised."

After vigorously shaking hands with festival goers in Woburn, Markey is invited to "drink a few beers" with a crowd of young men sitting in the back of a pick-up truck. He exchanges barbs and some light bantering with them, until they dare him to "take a sip of beer, Congressman!" Markey refuses. He doesn't drink alcohol or smoke.

He does, however, love his job. And he wants to keep it.

"A congressman has to work on both a local and a national level to reflect a myriad of concerns," he continues. "I have the overall responsibility of building a bond of trust on a full range of issues and concerns."

Markey switches off the Olympics for a moment, and reflects on his four terms. But when his tenure in Congress is up, he says that he hopes he will be remembered as "an honest man."

"I'd want people to say that I was honest and that I called the shots the way I saw them," he concludes.

★Rotondi

day begins in Revere, until shortly before midnight, when he emerges from a Boston Harbor cruise for supporters, he remains unabashedly confident and charismatic.

He never tires. He is always willing to talk about the issues. And he repeats a message that he says he believes more and more every day.

"We're going to win," Rotondi tells his supporters in Revere.

"There is no way we can lose," Rotondi repeats later that night, to over 300 supporters who have paid $20 a ticket to sip cocktails and cruise around Boston Harbor. By the end of the evening, Rotondi himself has cruised around the boat, not missing a chance to speak to everyone on board.

The former state senator attacking this campaign, his fifth, with an unprecedented vigor.

The reason is simple, Rotondi says. He charges that Markey has lost his credability. He says that Markey has been a "one-issue" candidate (the nuclear freeze) who has lost touch with his consituency and "forgotten his hometown roots."

Rotondi thinks he can do a lot better.

"The nuclear freeze is all he's been into for the past four years," Rotondi explains, while standing in front of a huge banner on the main drag in Revere. "That is the major difference in our candidacy. He has been consumed with the symbol of the nuclear freeze.

"I am a practical Democrat concerned with a broad range of issues," Rotondi continues. "Like job security, health care, education, the elderly and the federal defecit. Markey has become too much of the national candidate."

Rotondi, who was born and brought up in Winchester, tells supporters that he will "never forget my roots." On the campaign trail, he is quick to sympathize with a man who tells him that is worried about the skyrocketing costs of education.

"I've been there," Rotondi tells him. "I'm one of 13 kids, and believe me, I understand. I used to shovel asphalt in the hot sun to pay for my education, and if I am elected I would fight for restoring cuts in higher education loans."

In Revere, Rotondi sweeps through a crowded diner, shaking hands and stopping to chat with people munching on breakfast specials in booths. He strategically visits both the police and fire stations during a shift change, and makes a short but impassioned speech about his candidacy to both the men just getting off duty and those coming on.

Wherever he goes, Rotondi is quick to mention his specific accomplishments in civil service and pension reform, and to bring up some personal links. "I've lived your concerns," he tells both policemen and firefighters.

He also tells anyone he speaks to that he "did not like how Markey did what he did — he showed indecisiveness."

After a morning of hand-shaking, introductions around the Revere City Hall by Rotondi's key Revere supporters, and an interview with the publisher of The Revere Journal, Rotondi stands under his banner for a few minutes to arrange some details with his campaign workers.

He keeps getting interrupted.

"Hey, I used to drink with your brother," shouts a heavyset man driving by in an old Plymouth sporting a Rotondi bumper sticker. The man gets out of his car to talk with the candidate, and the two discover a host of family connections.

This kind of thing happens all the time, says Rotondi, shaking his head. He finds that his name is recognized all over the 7th Congressional district, and he often runs into people who he went to school with, who knew his relatives in Italy, or who are distantly related to him in some way.

It is part of the incestuous nature of Massachusetts politics, one of his campaign workers says. And Rotondi clearly uses all of his connections to his advantage — especially since so many of his family members still live in the district.

"Hey — go over and say hello to my father sometime," Rotondi tells the man with the cigar, before he drives away. "Unbelievable," he says afterwards.

Shortly before noon, Rotondi is on his way back to his office, after a quick stop at Hing's chinese laundry to drop off some shirts. He goes through three a day on the campaign trail, one supporter estimated.

Today, Rotondi is driving his own car, although he usually drives with Mark Collins, who coordinates his Winchester campaign. Riding allows him more time to read newspapers — something that Rotondi does voraciously.

"I've always been an avid reader," says Rotondi. "I read The Globe, The New York Times, The Wall St. Journal and every newspaper in the 7th Congressional district," he explains. Part of Rotondi's campaign routine includes waking up at 6:30 a.m. to read the papers. Every other morning he runs and works out.

On week-end mornings, Rotondi goes back over certain newspaper articles and editorials that he has taken notes on. He sometimes consults academics on foreign policy issues, or attends lectures on the Middle East and Central America. The only break in his unrelenting campaign schedule comes at noon on Sundays, when he attends mass at St. Eulalia Church.

"We haven't missed a single mass since this campaign began," says Rotondi. "It is often the only time I have to be with my family (Rotondi and his wife Dee have four children) during the week."

The number one issue in Rotondi's campaign is the federal deficit — an issue he claims that Markey has ignored. Rotondi also feels that he can offer alternative energy policies that include the use of domestic coal, a focus on the future of natural gas, and a "patchwork" approach to energy. He says he will be "coming out with a specific plan" that details his solutions to both of these problems before the campaign is over.

He is also stressing his "steady consistent record of fighting for our neighborhoods, cutting government waste and creating more secure jobs for our future," according to one of his radio advertisements.

"Ed Markey and I disagree on so many issues it is incredible," Rotondi continues, shaking his head for emphasis. "This campaign has given me a wonderful opportunity to confront him on some of them — it's forced a healthy evaluation of his incumbency."

Rotondi, who said he has repeatedly pressed Markey to debate him on the issues (Channel 5 will be televising a debate later this month) is points out, when he announced his candidacy, Markey was not one of his opponents. And he is not going to let the voters forget that.

"I think Markey's indecisiveness is a very legitimate issue," Rotondi charges. "Why hasn't he given his reasons for dropping out of the Senate race? All I'm saying is, I can offer voters a choice. I'm saying the same thing now that I said when I announced my candidacy in February — I want to be a congressman."

There is also a selection of entrees culled from all over the United States — Chicago ribs, New Orleans crab pie and Creole fish.

Complementing the 3,500-square-foot, 166-seat restaurant would be the view of the Duck Pond and the water fall — "the major asset of that area," according to Manzone, who has been in the restaurant business for a year after running a successful direct mailing company.

A floor-to-ceiling window will look out at the Duck Pond, part of the exterior improvements Manzone has planned for the ex-upholsterer's.

Red awnings will decorate the facade of the building, and the outside walls will be redone in stucco with three different textures.

"Our goal is to make this restaurant something Winchester can be proud of — for its physical appearance, the quality of service, and the food," said Manzone this week. "We're just champing at the bit to get started."

Manzone isn't the only one waiting eagerly to get restaurant plans underway.

Steven Yanoff, the owner of the Lincoln Crossing and Wellesley Crossing restaurants, hopes to make Winchester terr. (off Thompson st.) the home of his third Crossing.

Yanoff has signed a lease with the owner of the building, the Locatelli Trust, and has started working on renovating the old Filene's into a restaurant.

"We're just waiting for the final plans to come in from the architect," Yanoff said this week. "That's the only thing that's stopping us from presenting our package to the town.

The package should be presented in a week or two, said Yanoff. In the meantime, "we're doing a lot of measuring, seeing where the load-bearing walls are, what has to stay and what has to go."

Yanoff's plans for the former Filene's are ambitious.

His restaurant would encompass two stories of the Winchester terr. building, with an outdoor cafe, a 110-seat main dining room and kitchen downstairs, and a 75-seat banquet room upstairs.

Although twice the size of Yanoff's other two operations, Winchester Crossing would feature the same fine service and food found at the Lincoln and Wellesley restaurants.

"Our reputation is built on fine food and service," Yanoff told selectmen in May. "We have a very loyal following, based on the premise that each time you come in, you practically see a new menu."

The Crossing restaurants specialize in Continental cuisine, and their style is a bit more formal than that planned for Maximilian's.

state Executive Office of Communities and Development has promised to block approval of Winchester's second downtown renovation grant if the town doesn't make a move to promote more housing.

Last week, selectmen voted to apply for the $740,000 grant, which would expand the downtown project to put bricks and lights on Main st. to Purity Supreme, on Converse pl., and on Mt. Vernon st. to the Town Hall.

Selectmen said Monday night that while the danger of losing the downtown grant spurred them to speed up work on the housing project, they weren't going to agree to any housing project just to get the downtown grant.

"Just to get free bricks, I don't want to sell the town short," said Selectman Chairman Mark Lombardi. "I'm all for getting more housing, but let's not commit ourselves to something that may not be the best for the town."

The reason for going ahead with the housing project, selectmen agreed, was to fulfill their earlier fair housing promise and to fulfill a need in Winchester.

"You made a promise during your election to work for housing," Selectman Wade Welch pointed out to Lombardi. "And everyone on this board, at one time or another, has made a commitment to getting more housing.

"There are people who want to live in Winchester, who deserve to live in Winchester," continued Welch. "And we're going to give them the opportunity."

Voke School Honors

Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School has established the honor roll for the fourth quarter marking period, awarding honors for an average of 85 or better, with no grade below 75, and high honors for an average of 90 or better with no grade below 85.

Students from Winchester qualifying for the Honor Roll were seniors, Cindy Meyer, Richard Connolly, Mark Dewald and sophomore Brian Foley.

The bronze statue of Man o' War stands over his grave at the entrance to the Kentucky Horse Park in the Bluegrass section of Kentucky. A museum at the park traces the history of the horse. Man o' War, one of the world's great Thoroughbreds, never ran in the Kentucky Derby and was beaten only once in his career—by a horse named Upset.

The Belle of Louisville paddles its way up and down the Ohio River during the summer months. It is one of the world's last passenger sternwheelers. Music is provided by an authentic steam calliope.

Churchill Downs is the site of the Kentucky Derby the first Saturday in May.

Twenty-seven 19th Century buildings have been restored at the Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill in central Kentucky. The community was formed by a religious group sworn to celibacy.

My Old Kentucky Home

The State Is Rich In History, Whiskey And Horse Racing

By PAUL JANENSCH
Executive Editor
The Courier-Journal and
The Louisville Times

Kentucky, the 15th state to join the Union, is a meeting ground between North and South, East and Midwest. It stretches for 450 miles—mostly along the southern bank of the Ohio River—from the jagged Appalachian Mountains on the east to the Mississippi River on the west. It's a Southern state, yet Louisville, its major city, is closer to Windsor, Ont., than to Memphis, Tenn.

Legend has it that Kentucky is the Cherokee Indian word for Dark and Bloody Ground, which seems appropriate. Daniel Boone and the other white settlers who came through the Cumberland Gap fought bloody battles with the Indians. Kentucky stayed in the Union during the Civil War, but thousands of Kentuckians joined the Confederate armies, and several battles took place in Kentucky.

Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis both were born in Kentucky, less than 100 miles apart. An assassin's bullet killed Gov. William Goebel in 1900. Kentucky farmers burned barns and fought the tobacco trusts. Miners fought mine operators and the Hatfields fought the McCoys on the West Virginia border.

Kentucky is known for its thoroughbred race horses that graze on bluegrass—so named because of its dusty blue blossoms—around Lexington. It also leads the nation in the production of coal, mined in the eastern mountains and the western flatlands. Much of the coal is strip-mined, a process now closely regulated but still environmentally traumatic.

Kentucky is the number-one grower of burley tobacco. Although most of the state is dry and many of its residents are religious fundamentalists, Kentucky also leads the U.S. in the distillation of whiskey. The state police claim that Kentucky ranks behind only California and Hawaii in the production of marijuana.

"Poor Kentucky," the late Sen. Thruston B. Morton once told me. "Everything it produces is bad for you—race horses, coal, tobacco, whiskey." Today he could add pot to the list.

Like states to the South, Kentucky generally elects Democrats in state and local contests, but often votes for the Republican presidential candidate. GOP strongholds are in the suburbs of Louisville and Southeastern Kentucky, where loyalty to the Republican party dates back to the Civil War.

Kentucky's two Democratic U.S. Senators, Walter "Dee" Huddleston and Wendell Ford, are viewed as moderate conservatives. Ford is a shrewd defender of coal and tobacco interests. Kentucky's most powerful U.S. House member is Democrat Carl Perkins from the Eastern mountains, chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., who made his fortune with Kentucky Fried Chicken, was elected in 1979 promising to run Kentucky like a business, and he did increase efficiency and reduce patronage. He and his wife, TV personality Phyllis George Brown, brought an unprecedented glitter to state government, but Brown's "fast-lane" lifestyle, notably his flamboyant gambling, seemed to cast a shadow over any chances he might have had of being on the Democratic national ticket in 1984.

By law, the governor cannot succeed himself. On Nov. 8, Kentucky voters will elect a new governor, choosing between Democrat Martha Layne Collins, currently lieutenant governor, and Republican Jim Bunning, former major league pitching star and now a state senator from the Northern Kentucky suburbs of Cincinnati. If Mrs. Collins wins, it will be another example of how this supposedly old-fashioned commonwealth can sometimes surprise you.

In spite of its bloody history, Kentucky has a tradition of tolerance and "live and let live." Kentucky's Henry Clay, the Great Compromiser, tried desperately to avert the war between North and South.

Relations between whites and blacks, most of whom live in Louisville and Lexington, are relatively open and cordial. Louisville received national recognition for peaceful desegregation of the public schools in 1954, an image that was marred in 1975 when unruly protests greeted court-ordered busing of students.

Today, the citywide school system is one of the least segregated in the country, and the long bus rides between the inner city and the suburbs are an accepted fact of life.

Louisville, in which Baptists and Catholics are the two largest denominations, is a center for dialogue among religious groups. The recent reunification of Northern and Southern Presbyterians began here.

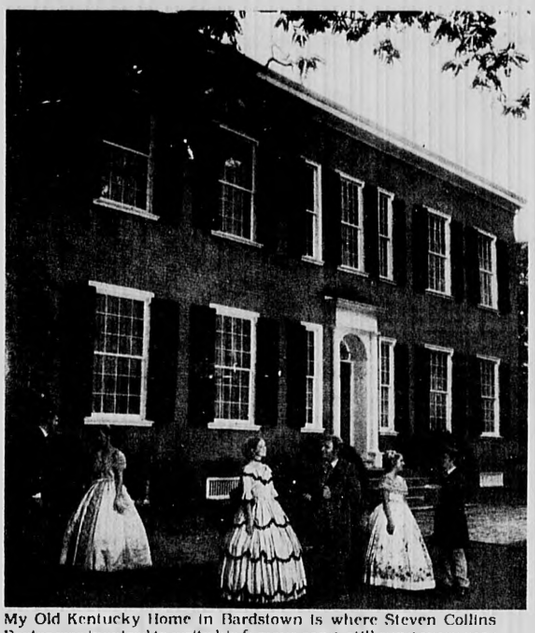

Kentuckians really mean it when they tell visitors, "Come back and see us." I think it's fitting that the state seal shows two men shaking hands and the motto, "United we stand, divided we fall."

My Old Kentucky Home in Bardstown is where Steven Collins Foster was inspired to write his famous song, still sung every year as the horses parade to the starting gate for the Kentucky Derby.

Louisville—city of rich history and strong cultural ties.

horse from miniature creature to the working, racing and show breeds of today and an eye-popping film, "Thou Shalt Fly Without Wings," that tells the story of people and their horses around the world. You can watch a harness maker and a blacksmith at work, and you can get an inside look at the day-to-day care of horses. You can pay your respects to Man o'War, who's buried there. And, of course, there's horseback riding—even for children and novices.

Shaker Village. Formerly the communal home of a religious group sworn to celibacy (and, hence, ultimate extinction), the Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill consists of 27 19th Century buildings lovingly restored. You can watch broommakers, joiners, coopers, spinners, weavers and quilters. You can stay in one of the 70 guest rooms furnished with strikingly simple Shaker pieces and hand-woven rugs and curtains. Best of all, you can dine in the Trustees' Office Inn, which features eggs, vegetables and meats from the Shaker Village farm and fresh-baked breads and desserts. It's the best meal in Kentucky—period. In Harrodsburg you can visit Old Fort Harrod State Park and see a replica of the original fort.

Bardstown. With its stately Georgian homes and wide streets. Bardstown keeps alive the spirit of Old Kentucky. The major Bardstown attraction is My Old Kentucky Home, the imposing plantation that supposedly inspired Stephen Foster to write his famous song, still sung every year as the horses parade to the starting gate for the Kentucky Derby. You can visit St. Joseph's Cathedral, housing art treasures donated by Louis Philippe, who lived here in exile before becoming King of France. You can eat at the Talbott Tavern, the oldest inn in continuous operation west of the Alleghenies. Some 25 miles to the south, at Hodgenville, the tiny log cabin where Abraham Lincoln was born is preserved within a granite and marble memorial building. Bardstown, which is more Catholic than Baptist, permits the sale of alcoholic beverages.

Louisville's Galleria, a glassed-in retail complex flanked by twin office towers, opened in 1982. The $130 million project spans a city block in the downtown area and has two levels of retail space under a seven-story glass atrium.

Residents Due Unclaimed Money Will Be Listed

Massachusetts Abandoned Property Law (M.G.L. Ch. 200A), known as the Unclaimed Money Law, seeks to protect individuals by assuring that unclaimed insurance proceeds, bank accounts, uncashed payroll checks, customer overpayments and the like which have been inactive for at least five years are returned to the rightful owner or legal heir.

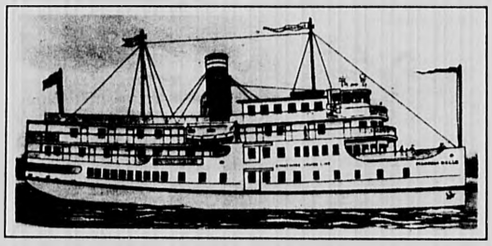

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane is responsible for administering this law. One of his duties is to see that banks, insurance companies and other institutions are in compliance with the law.

In past years, Treasurer Crane has sued banks and insurance companies to compel them to remit unclaimed funds to the state. The Treasurer's Office then initiates a search to locate the rightful owners or legal heirs.

During August, Treasurer Crane will release the names of more than 7,000 Massachusetts residents who are due unclaimed money. Lists of missing owners names will appear in newspapers, throughout the commonwealth.

Passport Pointers

Passport Agency
Copley News Service

TRAVEL ADVISORY — The State Department advises that all travelers arriving in Egypt must be able to produce evidence of up-to-date cholera immunization. Egyptian authorities require that evidence of cholera vaccination include timely booster shots, i.e., every six months. Egyptian officials require that the most recent shot has been administered at least six days before arrival in Egypt.

Q: The mail-in application form which I have shows that the fee for a passport is $10. I understand the fee has gone up to $35 for the person eligible to use the mail-in form. Is this correct and, if so, where can I secure the new up-to-date form?

A: Some of the expired mail-in application forms are coming in with the wrong fee and this, of course, delays issuance of a passport. We urge that anyone who is eligible to use the mail-in procedure read the instructions on the reverse of the form, and be certain the fee set forth is $35. This increase went into effect Jan. 1, along with the increase of the validity of a U.S. passport to 10 years. The new forms are available at post offices authorized to accept passport applications, county clerk of court offices outside Los Angeles County and this agency.

Q: Do I need to bring my minor son in with me when I file for his passport? He is 10 years old.

A: No, a minor child under the age of 13 need not appear in person when an application for a passport is filed for him or her. If 13 or older, a minor must appear and sign his or her own application.

If you wish personalized information about passport requirements, send your questions to 'Gene Burke, Passport Agency, 11000 Wilshire Blvd., Federal Building, Suite 13100, West Los Angeles, Calif. 90024.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 58 cal rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots hanging water filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over from Maine to Rhode Island to New York but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Burgeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

Old Rifles Wanted

OLD RIFLES, carbines, early cartridge guns made before 1898 such as 45-70 trapdoor Springfields, Remington rolling block single shots, certain lever action Winchesters and old muzzleloaders wanted. Especially want short barrelled guns. Fair market price paid depending on condition. Call Mr. Jorgensen, publisher, Century Publications Inc., to arrange appraisal. 729-8100

LET "SPACE" HELP YOU SELL

There is nothing that will turn off a prospective buyer faster than the look of a crammed house. Closets jammed with clothing, toys and boxes; messy garages or carports, overfurnished rooms, spilling-over bookcases, triple-stacked china cupboards, attics and basements with a flea-market look — all clutter turn buyers off.

Many buyers don't mention it, but Realtors can see the chill come over them. Some find it distasteful, others find it oppressive, as though they had to cope with all that. Whatever the reaction — it is always negative.

If you want to sell your home, make a good impression on buyers by having it look as spacious as possible. You do this by getting rid of everything extraneous, admitting as much daylight as possible and keeping the place shipshape. Now, not later, is the time to have your big sorting-out party. Inventory what you are going to sell, give away or throw away when you move. Then take action. Outer space is OK for astronauts. Inner space is good for homesellers.

Charges Fly As Primary Nears

Markey And Rotondi Are Trading Punches

BY LIZ WILLEN

With only three weeks to go before their showdown in the Democratic primary, Congressional incumbent Ed Markey and challenger Sam Rotondi have taken off the kid gloves.

As the race heats up, both are increasing their media campaigns and their personal attacks on one another.

Both have accused one another of being "desperate" in his attempts to portray a negative image of his opponent. Yet both candidates denied that they are running negative attacks on one another.

The charges and crowing began earlier this week when Rotondi held a press conference demanding that Markey return $35,000 worth of Political Action Funds (PACs) and Markey's campaign staff handed out memoes to newspapers charging that Rotondi's record is marred by inconsistencies.

Also, Markey predicted to a Boston Globe reporter that he would "win in every single city and town in the district" while Rotondi began a $200,000 television campaign drawing attention to his accomplishments as a state senator.

Rotondi also claimed that an editorial endorsing him in The Malden Evening News, Markey's hometown paper, was "the most significant thing that has happened in my campaign yet."

However, Markey's press secretary, Peter O'Neil, said that "the editorial is not an indication that Malden is not supporting Markey. He (the publisher) is one person, as opposed to hundreds of people who are working for Markey in this town. This is just one man's opinion."

The editorial in The Malden Evening News came out a day after Rotondi held a press conference at which he charged that Markey is using at least $35,386 in hidden PAC funds that he carried over from 1983 and 1984. He said that Markey "twirled away" on his commitment to run a PAC-free race.

The issue of the PAC money is not a new one in this campaign. Nor, says Rotondi, has it been satisfactorily resolved or explained.

"I've brought this up before and I'll bring it up again," said Rotondi, explaining his decision to hold the press conference on the issue. "Markey said he spent all of his PAC money (received before his U.S. Senate campaign) and he is wrong. He is switching all over the place. Unless he returns the money he won't be able to dissolve the perception that he is ducking again."

For his part, Markey claimed that he has adhered to his pledge to return PAC contributions in 1984. He said that he has not spent any money PAC money on his Congressional campaign.

And Markey's press secretary, Peter O'Neil, had his own view of why Rotondi held the press conference.

"When you're trailing badly and your message isn't sinking in, you get desperate," said O'Neil, noting that Markey leads in a Markey poll by 37 points. Rotondi's own polls show him trailing by 6 points.

Water And Sewer Deadlines, Dollar Signs Worry Officials

By Anne Marie Reidy

Two sets of numbers are worrying the officials from the 51 communities served by the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) water and sewer systems: the ones they have, and the ones they don't.

The numbers they have are deadlines — set by the federal Environmental Protection Agency, a state court judge, and the state legislature — by which some decisions must be made about future water and sewer services.

The numbers the officials don't have are firm cost breakdowns for the expenses of rebuilding and renovating the broken-down, over-burdened MDC sewer and water systems — and what those costs will do to their water and sewer rates.

And the combination worries the local officials, including Selectman Alan Macdonald, enough to bring them out to a series of meetings of an ad hoc Sewer Study Task Force, including a session last week with state Environmental Secretary James Hoyte in Arlington's Town Hall.

State court-ordered repairs to sewage treatment plants on Deer, Moon and Nut Islands and the related pipes are expected to cost up to $1.5 billion, and cause sewer rates in the 51 communities to rise substantially.

But local officials fear the independent Metropolitan Water Resources Authority proposed by Governor Michael Dukakis — in response to that court order — may make their water and sewer rates grow "astronomically."

"The direction the communities would like to go in is to have the capital costs for the project picked up by the state," said Macdonald. "It's such a big project, (if the capital costs were passed on to the cities and towns), you'd see a big increase, up 40 percent on the water bill."

And the officials feel pressured by deadlines: the EPA wants to know what the state plans to do about the harbor pollution by Sept. 7; state Superior Court Justice Paul Garrity wants an answer by Sept. 26; and state funding for the MDC water and sewer divisions runs out Dec. 31, because the legislature voted only a six-months' allocation.

The combination of deadline pressures and lack of information is making it difficult for the 51 communities to decide whether to support the governor's proposal for a new water and sewer authority, the officials said.

"The communities haven't gotten totally together, because there are different problems for different communites — some use the MDC water but not the sewer," said Macdonald. "And we don't know how the costs would be distributed.

"Then we aren't sure whether or not to go for total state bonding, or just partial," said Macdonald. "And we won't really know until we get a final cost.

By September, the task force they've set up hopes to recommend a position for the 51 communities to unite behind: either to support a modified version of the governor's proposal; to push for doing just the court-ordered sewer work, or to sit back and let the court step in and take over.

"It seems to make common sense to have the combined authority, but we can only make that determination if we have the figures," said Arlington Selectman Charlie Lyons, who is serving as chairman of the Sewer Study Task Force put together by the 51 communities in response to the governor's proposal.

For the governor's legislation to pass, Lyons pointed out, he needs a two-thirds vote of the legislature. If the representatives of the 51 communities stand united, Lyons said, they can control that vote. "Then the governor will have to listen to us," he

Tax Break

State Aid Cuts $189K Off Levy

Every homeowner in Winchester is a winner in Megabucks.

The success of the state lottery has brought in an extra $25 million to the state coffers, and part of that money is going to be passed on to Winchester in additional state aid.

Winchester will be getting an extra $189,000 in state aid this year — mainly from the lottery funds, with a bit coming from reductions in MDC charges.

That money will go to offsetting the tax rate, according to Acting Town Manager Rick White.

For the homeowner in Winchester, the $189,000 total translates into a $27 property tax reduction — not a staggering amount, but enough to buy a couple dozen Megabucks tickets.

It took a change in the way lottery funds were distributed to send the $189,000 Winchester's way, according to state Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh.

Previously, no more than $100 million of the lottery profits could be distributed to cities and towns, explained Saltmarsh.

But with the success of the lottery, he continued, profits this year stood at $125 million.

An amendment in this year's state budget, co-sponsored by Saltmarsh, lifted that $100 million cap, allowing the other $25 million to go to the commonwealth's cities and towns.

"The increase in the lottery's revenues had been going to the state for the last couple of years," noted Saltmarsh. "Our thinking was that when the original legislation for the lottery went through, the idea was to have the proceeds go back to the cities and towns."

The $100 million cap was originally placed on the lottery funds, said Saltmarsh, so that the state might get some extra money too.

"Back in 1975 (when the lottery was getting started), the state was in severe financial trouble," recalled Saltmarsh. "The '75 budget was $500 million over.

"Now the state is beginning to show some real strong revenue projections," he continued. "And the state has no financial constraints.

"The cities and towns are still under the constraint of Proposition 2½," continued Saltmarsh. "So we felt the cap should be lifted to help the communities out."

Besides the money from the lottery, Winchester's state aid picture

From The Day Of 'See The USA In Your Chevrolet'

BY LIZ WILLEN

First, it was owned by the proverbial little old lady who drove it to church and the grocery store. Eleven years later, the 1956 Chevrolet Del Ray, with a mere 13,000 miles on it, was sold for $50.

The Chevy had a number of happy years after that. It got to see the country. It went to college and graduate school. The roomy back seat saw plenty of action. But from 1971 on, it was all downhill.

For five years, the car sat sadly neglected in Bartlesville, Okla. There was rust on the roof. There were daisies growing out of the hood. No one seemed to care.

Then one day, a rescue mission took place. The Chevy, with more than 100,000 miles on it, was brought back to life again. Mechanics in Oklahoma painted, prodded and polished it. Patty Mac Hewitt, the present owner, had finally succeeded in wresting the ownership away from her brother and sister.

Hewitt, who now treats her gleaming, turquoise treasure with the tender loving care she feels it deserves, always cared about the Chevy, which had belonged to her family for years.

And she made sure that it was brought back to life — and back to Winchester. The Chevy was cooperative — her father and brother pumped $2500 worth of improvements into the car before driving it 1700 miles to its new home.

Today, the car, full of pride and panache, sits regally in the garage of Hewitt's Everett ave. home, with a set of black angora dice hanging from the rear-view mirror. Hewitt even drives around town in it to do her errands.

"I've always loved this car," Hewitt admits, opening the enormous trunk. "For years, I told my brother, who was busy going to graduate school and getting married, not to sell the car, which was still back in Oklahoma."

"If you ever sell it to anyone else, I'll kill you," Hewitt remembers telling her brother, who finally relented. To his delight, the car started right up, despite the accumulation of rust and daisies.

Three weeks ago, Hewitt was reunited with her Chevy after a year's absence. Hewitt and her husband Michael, along with two of their three children, were in Singapore last year when her husband's business took them out of the country.

The Hewitts rented their home for a year, but kept the Chevy, along with their newer Buick, in the garage. And when they went to start up their cars, the Buick failed miserably.

But the Chevy started right up.

Now, Hewitt is convinced that she can use the car "until it dies — I wouldn't sell it unless I was desperate, she says. "I want to keep this car in the family."

One of the reasons Hewitt loves the car so much is because of the memories it brings back. "It reminds me of drive-in movie theaters," she says, smiling. "And cruising around. That was a big thing when I was growing up. You'd sneak up on couples who were necking in cars — we called it bushwhacking."

Hewitt is not the only one who revels in the nostalgia of "the happy, simple days" that the Chevy brings back. Anytime she takes the car out for a ride, people honk their horns, shout out their approval, or give her a thumbs-up signal.

The attention is kind of fun, she admits. "It's kind of like having a dog — it's a great conversation piece and

Cancer Support Group To Be Offered Beginning Sept. 5

People who have cancer, their families and friends are invited to join a Cancer Support Group offered by Winchester Hospital.

The first meeting is Wednesday, Sept. 5, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the hospital's social services office.

The meetings will offer guidance in self-help as well as an opportunity for people coping with cancer to share with one another. Self-awareness, philosophy and Simonton techniques will be discussed and taught.

Two group facilitators will provide leadership, counseling and information for participants, and at some meetings physicians and other professionals will join the group.

There is no charge for the Cancer Support Group, and people may join these informal sessions at any time. The meetings will be held the first and third Wednesdays of every month from September through November.

Wilson's Of Winchester Will Be Moving To Park St.

With a new restaurant getting ready to move into its store on Converse pl., Wilson's of Winchester has made plans to move to a new location.

Actually, it's not a new location for the upholsterer, which has been doing business in Winchester for more than 50 years and does restoration work for museums across the country.

Wilson's is moving back to its former location at 10 Park st., where two floors of space will give it even more room than it now has at the Converse pl. location.

Rotondi Challenges Markey To Return PAC Funds He Received In 1983

Congressional candidate Sam Rotondi released the following campaign statement criticizing his opponent, Edward Markey, for "twirling away" from his commitment to run a PAC-free race for Congress:

"Ed Markey pledged that he would not use PAC funds in this year's race. However, he is using at least $35,386 in hidden PAC funds that he carried over from 1983 and early 1984," Rotondi said.

Rotondi challenged Markey to either return the special interest PAC contributions or to set the money aside in an escrow account

"The central issue that I raise today concerns credibility and fairness Ed Markey and I both gave our word that we would not use PAC funds. I will honor my commitment," Rotondi continued

The list of PACS from which Markey has received and retained funds includes the First National Bank of Boston PAC, E.F. Hutton PAC, the Merrill Lynch PAC, State Street Bank PAC, Turner Broadcasting System PAC, Warner Communications PAC, Television and Radio TARPAC, the U.S. TELPAC, the National Cable Television PAC, the New England Telephone RED-PAC, and the MCA PAC.

Markey serves as the second ranking Democrat on the Energy and Commerce Committee's Subcommitee on Telecommunications, Consumer Protection and Finance This subcommittee has legislative oversight reponsibilities concerning issues relating to securities, cable television and telecommunications.

Rotondi noted that the real issue was campaign finance reform and indicated that he would, if elected, file legislation to set ceilings for total expenditures and media expenditures while providing for regulated free access to media for candidates for federal office.

Rotondi concluded by stating that Markey must return the money so that there will not be a public perception that "when E.F. Hutton talks, Ed Markey listens."

Markey Defends His PAC Pledge

Cong. Ed Markey has released the following statement concerning the use of Political Action Committee (PAC) funds in this election:

"Over four months ago, I pledged to stop accepting Political Action Committee contributions, and to return any PAC contributions received in 1984. Further, I have vowed to return all unsolicited PAC contributions

"I have adhered to that pledge and I'm proud of the lead role I played in helping reduce the influence of PAC contributions on Massachusetts elections this year. I am also proud of the fact I was one of the original sponsors of campaign finance reform legislation currently pending in the U.S. Congress.

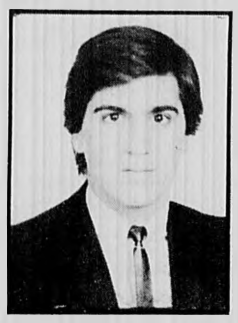

"The Markey campaign has spent no PAC money in the campaign for Congress which I announced in May. To state otherwise is simply not true.

"As for the innuendo that any PAC could influence any vote I have made in Congress, it should be noted that the Consumer Federation of America has given me a 100 percent rating the last two years.

"My votes and my actions have been influenced only by my concerns for my constituents. I have voted in their interests 100 percent of the time on matters of the most significance to consumers in the Seventh District.

"I believe it is time this campaign begin concentrating on the real issues facing the voters of the 7th District — arms control, the environment, economic development and other issues which affect people's daily lives."

ALAN MACDONALD STATE SENATOR

With Your Help Alan Macdonald Will Reduce Your State Income Tax

Alan Macdonald has already placed on the November ballot a question which will allow voters to instruct their State Senator on the repeal of the State Income Tax surcharge "Since 1975 we have been paying an extra 7½% tax on our income tax to eliminate a state budget deficit. The deficit is gone. The 'temporary' tax remains. I will work to repeal this needless 7½% surcharge."

POLICE LOG

Friday, Aug. 17

— A Main st. man reported that his car was vandalized twice, both times while it was parked on Main st. Police are investigating the incidents.

— The operator of a red Chevy Nova, a Woburn man, will be summoned to court for operating an unregistered motor vehicle. Police pulled the man over after they noticed that his license plates had expired.

— A Ridge st. resident reported that silverware was stolen from her dining room hutch, along with jewelery worth thousands of dollars. Police also received reports that a High st. resident's home was broken into, and hundreds of dollars worth of jewelery stolen. It is still unknown if the incidents are related. An investigation has begun and will continue, according to police reports.

— A 21-year-old Parker rd. man was issued a citation for reckless driving, speeding and going through a red light, after police saw his white coupe enter the intersection from Skillings rd. to Lake st. at speeds over 50 mph. He was stopped by Officers Jonathan Dean and Sgt. William Saraco on Horn Pond Brook rd.

Saturday, Aug. 18

— A Main st. man reported that his BMW was vandalized and his briefcase was stolen. Another Main st. BMW owner reported that his car radio was stolen, along with an attache tool case, a camera, and several tools.

— An Albamont rd. resident reported that vandals printed obscenities on the street, in front of his home.

Sunday, Aug. 19

— A River st. man reported that his 1978 Lincoln Continental was vandalized, and all the air was let out of the tires.

— Two 16-year-old youths will be summoned to court on vandalism charges this week, after police discovered the youths throwing rocks at the Muraco School and damaging the lettering on the entrance sign.

— A Medford man and a Burlington man were caught fishing in the Fells — and caught charges themselves, for trespassing.

— Three Somerville youths were charged with trespassing, after police put a swift end to their illegal swim in the South Reservoir.

Murphy Is Named To Embassy

Peter K. Murphy, United States Consul General in Genoa, Italy, has been named Counselor of Embassy and Deputy Chief of Mission to the United States Embassy to the Holy See. Mr. Murphy assumes his new duties at the Vatican on Aug. 13.

The U.S. Embassy to the Holy See was opened by President Reagan in January of this year, with William Wilson of California as our first Ambassador.

Murphy, a Counselor in the Senior Foreign Service of the United States of America, is a native of Winchester. A career U.S. diplomat since 1962, Murphy was previously assigned to Rome, Italy, as the State Department representative at the NATO Defense College in that city.

Prior to that assignment, he served as Special Assistant to the Assistant Secretary for Consular Affairs in Washington. He has also served at the American Embassy in Paris, France (1962-64); the American Consulate in Cordoba, Argentina (1965-67); the American Consulate in Milan, Italy (1967-72); as Consul and First Secretary at the Embassy in Paris, France (1972-75); Principal Officer in Nice, France (1975-77) and U.S. diplomatic representative to the Principality of Monaco (1975-77). He has been Consul General in Genoa since 1981.

At the completion of his Genoa assignment, Mr. Murphy was given the insignia of Commander of the Order of Merit of the Italian Republic by President Alessandro Pertini.

Murphy, who speaks French, Italian and Spanish, has been cited both in the U.S. and in Italy for his contributions to several professional journals on consular issues. He is a trustee of Chambercombe Manor, at Ilfracombe, Devon, U.K.; a member of the Union Club of Genoa, Italy; a member of the Monte Carlo Club in Monaco and a founding member of the French-Irish Club of the Riviera, at Juan-les-Pins, France. Murphy was awarded the Department of State's Superior Honor Award in 1980. He also holds a Knighthood in the Orde of Grimaldi, conferred by the Principality of Monaco in 1983.

Murphy was educated at Boston College (BA, 1959) and served in the U.S. Army from 1960-61. He taught at Lexington and Medford High Schools before entering the foreign service. He is married to the former Jacqueline Jeanne Senouillet and has two children, Paul Robert, 18, and Marc Gregory, 15.

Health Aide Training Course Will Begin

A Home Health Aide Training Course will be held Sept. 17-28 at Visiting Nurse and Community Health Inc., 87 Pleasant st., Arlington. The course qualifies candidates for certification as home health aides.

Lectures will be given by nursing and therapy professionals from the home health care agency. The course will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

To apply for a place in the course, contact Mrs. Mary Desmond, Home Health Aide Coordinator.

Successful candidates receive paid training and as home health aides they will have competitive salary, mileage, and flexible hours.

Visiting Nurse and Community Health has the largest team of home health aides in the area. The satisfaction of helping the elderly and homebound remain independent in their own homes is an added plus of working on a winning home health aide team.

School-Year Jobs Available

Applications from both employers and employees must be filed with the Job Bank before job requests may be filled. Employees and employer who have registered with the Summer Job Bank need not reapply but may instead phone in additional requests.

Students interested in working on a part-time basis during the school year should register with the Job Bank as soon as possible. Jobs may include child care, housework, yard work, or other odd jobs. Residents interested in hiring Winchester youths may also apply at the Recreation Dept. Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Job Bank will make every effort to meet job needs. However, because the program will not be run on a full-time basis, please place job requests at least one week in advance

Child Abuse Increasing, Saltmarsh Says

Reports of child abuse cases in Massachusetts are on the rise, according to Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, a member of the Legislative Research Council.

The Council's report, filed recently with the Clerk of the House of Representatives, revealed that there has been a total of 19,781 cases reported in the past year, an increase of 1,222 over the previous year.

"Despite mandatory reporting laws," said Whip, "it is estimated that thousands of additional cases of child abuse go unreported each year, indicating that actual incidences are higher."

The study was in response to concern for the plight of the abuse victim who must appear in court as a witness against a family member and concludes that most people are reluctant to get involved because of the possibility of civil suits, despite the existence of immunity legislation.

"It is extremely difficult, if not impossible to arrive at an actual figure of children who are physically or sexually abused and neglected each year," Rep. Saltmarsh said. Nationally, the number of reported cases increased from 851,000 in 1981 to 920,000 in 1982.

Some professionals believe these rising figures indicate a disturbing increase in the actual incidence of abuse, while others maintain the increase of suspected child abuse reports reflect the public's growing awareness of the problem and illustrates its willingness to report them.

The Legislative Research Bureau report examines the historical development of the concept of child protection, the definitions of the various types of abuse, the incidence of abuse and the characteristics of the abused child and abusive parent.

"In addition," said Saltmarsh, the report examines state and federal legislation in this area as well as drawbacks to criminal prosecution in child abuse cases. In reviewing the drawbacks, the study addresses the treatment versus punishment dilemma which often becomes the fundamental conflict in abuse cases."

The report cites the formation of an interdisciplinary team which would conduct a joint interview with the child and the establishment of a single prosecutorial unit to handle both the criminal action and related civil proceedings.

Both procedures would aid in reducing the frequency and volume of questioning and interrogation that the child must now endure.

The report emphasized that any effort to protect the child victim/witness by altering current courtroom procedures must be reconciled with the defendant's rights guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

In this regard, the report points out that videotaped depositions of child victims are admissable in criminal actions for child abuse in seven states. And, the use of a special child hearing room equipped with one way glass has been struck down by the California Supreme Court because this procedure violates the defendant's right to face accuser.

MHCC Names Joan Butler-West As Director

Joan Butler-West was recently appointed Executive Director of Minuteman Home Care Corporation (MHCC) which serves the elderly in the 16 towns of Acton, Arlington, Bedford, Boxborough, Burlington, Carlisle, Concord, Harvard, Lexington, Lincoln, Littleton, Maynard, Stow, Wilmington, Winchester and Woburn.

The appointment is the result of an intensive two-month search of over 100 applicants.

Butler-West, most recently the assistant director of MHCC, has an 11-year background in the management of long-term care services as a registered occupational therapist and human service manager.

"MHCC, as a regional planning and services agency, is in a key position to bring together health and social service providers, mental health agencies, Councils on Aging, and other community-based resources serving the elderly. Better coordination is crucial in providing an accessible, affordable, and easily understood system that can serve the needs of older people who are trying to maintain their independence by living in their own homes and communities," according to Butler-West.

"MHCC has also developed close ties to area businesses and Joan has demonstrated a commitment to this concept of bringing together the public and private sectors in meaningful ways to help the elderly," stated Eckhardt.

Butler West holds a master's degree in management of human services from the Heller School at Brandeis University and received a bachelor of science in occupational therapy from Boston University. She is a resident of Arlington.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

TRANSPORTATION BUILDING (H 5999) — Senate 18-11, gave near final approval to the House-approved bill authorizing the Theatre District Limited Partnership, a private partnership, to lease floor space in the Park Square Transportation Building for up to 36 years. The complicated 13-page bill allows the partnership to rent space to retailers and restaurants which may serve alcoholic beverages. It also guarantees certain minimum levels of rent to be paid to the state including a minimum of $50,000 annually for the first five years.

Supporters called the bill a model partnership between the state and private sector and claimed it will revitalize the area with a Quincy-Market like area and activities which will generate increased state taxes. They said the bill contains many safeguards to protect the state's interests.

Opponents said the bill sets a bad precedent by allowing the sale of alcohol in a state building and said the state will not receive enough rent. They said there are still too many unanswered questions about the bill.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

DISLOCATED WORKERS (H 6120) — Senate 35-0, gave near final approval to a House-approved bill to ease the impact of major dislocations of employment and to assist in the reemployment of dislocated workers. The 35-page bill provides state incentives for businesses to voluntarily agree to provide some advance warning of plant closings and some maintenance of income to workers. In addition, the state would provide supplemental unemployment insurance benefits as well as placement counseling and retraining assistance.

Supporters said the bill is a reasonable compromise which is fair to both labor and industry. They said the bill will protect workers and split the responsibility for helping the workers between the state and private industry.

Kraus voted yes.

DECISION OF CHAIR (H 5858) — House 121-25, upheld the decision of the speaker that the conference committee on the fiscal 1985 budget acted properly when it included a budget item for $500,000 when the Senate had funded the item at $150,000 and the House version did not fund the item at all.

Supporters of the speaker's ruling said the budget must be viewed as a total instrument and argued the committee needs wide latitude to arrive at a compromise. They claimed adjustments and compromises of varying degrees are necessary to reach an agreement.

A "Yea" vote is for supporting the speaker's ruling. A "Nay" vote is against the ruling.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Camelio Gains Recognition

During the past year, artist Carol Camelio's work has been viewed by thousands of art enthusiasts in New England and in New York. Her work has been displayed at major exhibits, galleries, museums and on television.

One piece in particular, "Grass Mat," a detail of a straw mat on a wooden floor, has received a great deal of attention. This 40" x 30" acrylic painting is a study in warm and cool brown tones and illustrates Camelio's ability to combine light and texture.

Soon after its completion in August 1983, "Grass Mat" received awards at the Medford Arts Council's "Festival by the Mystic" and Wincheter Art Assn.'s "Prize Painting Show." This past winter, it was chosen for the "All New England Juried Competition," sponsored by the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset. This past spring, "Grass Mat" was displayed at the Springfield Museum of Fine Arts in the "Springfield Art League's 65 National Exhibition."

Carol Camelio gained further national recognition when Randall Williams, Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, N. Y., selected "Grass Mat" for the "27th National Exhibition of American Art," held at the Chautauqua Institute in New York in June and July. Camelio's is the only work representing a Massachusetts artist.

This is important to note, since this exhibit , according to Chautauqua Director, William Waite, "...is regarded throughout the North American continent as one of the finest exhibits of American Art in the United States."

In August, "Grass Mat" will be featured, along with several others by the artist, at "Art on the Mountain" another national exhibition of American art. This event is held at Haystack Mountain in Wilmington, Vt.

AWARD WINNER — Winchester Art Assn. member Carol Camelio's acrylic painting "Grass Mat" has been winning awards and put on display in Massachusetts and New York this summer.

Viewers of Boston's Channel 2's recent auction may have recognized another of Carol Camelio's paintings, "Mountain Morning" as the artist donated the work to aid in the fundraising for that station. Some of her work appeared again on television, as several pieces served as background for a live interview with the artist's husband, Alex, during a June exhibit in Manchester, N.H. The exhibit was sponsored by station WMUR of that city.

Currently, at the Medford Public Library, two paintings "Slave Wall" and "Footbridge over the Mystic" are on display. These pieces, funded by a grant from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery council, are from the series "Seasons of Medford."

WINCHESTER STARS

Pair Get Aid

Two Winchester residents have been awarded scholarships from the Dr. Thomas P. and Edwina H. Devlin Medical Scholarship Fund. Twelve area students received a record total of $8,000 in scholarships this year.

The students from Winchester receiving the grants are Carole Ducharme of South Border rd. and Daryl Parker of Forest st.

Ducharme, a mother of four, works as a nurse's aide at Fairlawn Nursing Home in Lexington while attending the University of Lowell's School of Nursing. She is entering her final year and has a particular interest in surgical nursing.

Parker, the son of Richard and Judith Parker of Forest st., is the oldest of five children. A graduate of Dartmouth College, Parker will be entering his first year at Dartmouth Medical School.

The Devlin Medical Scholarship Fund was established in 1962 to honor Dr. Thomas P. Devlin, who died this past January. It was created to assist worthy medical school and nursing school students.

Aid applications or tax-deductible donations may be made through Jo Devlin, secretary-treasurer, 34 Pleasant st., Stoneham.

Raffi At WBZ

Curt Raffi of Winchester is working as an intern for Evening Magazine at WBZ-TV in Boston. Raffi recently completed his sophomore year at Harvard, where he majors in visual and environmental studies. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Raffi of Everett ave.

McNamara, KISS

Jodi A. McNamara, a senior at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, is working as a student intern at WBZ-TV in Boston and at WXKS-KISS radio in Medford. McNamara is the daughter of Roberta McNamara of Wincheser and Robert McNamara of Woburn.

McNamara works at the sports desk at WBZ and is a general assistant at WXKS. A journalism/communication studies major at UMass, she graduated from Winchester High School in 1981.

Currier Graduate

Brenda J. Currier of Canterbury rd. was graduated from Cambridge College with the master of education degree. Currier is self employed, as a free-lance house and pet sitter, and would like to extend her thanks to family, friends and well-wishers for their support of her educational endeavor.

Mello Hired

College Marketing Group Inc. of Winchester, has appointed Teresa Mello of Winchester to its growing data processing department.

Mello, a 1974 graduate of Belmont High, was formerly employed at Educators Publishing Service of Cambridge in their data entry department.

Bishop Chosen

Cadet Thomas Bishop of the State University of New York Maritime College, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Bishop of Everett ave. has been appointed an Indoctrination Officer at the College. He will assist in the supervision of the college's orientation programs which begins this month.

As an Indoctrination Officer, he is one of the 41 in charge of 286 young men and women, all first year cadets at SUNY Maritime College, Fort Schuyler, Bronx, N.Y. All are taking part in the 12-day orientation program.

The orientation is being conducted by upper-class cadets — all volunteers — plus members of the faculty, members of the staff of the deputy commandant of cadets and the United States Marine Corps. During these 12 days, the new cadets are issued uniforms, given instruction in parade drill and trained in the routine of maritime life.

Nazzaro A Lt.

MDC Police Commissioner William Geary has appointed Richard A. Nazzaro of Highland ave. as a lieutenant in the MDC Police.

Lt. Nazzaro, who works in the MDC's Blue Hill station, was appointed by Gov. Michael Dukakis to the MDC Auto Theft Strike Force. He has been with the MDC Police for 14 years.

Feldmann Picked

Cornell University athlete Karen Feldmann, of Winchester, has been named to the College Sports Information Directors of America's 1984 Academic All-America At-Large women's team.

A computer science major with a 3.9 grade point average, Feldmann was named to the All-Ivy second team in 1983. She saw action in every soccer game as a backfielder for the Big Red, and was one of the team's top defensive players. A two-year letter winner on the squad, Feldmann is a member of several engineering honorary societies at Cornell.

Lewis An All-Star

Robert Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lewis of McCall rd., and a senior at The Rivers School, Weston, was recently named to the All-Star Team of the Europa Cup Hockey Tournament.

The month-long competition, held at the Babson College Rink in Wellesley, is made up of 22 teams of selected players from private and public schools in the Boston area.

Lewis, who plays left wing, has been a member of The Rivers School Varsity Hockey Squad for four years.

George Awarded

Renee K. George, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent George, of Squire rd. a Ph.D. candidate in Renaissance studies at Syracuse University, has been awarded a University Fellowship for 1984-85.

George, who is also a 1983-84 recipient of the University Fellowship, has just returned from Italy where she conducted doctoral research made possible by a travel grant from Syracuse University.

At Syracuse, she served the university community this past year as the graduate representative to the Chancellor's Special Citations Committee, and has been nominated to the Outstanding Young Women of America.

Dartmouth Grads

Three Winchester students graduated from Dartmouth College during the Hanover, N.H., school's May 23 spring commencement.

Daryl R. Parker, son of Richard and Judith Parker of Forest st., is a 1980 graduate of Winchester High School. A physics major, Parker was active in the Nathan Smith Society of Pre-Health Professionals and received the Charles A. Proctor 1900 Memorial Scholarship for outstanding academic performance in the physics department.

Robert A. McInnis, son of John and June McInnis of Myrtle st., is a 1980 graduate of Winchester High School. At Dartmouth, he was president of the Dartmouth Entrepreneurs and was a member of the sailing team. McInnis was a policy studies major.

Gail A. Marino, daughter of Dominic and Edda Marino of Dennet rd., graduated cum laude from Dartmouth with a degree in biology. She was a founding member and recording secretary of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and volunteered at Dartmouth's Mary Hitchcock Mental Health Center. She is a 1980 graduate of Winchester High School.

Vautrain Trains

Second Lt. Steven D. Vautrain, a 1979 graduate of Winchester High School, has graduated from U.S. Air Force pilot training, and has received silver wings at Columbus Air Force Base, Miss.

Vautrain will now serve at Little Rock Air Force Base, Ark., with the 62nd Tactical Airlift Squadron.

He is a 1983 graduate of the University of Miami, Coral Gables.

Nine Listed

Nine Winchester residents enrolled at or recently graduated from Northeastern University have been named to the dean's list for the spring quarter.

On the list from the College of Engineering were David B. Duffy of Mayflower rd. and Alexander N. Pappas of Russet ln.

The College of Business Administration listed Keith A. Goodwin of Highland ave., George H. Littell III of Grove st. and Jane C. Sullivan of Nathaniel rd.

On the list from the Bouve College of Human Development are Sandra M. Jordan of Governors ave. and Ellen K. O'Neil of Wildwood st.

Judith A. McPhee of Albamont rd. was included on the dean's list for the College of Criminal Justice, while Gary M. Aswad of Allen rd. was on the University College list.

She's Got Muscle

Cindy Alba Holds U.S. Benchpress Record

By DAVE LEECO

Cindy Alba started lifting weights simply to help her racquetball game.

Most people wouldn't have thought her game needed much help, actually. Alba, a former pro at the Winchester Racquetball Club, holds seven state titles, three regional titles, and was runner-up in the 1980 national doubles championships.

"I've won everything there is to win," admitted Alba. Yet she still thought she was "a little on the slow side," and that weightlifting would help her speed.

Alba is too much of a competitor to just go into weightlifting for a little extra speed on the racquetball court, though. The same sort of gamesmanship that propelled her to try and improve a superb racquetball game drove her to be the best in weightlifting.

And after barely two years of training on the weights, and less than a year of lifting free weights, Alba is the best.

Last week, the 33-year-old Winchester native won the U.S. Benchlifting Championship in the 132-pound class, hefting 155 pounds during the New Haven, Conn., competition.

That 155-pound benchmark also set a world record in June — the U.S. Drug-Free record, for those athletes who don't use steroids.

In the Cambridge Nautilus gym in Cambridge, Alba goes through her thrice-weekly routine quickly and efficiently.

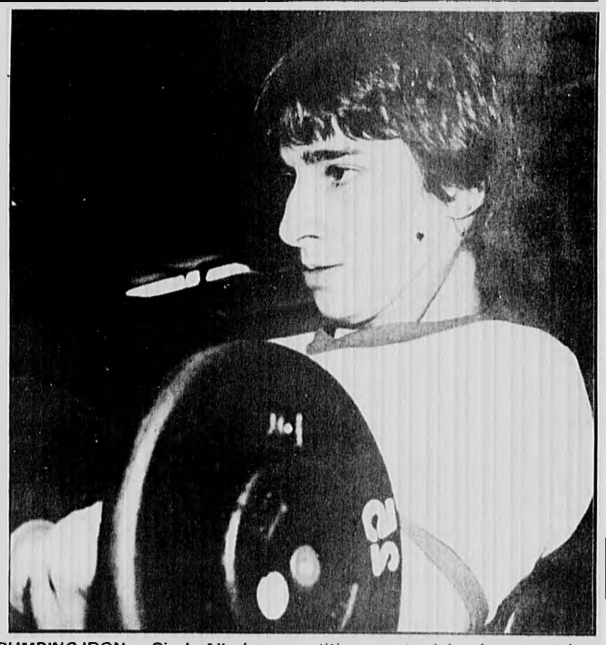

She slides 50 pounds on the bar, pumps a dozen bench presses in a few minutes, then adds another 100 pounds.

Even at that weight, there is only a trace of a strain on her face as she pumps a U.S. record weight the way most people pick up a bag of groceries.

Alba doesn't loudly trumpet those accomplishments. For her, being an athlete just comes naturally.

'I wouldn't do it if I didn't enjoy it. It all comes naturally to me. Some people are born musicians or born writers. I was born to play.

— Cindy Alba

And it always did, as a tennis player and runner at Winchester High School when she lived with her parents on Sheffield rd., or as the captain of the tennis, hockey and basketball teams at American University in Washington, D.C.

"It's all come naturally to me," said Alba. "Some people are born musicians or born writers. I was born to play."

A few sports didn't come easy — Alba admits she really had to work on her hockey playing. Then again, as a hockey player in the Boston-area women's hockey league, she was chosen the best goalie in the south division for three years.

But in weightlifting, Alba really found her sport.

She started out after a friend gave her a membership to the Cambridge Nautilus Club at Fresh Pond.

At the beginning, she "couldn't lift much at all." After a year on the Nautilus equipment, she was up to 100 pounds in the bench press.

That's when she shifted to the free weights — barbells — and set her sights on being a champion.

She began working with John Wooten of Lynn, who bills himself as "the world's strongest man," and was soon lifting 155 pounds in the benchpress and 300 pounds in the deadlift (lifting the barbell from the floor to the waist).

It meant long workouts three or four days a week, and juggling time between the gym and her job as an agent for Equitable Financial Services.

And when it came time to compete, it meant getting up at 5 a.m. to make 8:30 weighins in Connecticut.

But Alba shrugs off the effort. "I wouldn't do it if I didn't enjoy it," she said.

The toughest thing for Alba, in fact, was to keep her weight down so she could compete in the 132-pound division.

"Lifting the weight was easy compared to watching my weight," said Alba. "I'm a natural 136 pounds, and I didn't want to move up to the 148-pound class.

"I don't want to be that fat, for one thing," she said. "It would hurt my racquetball, and I don't want to look like that."

Nor did Alba want to take steroids, male hormones used by many weightlifters to build up their muscles.

"Steroids are a big advantage if you don't care what happens to your body," said Alba, noting that the world record for the 132-pound class in the bench press is 185, 30 pounds heavier than her drug-free record.

"But people who have done steroids have had serious health problems," she continued. "It crossed my mind to use them, but I don't think they're worth it."

Even without the drugs, Alba managed to win the U.S Benchpress Championships last week. Now, she's setting her sights at a national overall championship.

"I'm really starting to work on the squat, and I can already deadlift 300, which is only about 30 pounds off the world's record," she said.

Which, considering her accomplishments, won't be too far off.

An Atlas In The Cracks

By TERRY MAROTTA

You never know where you're going to find a subject for meditation in life. I found one last night while filling cracks in the walls of my house.

I've been preparing this one room for painting. It's a small room, up on the third floor. A tall person can stand up straight in the center of it, but he's in trouble if he begins a purposeful stride in about any other direction.

Anyway, I was readying the surface of this room's walls for paint, smoothing the spackling compound into the cracks as I found them, not looking up much or paying attention to how many cracks there were. It wasn't until I'd about finished, and had stepped back to survey my progress, that I saw what these cracks, now highlighted in white, really looked like.

They looked like a map of the world's rivers, one of those wonderfully soothing maps done all in greens and blues, with no state or national boundaries goose-stepping along at harsh right angles, no cities erupting into blisters on the landscape, no highways circling like jackals around the blisters...The cracks in my walls looked like the earth must have looked to God in the first few weeks after Creation.

As I continued working, I tried to think of all that I knew about the rivers of the world. I thought about the Nile, for example; the crack that wandered along up toward the ceiling reminded me of that one. I remembered drawing pictures of the Nile in the 6th grade when we studied Egypt, and coloring in the fan it makes as it flows into the Mediterranean. I thought of the richness of the soil on either side of this river, and how that richness gave birth to a whole civilization.

I thought about the Ganges, considered holy by the Hindus that come to bathe in its healing waters.

I thought about our own Mississippi, and the way Mark Twain used to talk about it. That river was for him something more than a river. It was a presence in his life, a person, almost. It played a leading role, from the days he worked on it as a steamboat pilot. It shaped him, is what he said of it. Interesting to think that rivers shape people as well as landscapes.

I spackled some more and remembered what I'd learned about the Concord and the Merrimack rivers, and the days Henry Thoreau spent upon them in the quiet years before the great textile boom. I pictured him calculating the age of the elm trees that grew along their banks and talking to the woodchucks he met the way he used to do...

When I was little, I used to think that all rivers flowed southward. They had to, I figured, because North was up and South was down. In my mind, I guess I pictured all the rivers streaming downward toward the South Pole, like caramel on a candied apple dipped once and then held upright. I don't know what I pictured them doing after that — dripping off the pole and down into space, I guess.

Now I know better, of course. Some rivers flow north, like the Nile. Like all those rivers in Russia that make life so difficult for everybody by ending in iced-over ports.

The world's rivers flow day and night. They etch a living map along the landscape. My wall's rivers only hint at their surge and turbulence.

Rivers are energy made visible, evidence beyond dispute that God is not finished working His changes on our world. Any place that's had a river flow through it has felt a mighty alteration. The Grand Canyon can tell you that much.

If the land is the body, then its rivers are the muscles, flexing and rippling their way on toward the sea, seeking always the lower point, hearkening always to the beckon of gravity.

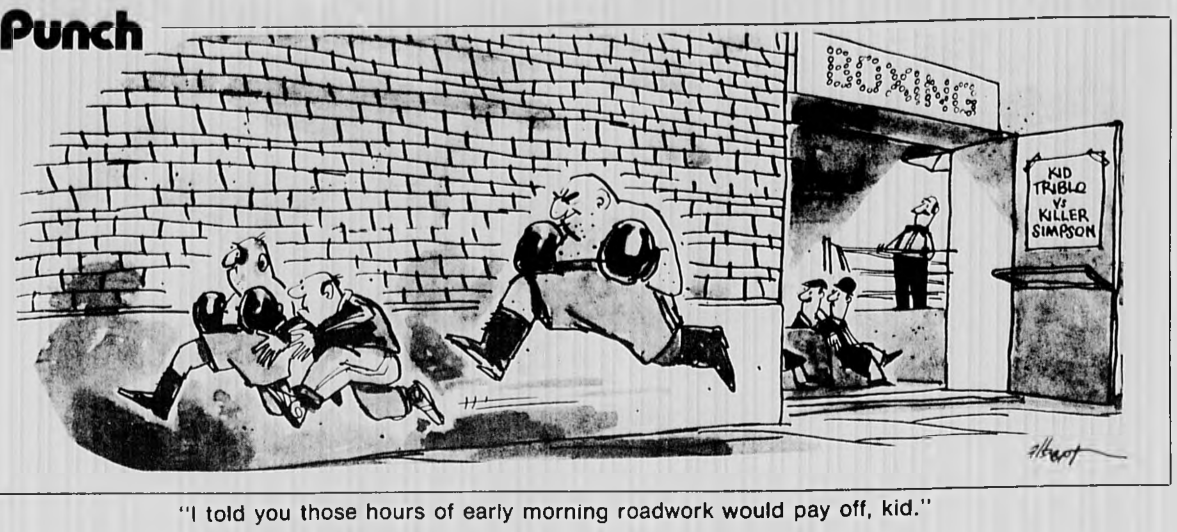

Gravity's at work on my walls, all right. This old house that we love so well, whose interiors we paint and paper with such care and tenderness, hears the call of gravity sure enough. Cracks are what gravity is all about.

And this place that to us seems so solid and enduring, that houses as it does our babies as well as our dreams, is in fact a fragile and precarious structure. Its walls have split and separated. A corner has settled itself more comfortably in the lap of the Mother.

It feels the tug of gravity at its roots. It hears the call that the rivers respond to.

And it answers that call. In spite of all my spackling.

Former Teacher Hopes McCall Decision Will Be Reconsidered

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

While I am not a resident of Winchester, as a former teacher, coach, and director of Community Use of Schools I have a fondness for the town. I was very upset to hear that John Cahill was not endorsed by the School Committee as principal of the McCall Junior High School.

We often judge the people with whom we are associated only years later — in retrospect. Of all the administrators with whom I was ever associated, John Cahill was the finest. Also, former students of mine whom I met years later have told me that, while at the time they may have resented his consistent discipline, John Cahill had the greatest influence on them of any school department member.

John's career in Winchester has been long, varied, and always successful in the following roles:

1. Teacher
2. Summer school teacher
3. Guidance Counselor
4. Acting Principal
5. Asst. Principal
6. Acting Principal again

While it is not normal for the School Committee to reconsider a decision, perhaps this would be the time to establish a precedent for the future. This would reward a fine man for his years of loyalty to the town. He is amply qualified for the job. His future successor, as asst. principal, could be groomed to take over in a few years.

Sincerely,
Francis J. Lane

Cookbook Author Is Ex-Resident

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

It might be of interest to you, regarding the article printed Aug. 16 on page 2 of The Star entitled "Micro Cookbook Is Now Available On Computer," to know that the company that developed and markets that item is "Virtual Combinatics," headed by an ex-Winchester resident — Joseph W Butler III.

He is currently building a program "Ortho's Plant Selector," (a division of Chevron Oil) and developing a program for Dr Robert Arnol (Dr Sport) called "A Health Management and Fitness Program" and including running, golf, tennis, etc.

In addition to Micro Cookbook, he has developed many optional programs.

Good Samaritan Thanked

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I would like to express my appreciation to the person who not only found my lost paycheck, but delivered it to my home on Wednesday, Aug. 8.

After I had discovered that somehow my check had been lost while doing errands, and having traced my path in a vain attempt to find it, I biked home while trying to calculate the effect on my budget of the lost eighty dollars ($80). When I arrived home, I found that someone had placed my lost check and papers at my front door.

It really gave me a boost, not only to have the check, but to know that an honest person had gone out of his or her way to return it to my home.

Again, my "thanks" to that honest person.

Sincerely,
Matthew J. Kennedy

Disappointed Ex-Residents Relate More Problems With Tax Collection

EDITOR OF THE STAR

With intense disappointment, we write to tell you that the unhappy experience with the Office of the Collector described by S. J. Barnes in the July 26 Star is not unique. We too have received a series of tax bills, irrelevant responses, and threats from Carol Thomas' office and other state officials to whom she has referred the matter.

As in the Barnes' case, we have tried repeatedly to communicate with the collector's office in response to a series of incorrect bills for excise taxes. We asked why we were billed for 1984 when we had left Winchester in January and why the tax on our old Pinto was greater than that on the new Chevy wagon. Ms. Thomas' answer? A demand notice from the Deputy Collector of the Commonwealth, sent to our old address. We asked why one of the bills was for 1983, the demand for 1984. Ms. Thomas' answer? "File for an abatement with the assessors," also sent to our old address. Other questions failed to elicit any response whatsoever.

We are particularly saddened because Winchester is our town — or was. For nearly 25 years we raised our children there, enjoyed the benefits of residence there, and did our best to contribute more than we received. Nancy and I held positions of responsibility in the Winchester Art Assn., the Winchester Historical Society, Lynch Junior High Board, Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Town Meeting. Hence it pains us to find that inefficiency, if not incompetence, has somehow crept into town administration. Our fond recollection is being soured by this foolishness.

Sincerely yours,
Nancy and Chat Watts
Tucson, Ariz.

Winchester, Va., Reminds Local Native Of His Home Town

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I was born and raised in Winchester, along with my three sisters and brothers, last residing on Elmwood ave. My parents were Harold and Dorothy McKinley. My oldest sister, Jeanne Amico, still resided in Winchester as do my aunts, Cynthia Barone and Priscilla Morse.

After retiring from the Navy, I took a consulting job in Fairfax, Va., and am making my home here with my wife, Elaine, and our four children.

Winchester, Va., is up Route 50 to the west about 30 miles. It is a real pleasant community and when we visit there its name invokes many fond memories of Winchester, Mass., in my mind.

I thought that The Star might be interested in another city named Winchester, so I am enclosing a recent Washington Post article about the town.

Warm regards,
Harold H. "Bud" McKinley
Fairfax, Va.

Editor's note: I can't help noting that Winchester, Va., even has a Winchester Star newspaper. The Washington Post article follows.

Winchester Polishes Historic Image

By Paul Hodge
Washington Post Staff Writer

For 240 years, Winchester, Va., the first city west of the Blue Ridge Mountains, has been capitalizing on its apples and apple blossoms.

But a recent discovery is sparking a downtown revival that could make a bustling "mountain Williamsburg" of the city of 20,000 in the top corner of Virginia.

Winchester has noticed that it's historic.

Residents, businesses and the city and Frederick County governments are now spending more than $40 million to revitalize and preserve the Shenandoah Valley frontier town where George Washington won his first military elected posts and where, in the Civil War, Union and Confederate troops chased each other in an out of town a record 72 times.

As in all of Winchester's history, a handful of citizens and businessmen have been behind many of the city's improvements.

Winchester's first elementary school, built in 1883, its magnificent turn-of-the-century Beaux Arts library and a high school that many colleges would envy all were gifts to the city. Even Winchester's city hall and its fire house were gifts from individuals.

Recently, a businessman donated $50,000 for a baseball stadium to bring a semi-professional baseball team to town and this year another businessman helped build a $150,000 lake, now stocked with trout in the heart of the city.

Perhaps the most crucial event in the city's modern history, however, was spurred by the razing of a historic house for a parking lot in 1964.

Outraged citizens created Preservation of Historic Winchester Inc. In the mid-1970s — when the group proved to be persuasive but powerless — citizens got all four local banks to back them in creating a $125,000 revolving fund to buy threatened historic buildings.

The revolving fund turned "little old ladies in tennis shoes into a group of preservationists that could really do something," says City Manager Wendell Seldon.

So far the fund has bought and sold 44 historic buildings, including several of the 130 log houses still standing in downtown Winchester, spurring more than $2 million in restoration.

The organization holds an annual Oktoberfest in the city and a Victorian Christmas festival with house tours and concerts. And it recently helped raise $1 million for Winchester's Shenandoah College and Conservatory of Music to restore the 1883 elementary school it was given by the city as a joint community-school building.

In an unusual demonstration of city-county cooperation, Winchester and Frederick County also have built a joint, $7 million courthouse and are building a new $31 million regional sewage system that will permit extensive controlled development around the city, says Seldon.

Also under restoration are the 1840 county courthouse, considered one of the most handsome of Virginia's historic courthouses, and the city hall.

Although Winchester has no tourist center — it may create one in an 18th century barn — it does have one successful tourist attraction: its annual Apple Blossom Festival.

Begun in 1924, three years before Washington's Cherry Blossom Festival, the "apple capital" festival has crowned, as Queen Shenandoah, the daughters of presidents and Hollywood stars.

Most were chosen by Winchester's U.S. Sens. Harry F. Byrd Sr. and Jr., who represented Virginia in Congress for a combined 50 years until 1983. But while the festival may attract 250,000 tourists, they come only for the first weekend in May.

A pedestrian mall, completed in 1974, was neither a failure nor a success, says Seldon. Two years ago, adding injury to insult, the three major downtown stores left it, moving out to a new "climate-controlled" mall on the edge of town.

Yet, far from despairing, city officials and businessmen are now more optimistic about the future of Winchester then they have been in five decades.

The reason, says Sally Miller, director of the city's Downtown Development Board, a city-business group, is "historic preservation...particularly the revolving fund, which will put [the preservation group] on the map forever in Virginia."

The first building rescued by the organization was a 1790 log house on Loudoun Street, now a travel service owned by Thomas Downing. "The Salvation Army had started to tear it down for a basketball court," said Downing, but the preservationists saved it.

"It's cute, but not a good example of restoration...I wasn't the first owner," Downing says. "The logs are exposed, the pointing is wrong and the pine mantels were removed. [The preservation group] now has stronger covenants to prevent this...But it's great for business."

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

When the House and Senate reconvene in formal sessions after the September primary, one of the items on the top of the agenda will be a bill to raise the state's legal drinking age from 20 to 21. The bill has been proposed for the past several years, and its most recent defeat came last October at the hands of the Senate which easily killed the measure on a 27-7 vote. This was only a few days after the House had easily passed the hike by a better than 2-1 margin of 94-46.

Everyone expected a similar result this year when the House easily approved the hike on a voice vote in June and sent the bill to the Senate. The Senate sent it to the Ways and Means Committee where it was expected to languish.

Enter the federal government and President Reagan. In July, Reagan signed a bill mandating that states which do not raise their drinking age to 21 by October 1986 will lose millions of dollars in federal highway funds. The law is designed to pressure 27 states, including Massachusetts, to raise their drinking age to 21. Massachusetts stands to lose an estimated $8 million in fiscal 1987 and some $17 million in fiscal 1988.

Supporters of the hike will now use the threat of loss of millions of dollars as a key argument, but they also point to many other factors. They claim teenage drunk driving deaths have dramatically decreased in states where the age has been increased to 21 and note that in 1983, 22 lives were lost in accidents involving 20-year-olds in Massachusetts.

Opponents point to the success of the state's tough drunk driving laws and quote statistics showing an increase in drunk driving arrests and a decrease in fatal accidents. They also claim the federal law does not guarantee the hike in neighboring states and express fear that 20-year-olds may rush to border states with lower drinking ages and drive back drunk. When the Senate considers the bill in a few weeks, many opponents say they will be torn between these arguments and the potential loss of millions of dollars.

This week's report recalls local representatives' and senators' votes on hiking the age to 21. Also included are two other House votes dealing with the drinking age and drunk driving.

HIKE TO 21 (H 6718) - Approved by House 94-46, defeated by Senate 27-7, was this 1983 bill raising the drinking age from 20 to 21.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes. Sen. Richard Kraus voted no.

NEIGHBORING STATES (H 5952) — House 100-46, rejected an amendment to this 1984 bill hiking the state's drinking age from 20 to 21. The amendment would make the hike effective only when the age is increased to 21 in Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Amendment supporters argued if Massachusetts raises its age to 21, young people will cross the border to other states to drink and the liklihood of accidents will increase. Opponents urged Massachusetts to take the lead and raise its age to 21. This is the bill that was later approved in the House on a voice vote and will be up for consideration in the Senate in the fall.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment making the hike effective only when the other states raise the age. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment.

Saltmarsh voted no.

MINORS (H 640) — House 102-38, rejected a 1984 bill providing mandatory 30-day jail sentences for persons convicted of procuring alcoholic beverages for minors. Supporters said the bill will show these buyers that the state is getting tough and will help stop the flow of liquor to minors.

Opponents said the current law is already strict and includes imprisonment of up to six months and a $1000 fine. They said the law, passed in 1982, should be given a chance to work before replacing it with mandatory sentences which often discourage convictions.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Gustus Is Running For Reelection

(Editor's Note: The following press release was submitted by County Treasurer William J. Gustus.)

Middlesex County Treasurer William J. Gustus announced that he seeks to retain his position as county Treasurer in the upcoming Sept. 18 Democratic Primary.

In announcing his candidacy, Gustus said, "As long as there is county government there will be a need for a responsible professional management among its elected officials. I offer that type of performance to the people of this county."

Gustus said his words need not be taken as an idle boast. He has been responsible for preparing the last four county budgets. These budgets have presented Middlesex County taxpayers with a decrease in the property tax assessments of over $6 million. "It is extremely important," Gustus observed, "that all layers of government show extreme fiscal responsibility. By reducing our assessments, without reducing our level of services, we have been able to make it easier for our constituent communities to respond to the Proposition 2½ tax cut."

Gustus said he was also responsible for investigating the county health insurance contract and through renegotiations was able to save the county $250,000 each year for the past three years. Utilizing his legal skills, Gustus prevented the sale of the vacant Third District Courthouse to a private developer for $175,000 when the property had been appraised at over $1 million.

Gustus was appointed County Treasurer by the Board of Commissioners when former County Treasurer, Rocco Antonelli, resigned, rather than face trial for conflict of interest in November.

"The Treasurer's Office is a key position in county government," he said. "It gives me the opportunity to tie together all of the things that I have been working on thus far. I have begun to restructure the treasurer's office and am in the process of developing new programs to improve the fiscal stability of the county."

During Gustus' first seven months in office he netted over $440,000 in earned interest from investment of county funds. The previous treasurer had earned only $5,85,00 in interest during his first seven months. "I am confident that as this campaign progresses and begins to focus on the accomplishments and goals of the various candidates that I shall be successful in September."

"I am a firm believer in the democratic process," he concluded. "It's the only appointment process I really care about and one I am looking forward to participating in."

Gustus is a native of Wilmington, and graduated from Wilmington High School. Subsequently, he took just three years to earn his B.A. from Wesleyan University and another three years to earn a law degree from New England School of Law. He is a member of the Massachusetts Bar Assn.

Gustus and his wife, Terry, are also veterans of the United States Peace Corps, having served in Malaysia. While there, Gustus was responsible for working with Malay businesses in dealing with the free enterprise systems.

The Gustus's have three children. Their oldest two, a son, Casey Ryan, and a daughter, Kelly Ann, are both 2-years old. The youngest, another son, John Patrick, just turned 1.

In summation, Gustus had this to say: "It has been a very active three years for me. I have been able to use my knoweldege and ability to improve the efficiency and operation of Middlesex County Government. I look forward to using the next six years to finish the job I have begun."

Medzorian Anchors The News

ANCHOR — Winchester's Dave Medzorian is now the eveing anchor for the Bangor, Maine, newscast "Telejournal."

Five seconds, Dave...Stand by..."Good evening everyone, in the news today..."

That's the opening to WABI-TV Channel Five's telejournal news program. The station is the CBS affiliate in Bangor, Maine.

The Saturday and late night anchor, Dave Medzorian, reports the news and even sometimes pinch hits as sportscaster and weatherman. During the day, however, he and his cameraman are busy covering the news throughout central and coastal Maine.

Dave is not a "Downeast Mainer". He hails from Winchester, the son of Jack and Eva Medzorian.

He left Winchester in January of this year to begin his broadcasting career after graduating from Northeast Broadcasting School.

"It's quite a challenge for me being on live television every day. But it is also every exciting." Medzorian did not travel to Bangor alone. On January 14, he married his sweetheart of three years, Nina Kaprielian of Watertown. The next day they moved to Bangor.

Dave and Nina of course, miss their many friends in the Boston area. While here, Dave worked on several local cable TV projects, including a special that aired in many communities last fall entitled: "November 22, 1963: After Twenty Years." Dave is a candidate for a national award for this production.

He has also produced for WABI-TV in Bangor, several special reports, including retrospects on the anniversaries of D-Day, and the Beatles' arrival in the United States. He is currently working on a report dealing with the twentieth anniversary of the release of the Warren Commission report to be aired Sept. 2.

As for the future, Medzorian can only speculate. "Who knows, in a few years, I may be saying, "Good evening from the Hub."

While the majority of their work involves glass replacement in cars and trucks, the 14-man crew at Classic Glass, at 287 Salem St., Woburn can make your car or home ready for summer by installing a sunroof or fitting your patio or indoor furniture with a new glass or mirror top.

Classic Glass specializes in glass replacement on all makes and models of foreign and domestic cars and trucks. They also do glass repair work on larger trucks and heavy construction equipment.

For the convenience of the customer, Classic Glass offers mobile service on glass repair. One of Classic Glass' installers will repair your vehicle on location, weather permitting, or they will pick up and return your car to your home or office. Their is no extra charge for the service and in Massachusetts it is fully covered by comprehensive insurance.

As for the quality of work and service, their reputation and experience speak for themselves — more than 25 years of experience and thousands of satisfied customers.

"All our glass repair work is guaranteed for as long as you own your car," explains proprietor Bill Brodie. "Our sunroofs carry the same guarantee."

That guarantee applies to a lot of sunroofs, since Classic Glass probably installs and supplies more sunroofs than any other single location in Eastern Massachusetts. They deal in both retail and wholesale.

If a glass or mirror tabletop is what your office or home needs this summer, Classic Glass is again the place to call. They can custom cut any shape or size tabletop to fit your furniture or can cut any shape wall mirror.

If you or someone you know has an old or antique car or truck that is in need of glass repair work, Classic Glass can again come to the rescue. "We have quite a stock of windshields for cars and trucks between the 40s and 60s," explains Brodie. "We also have a locator service involving hundreds of glass companies throughout the United States to track down windshields and windows for old model cars and trucks."

Classic Glass, a trusted name in glass and mirror repair work, is open Monday through Friday, 8-5, Saturdays, 8-12. Visit Classic Glass for auto and truck glass work, sunroof installation, home and office mirrors and furniture work, or for that hard-to-repair glass work on that old car or truck.

Rag-Tag Team Beats Big Boys In Playoffs

By DAVE LEECO

They really weren't much to look at, the team from Saltmarsh Insurance, at least not to the team they were facing in the Winchester Men's Softball League B Division playoffs Tuesday night.

Saltmarsh's opponent, McGuirk Construction, looked like, well, a bunch of construction workers, all shoulders, beards and big forearms.

Plus, McGuirk had the outfits — matching red, white and blue uniforms, sweatbands on the wrists, even matching batting gloves.

"It looks like that leftfielder must have bought Coleman's out of sweatbands," said one onlooker, pointing to the player with the three sweatbands — white and blue to match his uniform — on each arm.

Saltmarsh, on the other hand, was a bunch of just-out-of-high-school kids, a pitcher with gray hair, and a first baseman who looked a couple of years and several pounds past his prime.

Their uniforms were the cheapo nylon shirts from a sports shop, with iron-on letters, and blue sweat pants. One of the sweat pants had a tear in the knee. The first baseman wasn't even wearing uniform pants.

Saltmarsh really didn't look like much.

But then again, that gray-haired pitcher was putting a beatiful arc on the ball.

And the first baseman, the guy with the extra weight and no uniform pants, made a beautiful dive to his right, stopped a liner, and scrambled to the bag to make the out.

And Saltmarsh suddenly was coming up with runs — six in the first, then back-to-back homers in the fourth. Two homers, right to the same place in left field. One from one of those post-high-school kids, Richy Montuori. One from that first baseman.

The McGuirk team seemed like they were out to win, no matter what. The first inning wasn't even over before they began swearing at the umpires' calls and slamming their gloves into the dirt.

The Saltmarsh team seemed like they were there to have fun.

And, as if to prove there is justice in the sports world, if not the real world, Saltmarsh was beating the heck out of McGuirk.

When it was all over, and McGuirk had slunk off the field after an 11-2 loss to Saltmarsh, putting the insurance company team up 2-1 in the best-of-five series, the Saltmarsh players savoured their success.

Artie Montuori, the first basemen without the pants and with the great move to his right, tried to be serious and talk about the background of his team, the talents of the other players.

"This is a good team to play for, we've got a lot of young kids with good wheels," he said. "And our pitcher, John Jordan, really calms us down."

But every once in awhile during the conversation, a wistful smile slipped on Montuori's face.

"You know," he said. "This is as far as we ever got."

Most of the Saltmarsh team has been playing together for five years, since most of them got out of high school.

"We all came in together," said Steve Criscione, the team's catcher. "Jay Tedesco, his brother Mark, Ron Dokus, Tony Wilsack, Richy Montuori, Guy Joslin — we all were in the same class.

"For five years, we never won a game against these guys," said Criscione. "Then, this year..."

This year. It's all coming together.

Not that the Saltmarsh players consider themselves primo ballplayers.

"Watch these guys if you want to see good ball," said Montuori, pointing to the Bellino's A-Division team taking the field after the B-Division playoff was over. "This is serious ball."

It was serious ball too. And Bellino's was worth watching, as they defeated J.J. Loftus 2-1 to win the A-Division title.

For the B-Division, summer softball is exercize and fun.

"I got my $40 worth," said Montuori. "It's good fun, good exercize.

"I don't do much in the fall, I'm getting older, and I can't join one of those health clubs — I don't have the willpower," he said. "So I come out here."

Then the wistfull expression returns.

"You know, we never had fans before."

They Were Giants

All-Stars Come Back From 23-10 Massacre To Win Second And Stay In Tourney

After getting crushed by a team of "giants" in the first game of the Reading All-Star tournament, the Winchester All-Stars came back to win their second game and advance to the second round of the tourney.

Winchester took the second in the double-elimination series on a one-run pitching performance from Ricky Mawn and an early barrage of runs, capped by homers from Matt Rotondi and Adam Howell.

The 11- and 12-year-olds needed both the pitching and the early runs in the game against Chelmsford, since the Chelmsford pitcher came back in the second inning and retired 17 straight batters.

The second game was much more satisfying than the first, as the East Boston South team massacred the Winchester All-Stars 23-10.

"We should have stayed home," commented league president Dick Mawn. "They were giants, these kids. This was the team that took Swamscott all the way to the state finals."

They took Winchester for a ride too, jumping off to an 11-0 lead right away.

"The kids were in awe of them, they were so big," said Mawn. "By the time we woke up in third inning, it was 11-0."

Once they woke up, though, Winchester made a game of it. They scored 10 runs over the next two innings — four in the top of the fourth, then six in the fifth

The runs came on three homers.

In the fourth, Matt Rotondi banged a three-run homer after Danny O'Connell and Michael Queenan singled. Jimmy McGeehan followed that blast with a solo homer to make it 11-4.

In the fourth inning, a series of walks loaded the bases for John O'Connell, who responded with a grand slam. Another walk and a single gave Matt Rotondi a chance for a few more RBIs, and he came through with a double to score two runs.

That brought the score to 11-10. But in the final two innings, "two errors opened the floodgates and wow," recalled Mawn. East Boston scored a dozen runs in those final two innings to walk away with a 23-10 victory.

One of the reasons East Boston had it so easy was the lack of depth in the Winchester All-Stars pitching roster. Two of the pitchers were out for the game, one on a family outing, the second on the bench after being hit with a line drive in practice.

The coaches were saving the ace of the staff, Ricky Mawn, for the second game of the tournament — the crucial game in a double-elimination tourney in the case of a loss.

That left John O'Connell and reliever Ray Forcina. Both were bombarded by the East Boston giants, and although Forcina pitched very, very well for a few innings, errors hurt him in the end.

As it turned out, saving Mawn worked out just fine.

Sunday, against Chelmsford, the All-Stars had a very easy 5-1 win behind Mawn's pitching performance.

St. Mary's Undefeated

By JIM MCKENZIE

St. Mary's Junior division CYO baseball capped an undefeated season with a victory over St. Bernadette of Randolph Sunday at McDonald Field.

The victory ended an exciting season which saw the Saints demolish their opponents by an average of 10 runs per game.

Coached by Paul Del Vecchio and Sam Kenton with the Rev. George Butera putting together the schedule, the squad was strong all around. It featured an incredible team batting average of .407 with an earned run average of .80.

The club featured many present and future Winchester varsity ball players. Much of the strength of the team lay up the middle with Scott Binding and T.J. DellaSala anchoring the infield at shortstop and second base respectively. Balls were rarely hit between them and if so, surehanded center fielder Peter Del Vecchio was there to make the play.

George Stewart pitched seven of the ball games and came away with three shutouts to go along with 45 strikeouts. Which is amazing when one considers that most of the games only lasted 4 or 5 innings because of the 10-run rule.

John Ockerbloom and Michael White platooned flawlessly behind the plate and complemented the pitching of Stewart.

Brian Carrol and Alex Nasson completed the infield for St. Mary's.

Carrol was a rock-steady third baseman who was called on to pitch and responded with two victories — one a shutout and a save — in three games.

Nasson solidified a strong infield with exceptional play at first and launched himself into a terrific batting streak in the second half of the season, including a two-homerun game in July.

In the outfield, J.R. Morton, Gareth Kenton, Jim McKenzie, and Robbie Glynn alternated along with Del Vecchio.

Coach Del Vecchio had the pleasure of being able to mix and match any outfield combinations without losing any strength.

Glynn was a definite surprise coming on to play centerfield when Peter Del Vecchio was out with the flu and he responded by settling into the lineup for the remainder of the season.

McKenzie and Kenton switched as left fielder and designated hitter. Morton was often un-heralded, but turned in a solid performance both in the field and at bat.

The bench strength for St. Mary's was just that — strength. Peter Regan, Tim Kavanaugh, Peter Ockerbloom, and David Dellagrotte all would have started for any other team in the league, and Coach Del Vecchio had no second thoughts about inserting any of them in to the lineup at any time.

All in all, it was a summer of fun for everyone, except Middlesex League coaches who must face the majority of this spectacular team next spring during high school varsity play.

It's Back To School Time For Local Dogs When Rec. Dept. Begins Obedience Classes

September means back to school for everyone, even mom's best friend. The Winchester Recreation Dept. and instructor Cathy Cullen will be presenting a school for obedience to help make dogs "well educated."

The Dog Obedience Program will be offered on Monday evenings. Beginners Class at 6:30 p.m. and Advanced at 7:30 p.m., starting on Sept. 10. The program will meet for 10-weeks at a local facility.

Cullen is an experienced trainer/handler and has put together an interesting format that will provide owners with a unique educational opportunity for their dog. A $20 fee is required for the class.

Interested individuals must register at the Winchester Recreation Dept. at 458 Main st., (McCall School) by Friday, Sept. 7. Office hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Vacation Bible School To Begin On Aug. 20

Luncheon And Fashion Show Will Be Held

Martha Finamore of Winchester, president of the Friends of the Speech & Hearing Foundation, invites membrs, their guests and potential members to a Luncheon — Fashion Show on Wednesday, Sept. 19 at 11:30 a.m.

This event will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mario Ciroli, 18 Fernway. Mrs. Ciroli is a former president of the Friends of the Speech & Hearing Foundation and a generous supporter of their activities.

After a delectable luncheon catered by Seasoned to Taste of Cambridge, an exciting fashion show will be presented. These fashions are custom designed and executed by Janie Kasarjian of Couture & Ready to Wear Fashions located at 2A Mt. Vernon Street, Winchester Center. Prior to opening this retail outlet, Ms. Kasarjian was represented in many top designer salons. Among these, Apogee, Cachet, Yolanda, Divino, Bloomingdale, Henri Bendel and Bergdorf Goodman.

Models will include Barbara Ashley, Mary Ciroli, Gloria Simboli, and Alma Tambone, all of Winchester.

Reservations are limited. Those interested in joining this organization may contact Nina Lepore of Arlington at 646-8169 or Janie Kasarjian at 721-2881.

Job Bank To Finish Up

After a summer full of successful matches between employers and employees, the Job Bank will be finishing up on Friday, Aug. 24. However, plans are being made to continue the Job Bank on a part-time basis through the school year.

The Job Bank will be run through the Youth Center starting next week. The new phone number will be 729-7390. Calls may be directed to the Recreation Dept. at 721-7125 if unable to reach the Job Bank at its new number.

Junior Tennis Tourney Will Be Held On Sept. 4

The annual Junior Tennis Tournament sponsored by the Winchester Recreation Dept. will be held at the Packer Courts starting Tuesday, Sept. 4.

This tournament is open to all junior residents of Winchester. Age divisions are 15-and-under and 12-and-under, with girls' and boys' divisions for each age group.

Applications are available at the Winchester Sports Shop, The News Shop and from supervisor Whit Gray at the Packer Courts.

Deadline for returning applications is Aug. 31 by noon.

Before we set the table, we set the mood.

At Toffs we pay attention to the niceties. Art deco flourishes. Fresh-cut flowers. Delightful piano music. And, a lively, yet relaxing atmosphere for late afternoon cocktails and complimentary hors d'oeuvres all over looking the beautiful Charles River and Boston skyline.

And for dinner, our attentive staff will make sure you're well taken care of. You'll find our new American cuisine as refreshing as our ambience. Sample our Chicken Picasso or Paillard of Veal to the strains of a grand piano and see what we mean.

For cocktails, lunch or dinner served in a distinctive setting all its own, come to Toffs in the beautiful new Royal Sonesta Hotel Cambridge.

OBITUARIES

James H. Allen

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for James H. Allen, a resident of Winchester for 32 years, who died at his home Aug. 21. He was 81.

Mr. Allan was the custodian at the Noonan School in Winchester for many years until his retirement 18 years ago.

Born in Ireland, he was the son of Thomas and Margaret (Nolan) Allen.

He came to this country as a young man and resided in the South End section of Woburn for 33 years before moving to the Loring ave. neighborhood in Winchester.

Mr. Allen was a member of the Holy Name Society of the Immaculate Conception Church and an honorary member of the Winchester Knights of Columbus.

He is survived by his wife, Linda (McHugh) Allen; two sons, Thomas J. Allen of Burlington and James H. Allen of San Jose, Calif.; two daughters, Rita Walsh of Stoneham and Linda Falzano of Winchester; 16 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Calling hours will be held today from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Lynch-Cantillon Funeral Home, 263 Main st., Woburn.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 9:15 from the funeral home. A funeral mass will follow in the Immaculate Conception Church in Winchester at 10 a.m.

Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. Lynch-Cantillon Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Ruth Kingman

Ruth Kingman, 88, a resident of the Mt. Vernon House, died Aug. 19 at the Fairlawn Nursing Home in Lexington.

Mrs. Kingman was the secretary for the Praying Hands magazine and for the First Congregational Church in Winchester.

She was a member of the Studio Guild and of the First Congregational Church.

A native of New Jersey, she was the wife of the late John M. Kingman.

She is survived by two daughters, Nancy Boyle of Winchester and Ruth K. Howard of Albuquerque, N.M.; and four grandchildren.

A memorial service will be set for a later date.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Norris Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Robert G. Millican

Dr. Robert G. Millican, 69, a Winchester dentist who retired last June after 44 years of practice, died Aug. 18 at the Winchester Hospital after a lengthy bout with cancer. The memorial service will be today.

Born in Manchester, N.H., in 1915, he moved to Winchester with his family in 1929 and has been a resident for 55 years. He graduated from Winchester High School in 1933, attended Boston University and graduated from Harvard Dental School in 1940.

In World War II, he served for four years as a dental officer with the Navy Seabees in the Pacific Theater, retiring with the rank of commander.

As a young man, he was active in the Boy Scouts, earning the rank of Eagle Scout and later becoming a dedicated Scout Leader with Winchester Troop 3.

Dr. Millican, a member of the First Congregational Church in Winchester, was actively involved in the work of the church. He served as chairman on many committees, participated in the Parish Players, served as a church deacon and worked with the youth of the church.

At one time, he took a leading role in Winchester's United Fund drives.

His dental affiliations included membership in the American Dental Assoc., the Massachusetts Dental Society and the New England Dental Society, of which he was the president in 1959-1960.

Dr. Millican leaves his wife, Judith (Emery) Millican; a son, Andrew Millican; four daughters, Janet Todd of Bethel, Maine, Nancy Rogers of Woolwich, Maine, Margaret Millican of Greenfield, and Katharyn Harlow of Byfield; and nine grandchildren.

Also, a brother, Dr. Leonard Millican of Plymouth; and a sister, Margaret A. Millican of Winchester.

Rev. Walter Davis will officiate at a memorial service to be held Thursday, Aug. 23, at 2 p.m. at the First Congregational Church in Winchester.

Burial will be in South Chatham at a later date.

Memorial donations may be sent to the Minuteman Council, Boy Scouts of America, 245 North st., Stoneham.

Funeral arrangements are by Lane Funeral Home.

Angelina Scarpani

Angelina Scarpaci, 68, of Ravine rd. and Long Boat Key, Fla., died Aug. 14 in the Aberjona Nursing Home after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Scarpaci was born in Quincy, resided in Winchester for 35 years, and resided in Long Boat Key for 10 years.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church for many years.

Mrs. Scarpaci is survived by her husband, Frank J. Scarpaci; two children, Frank J. Scarpaci of Danvers and Mary Anne J. Cheney of Reading; and five grandchildren.

She is also survived by two brothers, Lawrence Cantelli and Eugene Cantelli, both of Quincy; and three sisters, Delia McDonald, Catherine Vitti and Victoria Donahue, all of Quincy.

Funeral services were held from the Lane Funeral Home on Aug. 17, followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church.

Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

H. Joseph Burke

H. Joseph Burke, 66, of LaGrange st. died Aug. 14 at Winchester Hospital following a brief illness.

Mr. Burke was a banker employed by the First National Bank of Boston for 30 years. He retired in 1981.

Born in Brookline, the son of the late Martin and Beatrice (Quinn) Burke, he was educated in the Brookline schools and graduated from Brookline High School.

Mr. Burke had lived for 27 years in Winchester, where he was a member of St. Mary's Church.

He is survived by his sister, Mary Duran of Winchester; a nephew, Paul L. Duran of Winchester; and two nieces, Margery J. Duran of Winchester and Carole M. Galletta of Woburn.

Funeral services were held from the Lane Funeral Home on Aug. 18, followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Robert W. Powers

Funeral services will be held this morning for former Winchester firefighter Robert W. Powers of Shepard ct., who died unexpectedly on Aug. 20 at Winchester Hospital. He was 53.

Mr. Powers was a firefighter with the Winchester Fire Dept. for 23 years before his retirement four months ago.

A lifelong resident of Winchester, Mr. Powers was a graduate of the Winchester school system.

He was a veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps who served during the Korean War. He was a member of the Winchester Veterans of Foreign Wars Aberjona Post 3719.

His is survived by his wife, Dorothy A. (Crowley) Powers, a son, Michael D. Powers of Woburn; five daughters, Nancy M. Rubman of Winchester, Denise M. Batalis of Stoneham, and Carey A. Powers, Tracy A. Powers, and Kelly A. Powers, all of Winchester; and five grandchildren.

He is also survived by two sisters, Ruth Nilsen of Florida and Margaret Nowell of Winchester, and three brothers, John A. Powers of Winchester, Francis Powers of Woburn and Richard Powers of Somerville.

He was also the brother of the late Irene Furtaw.

A funeral mass will be held today at the Immaculate Conception Church at 10 a.m. The Rev. George Dufour will celebrate the mass.

Burial will be in Wildwood Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Children's Hospital Cancer Research Fund For Children, 300 Longwood ave., Boston, 02116.

Arthur V. Donnellan

Arthur Vincent Donnellan, 90, of Woburn died Aug. 15 in Winchester Hospital.

Mr. Donnellan was a science teacher at Boston High School for 43 years. At the time of his retirement in 1964, he was the head of the school's Science Dept. He also coached baseball, football and hockey at the school.

A native of Medford, he graduated from Medford High School in 1912, and went on to earn a science degree from Tufts University in 1916. While at Tufts, he played baseball, football and hockey.

In 1921, Mr. Donnellan began his teaching career at Boston High School. In 1928 he received a master's degree from Boston Teachers College.

Mr. Donnellan moved to Woburn shortly before his retirement, and lived in that city for 22 years.

He was a member of the American Legion Post 45 of Medford and The Barracks, a World War I Army group. He was past commodore of the Medford Boat Club, and worked with the American Legion in forming the Boys State Government program.

He is survived by his wife, Rhea M. Donnellan; a son, William F. Donnellan of Winchester; nine grandchildren and one great-grandson.

Funeral services were held from the Costello Funeral Home on Aug. 18, followed by a mass of Christian burial at the Immaculate Conception Church, celebrated by the Rev. George Dufour.

Burial was in Oak Grove Cemetery, Medford. Costello Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be made to the Heart Fund, 112 Cypress st., Brookline, 02147.

Melissa Mason

Melissa Mason, formerly of Cross st., died Aug. 18 at Malden Hospital.

Mrs. Mason was a devoted housekeeper to many Winchester families and a friend to many in the community.

A native of Boston, she was the wife of the late Charles J. Mason.

Funeral services were held at the Norris Funeral Home on Aug. 22. The Rev. Oscar G. Philips officiated.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Norris Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Babysitting Course Will Be Offered In Medford

A six week babysitting course for boys and girls age 12 and older will be held at Lawrence Memorial Hospital of Medford beginning Wednesday, Sept. 12. The class will meet for six Wednesdays, from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the LMH School of Nursing, 170 Governors ave., Medford.

The course is conducted by LMH School of Nursing instructors and student nurses. Topics to be covered include infant and child care, fire and personal safety, nutrition and the medical aspects of babysitting. A choke saving demonstration will also be included. Students who successfully complete the course will be awarded the "LMH Babysitters Certificate" at the final class on Oct. 17.

Registration is required. Class size is limited, so early registration is encouraged to insure acceptance in the class. For more information, or to register for the course, contact the LMH Public Relations Dept.

a great ice-breaker. And because it brings back so many memories for people, they want to tell me all about them when they see the car."

Hewitt, who is petite and does not look much older than her two teen-age daughters, appears especially diminutive behind the enormous turquoise steering wheel of the car.

"It's like driving a truck or a tank," she laughs, starting up the car for a short cruise to the gas station. "When I make a turn, I get great exercise. They don't make cars that give you this kind of exercise anymore."

Hewitt is welcomed warmly at Bossi's Exxon, where the car goes for periodic check-ups. Jim Bossi is crazy about the Chevy.

"I'm almost certain that it's a classic," he says admiringly. "It's in amazing shape. A real show stopper."

Bossi fills the 16 gallon tank by lifting one of the tail lights in the back.

According to Bossi, who treats the car with the same tender loving care that Hewitt insists on, it is the "simplicity — from the suspension to the exhaust" that makes the car, with its design-box frame and V-8 engine, so special.

"This model was used a lot as a hot-rod," he says. "There was a lot of attraction to it in that era because of the high horsepower. It could really fly."

The only drawback to the car is finding parts, Hewitt adds. The car does not have a radio, and she would like to find one for it.

Hewitt always brings the car to Bossi's, rather than work on it herself. And while her husband Micheal enjoys driving the car, he has little interest in working on it.

"There is no way he could restore it — he's low-tech," laughs Hewitt. But her son, Michael, hopes he may inherit the car, if it lasts the eight years it will take before he is eligible for a license.

"It's just fun," he says. "You bounce around a lot. It's like driving around in a tank."

"I hope it lasts," adds Hewitt. "It's been in the family for so long now that I really feel like it's part of us."

will improve because of reductions in Metropolitan District Commission and county charges.

The state has agreed to put $10 million into the MDC's Water and Sewer Division, which will decrease the water and sewer charges to the towns.

The state also agreed to pick up the cost of the county courthouses. Under the court reform, the state had picked up county court personnel costs, but not the cost of maintaining the courthouses.

With the state taking over the courthouse costs, Winchester will no longer have to pay its share of the expenses for the Cambridge, Woburn and Lowell courts.

The advantage to all the new state aid is that Winchester homeowners won't be benefiting just this year, Saltmarsh pointed out, since the lottery money will keep rolling in, and the state charges won't.

"Ricky was in control whole game — he gave up only three hits, pitched a super game, and wasn't in trouble whole game," said Mawn. "And the defense played very well behind him."

Mawn had seven strikeouts, gave up only two walks, and "pitched his best game ever in Little League against one of better teams around," according to Mawn.

Mawn also had a comfortable lead to work with, thanks to his teammates, who scored all five of their runs in the first inning.

It started off with a single from John O'Connell, a walk, and three-run homer from Matt Rotondi, giving him eight RBIs for the series.

And it ended with a walk and a two-run homer from Adam Howell.

It really ended, too. The Chelmsford pitcher didn't give up a hit after Howell's homer, retiring 17 in a row. "The kid had a tremendous curve," noted Mawn. "I guess he was trying to blow it by them in the first inning, but he switched to the curve after that, and that was it."

Between his pitching and Mawn's pitching, the game took less than an hour to play.

The Winchester All-Stars will play the third game of the series Friday night against the loser of the Reading — St. Mary's of Revere game.

The contest will be held at the Little League field off Charles st. in Reading. Game time is 5:30.

A Markey campaign worker, Jim Dolan, noted in a memo to the press that Rotondi is running a "negative campaign" against Markey, and playing "fast and loose" with Markey's record of public service.

Rotondi, who has spent over $60,000 on radio ads that depict Markey as indecisive on a number of issues, denied that his campaign is "negative."

"I would call it hard-hitting," he said. "It is only a fair representation of a very legitimate issue — Markey's credibility."

Up until this week, the Markey campaign hadn't used the same sort of tactic — they weren't talking about Rotondi's credibility. In fact, Markey rarely mentioned Rotondi at all.

That changed this week, with the three-page memo to local papers that starts out with the statement, "The next time you see Sam Rotondi ask him why his campaign is trying to deceive the media and through them the public about the strength of his campaign among organizations and individuals."

The memo goes on to attack Rotondi's record and his campaign record. It doesn't list specifics, but does note, "we would be pleased to discuss these matters with the press."

According to David Stuart, who researches issues for the Markey campaign, there is a reason for the change.

"Given Rotondi's history of conflicting positions on the same issues, we wonder how credible he is," Stuart said. "We are saying that the public should know about Rotondi's inconsistencies as his record is riddled with them."

Stuart accused Rotondi of holding different positions on 13 issues, a charge that Rotondi said was "ludicrous."

"Where in the world did he get that number from, I wonder," said Rotondi, laughing. "Is it because I have 13 kids in my family? That is the most ridiculous thing I have ever heard."

Rotondi said that Markey was "frustrated because my campaign is gaining momentum and he cannot run a negative campaign against me.

"Any campaign that specifically attacks another candidate without backing up the charges is irresponsible. They couldn't state specifics."

Dolan, who wrote the memo, said the specifics of Rotondi's inconsistencies were readily available. And Stuart, in a telephone interview, described some of them.

"Rotondi claims to support the nuclear freeze, but on his Freeze Voter '84 Questionnaire, he indicated that he supports increases in military spending and the development of several missiles, including the Pershing II, and anti-satellite weapons," Stuart said. "And that is just one example."

Rotondi defended his positions. "Markey says he would do away with the Pershing and the Cruise Missile. That is irresponsible and misleading. I said I would not dismantle the weapons without first discussing them with Russia.

"Markey is looking for unilateral disarmament," continued Rotondi. "I am looking for a mutually verifiable freeze."

Even though both candidates say they want world peace, it doesn't look like there will be a peaceful campaign in the final weeks before the primary.

Rotondi said he will continue to hammer away at Markey on the PAC issue. And Markey's press secretary, Peter O'Neil, said, "In Markey's campaign and in his politics, he does not believe in unilateral disarmament."

added.

No matter what course Arlington and the 50 other communities choose to follow, local water and sewer bills can be expected to triple or quadruple in the next five years, according to state Rep. John Cusack, chairman of the House committee which oversees the MDC.

"Because of the judgement in the city of Quincy lawsuit, the MDC will no longer be running at least the sewer operations," Cusack said. Court-ordered repairs will have to be made. "That is a cost we will not be able to hide from."

The new Metropolitan Water Resources Authority proposed by Governor Michael Dukakis would combine water and sewer service, funding operations through user fees, and repairs and renovations through revenue bonds (bonds backed by the fees the authority expects to collect.) The authority would not be bound by the limitations of Proposition 2½ in setting its fees, or issuing the bonds.

At last week's meeting, Secretary Hoyte and his staff offered five-year projections of capital costs for the 15-year, $1.5 billion sewer program, and less-detailed figures for the $800 million water project proposed under the new authority.

The state officials outlined expected federal grants of up to $30 million a year, and state grants of up to $8 million. That would leave the local communities to carry 46 percent of the repair costs.

The information did not seem to satisfy the local officials.

"This looks like just another way of getting the local communities to pay for the inefficient, sloppy and poor management of the MDC over the last 85 years," said Belmont Selectman William Monahan.

Others were upset by the limited figures offered.

"I always get nervous when the state talks about a 15-year program and gives five-year costs," commented Lyons after the meeting. "They talked about $254 million for sewer repairs in the first five years; but it looks like (the cost) would be $160 million for the sixth year alone."

The state's financial consultants, however, feel they're providing the best figures they can so far, and said there was no attempt to hide anything from the communities.

"If you start looking at 10-year or 15-year projections, the uncertainty of when a certain part would come on line or what it would cost makes it difficult (to predict costs)," said Ned Sullivan of the Bank of Boston.

Sullivan and state officials presented rough estimates of the costs of the sewer capital construction, and some overall estimates of the water service rehabilitation costs.

The state calculates the necessary work on the sewer delivery and treatment systems at $1.5 billion over the next 15 years — $254 million in the first five years.

That would make the regional sewer budget leapfrog from this year's $23 million to $29 million next year, $34 million the following year, $38 million the next year, and $49 million the following year. And those figures, according to Hoyte's staff, are in uninflated dollars.

Estimates for the cost of the water service renovation were up to $800 million for the water system, including up to $300 million for a possible "second Quabbin" that water experts are just beginning to research, according to the Deborah Howard, Assistant Secretary of Environmental Affairs.

"We don't know when, or how, or where such a facility would be," Howard said. "We've just started looking into it." But studies on establishing a second major water supply and possible construction costs are factored into the projected costs, she said.

The five-year projection for the water service improvements was roughly $151 million, including $5.4 million to study the Hultman aqueduct, and ways to create a back-up delivery system for the single pipeline from Quabbin Reservoir. The aqueduct carries the water for 40 percent of the state's population, and state officials are concerned about its need for repairs in the near future, Howard said.

Local officials questioned the figures offered, asking if they account for inflation, or show the combined impact of construction and increased operation and maintenance costs.

Sullivan acknowledged they did not; he said the figures were given in uninflated dollars to allow comparisons to this year's charges.

Increases in operation and maintenance costs were not included in the sewer capital costs figures. They were factored into projected rate increases offered as examples, but Sullivan cautioned the communities against depending on those figures.

The local authorities were also cautioned not to try to compare the five-year projections against Cherry Sheet charges for water and sewer services, which are not based on the same calculations.

(Part of the increase in annual costs, according to one State House staffer who has worked closely with the proposal, is due to the Bank of Boston's recommendation that the new authority begin to pay off principal on long-standing debts.

(Some reach back to the 1930s, when Quabbin Reservoir was built; others, the staffer said, are bonds issued when the MDC was first formed 85 years ago, which have been refinanced several times.)

Hoyte and his aides spent most of the two-hour meeting selling the authority concept.

"The sewer system we rely upon is really in a state of collapse right now," Hoyte said. "One of the byproducts of its poor condition is the pollution of Boston Harbor; one of the byproducts of that is the Quincy suit.

"While we were looking at the sewer side, we decided to look at the capital facilities of the water side," Hoyte added. "It's not in absolute collapse, but we're faced with the same threat in five or six years."

But the court order to clean up the harbor doesn't say anything about the water system that the governor wants to include in the new authority.

And more than one town official — including Belmont Selectmen chairman William Monahan, and Watertown manager Peter Boyer — has challenged the need to do both projects at once.

The officials say they can't evaluate the governor's proposal without better cost estimates. The water-division estimates they were given last week are not enough to make a good decision, they insist.

"And we're not going to buy a pig in a poke," as one representative expressed it.

Several officials asked why the state had funded the existing MDC water and sewer operations for only six months.

"We hope to have the authority in place by then," Hoyte said simply.

"I'm concerned the whole system may collapse without funding," Lyons said after the meeting.

Arlington's six-months' MDC assessment is 30 percent higher than last year's, he said. If the legislature has to vote a supplemental budget in December because the status of the authority is not yet settled, he is concerned about how those costs will be assessed — and to whom.

But Lyons was certain the 51 communities will be able to make their opinions heard — and not simply because they have valid points to make.

"I think the governor is going to recognize that he can't quadruple people's water and sewer bills two months before he starts to run for reelection," Lyons said. "July 1985 would be the first water and sewer bills affected. They're starting to realize they can't take 85 years of state responsibility and throw it over on the communities, on the basis of that court order."

Abandoned Money List

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane announced that his office is attempting to return $600,000 to 5,100 Massachusetts residents under the state's Unclaimed Money Law.

Treasurer Crane noted that this money has been reported to the Treasurer by insurance companies doing business within the commonwealth. Included in the proceeds are unpaid life insurance benefits, unpaid benefits on health and liability insurance policies, pension checks and customer overpayments.

Under Massachusetts Unclaimed Money Law (M.G.L. ch.200A), accounts which have been unclaimed for at least five years are declared abandoned and must be reported to the Treasury. The Treasury Department then tries to locate the rightful owners or legal heirs.

"A majority of these accounts represent the cash value of life insurance policies" Crane said. "My office is making every effort, to locate the owners or legal heirs to return these funds to those who are due them."

Individual entitlements from these unclaimed accounts range from $25 to a single account worth more than $16,000. More than 1000 accounts range between $100-$500; 175 accounts between $500-$1000; 88 accounts between $1000-$5000 and 8 accounts between $5000-$16,000. The remaining accounts are less than $100.

Persons who believe they may have a valid claim should call the Treasurer's Office at 523-1042 or toll free 1-800-632-8027.

BUSY PARENTS

Avoid morning rush

It's back-to-school time once again. For busy parents, whether they're trying to juggle careers or household responsibilities with children's school schedules, knowing how to make the ship run smoothly will prevent many new gray hairs.

Robin Kriegsman Glazer, parent counselor and author of the best-selling book, "Letting Go: How to Help Your Two- to Five-Year-Old Become a Well-Adjusted and Independent Child," has several time-saving tips that will help make mornings easier when you're in a rush.

Dressing. Children should be able to dress themselves and choose their own clothing each day. It is simple to make your child's present room and furniture arrangements well organized, thus making it easier for your child to dress himself.

— Bureau drawers can be divided into compartments with cardboard. Place smaller items in some compartments while larger items, such as shirts and pants, can go into others. This way, items are easier for your child to sort through and will stay neater.

— If you have adequate wall space, invest in expandable cup or hat racks to hang up children's sweaters, blouses and pants. A bonus is that clothing will remain unwrinkled.

— Label each drawer with a photo from a magazine or catalog and a word label of what is inside the drawer to make selecting items easier.

— Children are notorious for choosing clothing by preference and not suitability. So out-of-season clothing should be removed and stored. After all, you don't

CHILDREN

Detecting learning difficulties

"Some children need a road map to life, with someone standing behind them to keep them on the road," says Dr. Robert P. Perens, clinical assistant professor of pediatrics at Harbor-University of California at Los Angeles Medical Center. "We call them 'Attention Deficit Disorder Children.'"

Attention Deficit Disorder, Perens explains, is not a disease but a diagnosis of a behavioral pattern in children.

These children have learning difficulties that often go undetected until late in childhood. If the problem is discovered before the child starts school, however, early treatment can help him adjust and adapt to his new environment without distress.

"I'm talking about children who basically fall into the average range of ability," Perens says. "There is nothing intellectually peculiar about them. But they do have a basic defect which hampers them throughout the day. They have an inability to attend to and complete tasks."

According to the doctor, there are three areas to consider when trying to evaluate a child's behavior: how he performs at home, at play and at school.

"At home, the child with learning difficulties never finishes anything. He is easily sidetracked and forgets what he is supposed to do," he says. "When confronted by his parents, he becomes irritable or belligerent."

Perens emphasizes that these children are rebelling the way all children do. The difference is that they do it consistently and constantly.

In terms of play, Perens suggests that parents watch for disorganized activity.

"Children with ADD do not participate well," he notes. "On the playing field they're looking away and don't see the ball. They are

RISING COSTS

Making college affordable

Now that a single year of room, board and tuition at a state university costs about $4,500 and many of the more prestigious schools have topped the $12,000-a-year mark, most parents are wondering how they'll ever foot such a bill.

And inflation rates amplify their concern. According to an article in Redbook magazine, if inflation continues to rise at current rates, the average annual college tab will double in 10 years.

If your children soon will be of college age, the place to start looking for help, advised the article, is the financial aid office of the school they want to attend. This office will tell you how to apply for scholarships and grants, spell out terms of educational loans made to students and parents and explain state and federal student aid programs.

Two other valuable sources of information are the U.S. government's free booklet, The Student

BEGINNINGS

Is kindergarten too tough?

FIRST DAY — These kindergartners listen to their teacher to find out that school is more than finger painting, puzzles and naps. CNS photo by Dennis Huls.

Two decades ago kindergarten was a romp — a half-day of finger painting, puzzles and puppets with time-out for a milk break and a nap on the floor.

But these days kindergartners are learning rudimentary reading, basic math and penmanship. In many cases, they are expected to have learned the alphabet before they even enter the classroom door.

The old emphasis on developing motor coordination, speech and language now has been replaced with academics — learning the three R's.

"The pressure is on for kindergartners," says child development specialist Ellen Ostrie, whose hope is that kindergarten readiness testing can be provided to all prospective kindergartners.

Thousands of 5-year-olds march off to kindergarten each year but some, she says, aren't ready. She adds that many parents need help assessing whether their child is prepared.

Those who aren't ready aren't necessarily children with learning disabilities, but normal kids. "All children develop by their own timetables," Ostrie says. "You don't make a kid walk at 7 months, and, just the same, you shouldn't accelerate a child into kindergarten if he isn't ready. Kindergarten is a child's first formal experience with learning. It is critical that the experience be a good one because it sets the tone for years to come."

Ostrie is convinced that parents should be aware of their children's developmental progress. Areas specifically monitored are motor coordination, speech and language, visual, social and emotional development.

Substantial growth in developmental areas is critical for 5-year-olds about to enter kindergarten. Without substantial growth in these areas, children may experience difficulty learning reading and writing and math. Ostrie, who has two young children, explains that learning is like a ladder — one step leads to another. Skills like putting together jigsaw puzzles help children learn to differentiate between shapes. Knowing this leads to being able to differentiate between the letters of the alphabet and numbers.

In the same way, a child who can draw a picture of himself with all the parts intact and in the right place has learned how the body is put together. "You have to know how your body is connected before you can learn how other systems are connected," explains Ostrie. "That includes the alphabet and numbers."

There is no simple method for determining that a child is ready for kindergarten. But Ostrie lists the following developmental skills as important for a child if he is to function happily in the kindergarten classroom.

Speech and Language

— Asks meaning of words.
— Describes pictures and experiences.
— Uses appropriate verb tense and grammar.
— Recognizes simple jokes, riddles, absurdities (Do cats fly?).

Gross Motor Coordination.

— Walks down stairs using alternate feet.
— Hops on one foot.
— Jumps along a 6-foot line with both feet.
— Walks scissor steps across a line.
— Begins to skip, alternating feet.

Fine Motor Coordination

— Can use scissors to cut a straight line.
— Copies a circle, square and cross.
— Draws a person with body and four limbs.
— Traces within lines.

Social and Emotional

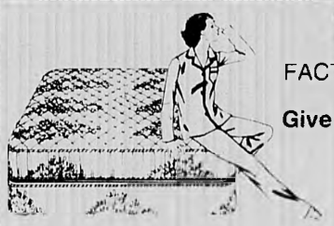

— Can handle snaps, buckles, buttons, zippers and begins to tie a shoelace bow independently.
— Independent toileting.
— Dresses and undresses independently.
— Able to function in structured group with rules (attentive and sits quietly).
— Shows concern and sympathy for others.
— Initiates sharing and taking turns.

EYE CARE

A comprehensive eye examination, according to the American Optometric Association, should include:

— A review of the patient's and family's general health and eye health history.
— Examination of the eye's exterior and interior.
— A check of eye coordination and eye muscle function to check that the eyes are working together.
— Tests to determine nearsightedness, farsightedness or astigmatism.
— A test of the ability to change focus easily when shifting the eyes from one distance to another.

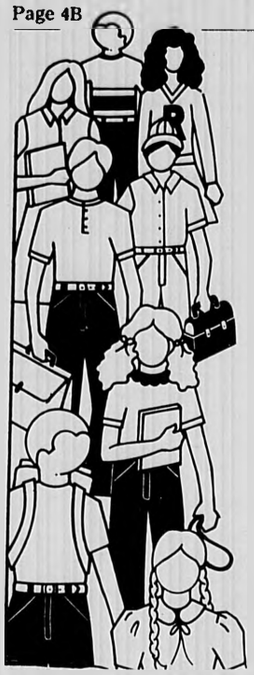

A child's first eye exam is recommended for no later than age 3. It should include all of the above, plus motor tests to determine eye-hand-foot coordination and tests of depth perception and color vision.

Gifted children – fact and fiction

By Willard Abraham
Ph.D.
Copley News Service

Although most of us are very subjective about our own and other youngsters, we want the best for them — all the good things related to health and happiness, success in school and with their friends and a childhood that prepares them for an adult life more.

But these parental desires can pose special problems and questions for gifted children, their parents and friends.

Following are some statements that touch on areas of misunderstanding or poor information about gifted children.

"I know my daughter is gifted but I've accepted the fact that she is kind of strange. All gifted children are peculiar, have difficulty in getting along with others and always have some kind of health problem."

Gifted children, as a group, are above average in most characteristics including health, social skills, physical, emotional and intellectual development. Of course, we might know an individual bright youngster who is hard to get along with and has a miserable personality, but such tendencies are the exception rather than the rule.

"I don't want my kid to be gifted. Everyone knows they mature early and then fall apart later on with emotional and health problems."

Wrong. Gifted children usually retain their giftedness into and through adulthood.

"It's undemocratic to single out gifted children in any way. This creates a snobbish elite."

Picture this for a moment — a bright child in a classroom where practically all of the others lag far behind or in a class where the rest of the children are at the same performing level. In which setting will the fast one tend to be more "elitist" or "snobbish?" Think about it.

"Why do the parents of the fast ones pressure so much? Don't they know they create problems for their kids by not being satisfied if they perform at the proper grade level for their age?"

A bright 10-year-old in fifth grade doing fifth-grade work "adequately" may become frustrated and even evolve into a later school dropout. On the other hand, challenging a gifted child to perform up to his or her considerable ability may result in that child's happiness and excellent self-image — and a spin-off for all of us may be a contribution toward a solution for poverty, war, cancer or other afflictions about which we worry.

"Academically accelerating a child by skipping grades will cause irrevocable damage. The child will be expected to act and perform like children who are one to two years older, and this can stunt a child's social growth and make him more susceptible to peer pressure."

I agree with you that damage can be done by accelerating a child, but not if many factors are carefully considered. I believe that in some cases irrevocable damage can be done by holding a child back.

Before any consideration is given to academically accelerating a child, he must be well above average intellectually, physically and socially. The advancement should take place only after a full study of the individual child and upon general agreement of all persons involved, including parents, teachers and other school personnel.

If a child meeting this criteria is held back, unless in the hands of skillful teachers and parents, he may face an educational frustration that can lead to dropping out of school and to a questionable view of his abilities.

★ College — (From Page 1B)

Guide: Five Federal Financial Aid Programs, available from Consumer Information Center, Department 508K, Pueblo, Colo. 81009, and "The College Cost Book," published by the College Scholarship Service of The College Entrance Examination Board and available in bookstores.

In addition, local libraries should have lists of community organizations that sponsor scholarships. And many large companies have programs designed to help you send your children to college.

If your children still are young, the magazine outlined a table of how much money a family must save to meet college expenses. Covering a range of children's ages from 3 to 15, the table estimated the total college cost per child based on the assumption that college expenses will rise 7 percent a year. The costs range from $25,200 to $94,500.

The table also estimated the amount needed to be saved monthly beginning at each age and continuing up to college graduation. Those figures assume that savings will earn 10 percent annually, a rate currently available on many certificates of deposit.

The upper and lower ranges of the table: For a 15-year-old planning to attend a private college, a family would have to save $347.25 per month until graduation. For a 3-year-old who will attend a state institution, $83.87 per month must be set aside.

For parents with substantial cost reserves, other savings options are available. The Clifford trust has emerged as a favored option. According to Matthew Kessler, tax partner in the Chicago office of Alexander Grant & Co., a public accounting firm.

"In a Clifford trust, a specific amount of money is placed in trust for the benefit of the child for a minimum of 10 years and a day. At the end of this time, the principal reverts to the parents, while the child retains ownership of the interest generated," he said.

Consider, for example, a family placing $25,000 into such a trust at 10 percent interest when their child is 8 years old.

"When a child is 18, the parents would get back their original $25,000, while the child, assuming he or she had no other source of taxable income, would have slightly over $34,000 left after taxes," he said.

"If the parents had invested the $25,000 in their own account at 10 percent and were in the 50 percent tax bracket, they would net only $15,000 after 10 years. So the Clifford trust more than doubles the parents' ability to save for college costs."

Some additional options for financially well-off families: interest-free loans and annual gifts to children.

"In each case, as with the trust, the savings is due to structuring a situation where the income is taxed to the child rather than to the parent," Kessler said.

He recommends discussing such plans with an accountant to avoid any legal and tax complications.

Testing Puns

In this age of testing for everything from academic proficiency to physical fitness, Harvey Gordon offers an unusual test — the Punster Proficiency Test.

The test calls upon the punster to complete a variety of puns by filling in missing words, to think of puns for given situations and subjects and to create humorous cartoons for designated puns.

Some examples:

— A golfer will always carry a third sock in his golf bag in case he gets a (----) in one.

— Some friends of ours are doing extremely well in a candy-producing venture. They're making a (----).

This test is included in Gordon's book "Pundemonium" (Punster's Press, Glenview, Ill.), which includes a collection of puns and illustrations for the reader to enjoy along with the test. — CNS

CHILDREN

Developing basic writing skills

If Fred and Wilma Flintstone went shopping for back-to-school supplies for Pebbles, they probably would load up their shopping cart with stone writing tablets and those first tools of writing — flints.

Today, buying homework provisions poses less-"weighty" problems. However, with technology developing more sophisticated writing utensils each year, it may be difficult to decide what utensil to buy for what writing purpose. Following is a shopping list of new utensils and some old favorites:

— Erasable Ball Point. Early erasable pens tended to skip and smear. Now, the inks have been adjusted and points have been changed for more reliable performance. A real boon to students, these pens can eliminate the tiresome chore of copying and recopying homework.

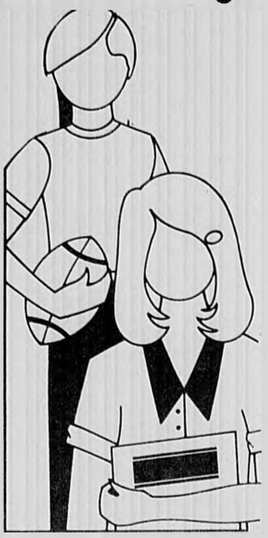

When children know they will face tedious recopying tasks, they often will limit what they write, according to researchers at Scripto, a manufacturer of writing utensils. The erasable pen, which eliminates mistakes as easily as an eraser on a pencil, goes a long way toward solving this problem.

— Ceramic Ball Roller Pens. An enhancement of traditional ball point pens, these pens provide for more generous ink flow and consistent skip-free writing than most of the earlier plastic roller pens available.

The roller pens most likely are popular because they have the flow and look of a porous point while retaining the ability to make carbons like a ball point, according to Scripto researchers.

— Markers. They are bold, expressive and distinctive with a broad range of colors. They come in handy for special assignments. The disadvantage is that they take up a lot of space in writing.

— Pencils. Everyone is familiar with the yellow wooden pencil. It's economical and sharpens to a nice point; however, it continually needs to be sharpened, so it keeps getting shorter and shorter.

Mechanical pencils never need sharpening and so don't become short and difficult to write with. Some models twist to extend the pencil lead. Others, called clutch-action mechanical pencils, extend the lead when clicked like a pen.

In the past, mechanical pencil leads had to be loaded one at a time, but now some pencils have loading mechanisms that contain several leads in a single cassette refill tube.

Aside from providing efficient and easy-to-write-with pens and pencils, how can you encourage your child to write?

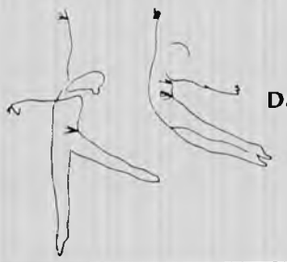

During the first school years, writing skills may be enhanced by seemingly unrelated activities. Toys with small parts help to provide growth of eye-to-hand coordination. Painting is beneficial for control of the sweeping motions to shape letters. Needle-and-thread or weaving activites build dexterity and a sense of competence. Activities like these increase the young learner's attention span and willingness to cope with frustration.

Long before children write independently, they are gifted storytellers. Having them write some of their fancy tales, perhaps even as they speak, is one of the best ways to develop flow of oral expression that later can be translated into smooth writing.

Just as learning to read is not simply sounding out words, learning to write involves more than drawing letters. Children must learn to shape their ideas through words and sentences. Talking an idea through can help them organize their thoughts before they tackle that awesomely blank piece of paper.

want your children wearing mittens in August.

— Children will be more willing to dress themselves in the morning if they like their clothes. Little girls love wearing bright-colored underpants and patterned socks. Young boys respond enthusiastically to underwear that features familiar cartoon characters, like Scooby Doo and the Smurfs, according to spokesmen for Hanes, makers of Showtoons underwear.

— Children's clothing should be comfortable and easy to put on. Pullover shirts and sweat pants are good for children who can't button clothing well.

— Purchasing solid pants and print tops that can be interchanged makes clothes selection easier for children.

Waking Up. No parent likes to wake up a cranky child. Since children rarely get enough sleep on a consistent basis, the more organized you are in the morning, the later your child can sleep. Try eliminating some of your child's morning routines, such as watching television and bathing. Bathing at night is an excellent way for a child to wind down and get ready to sleep.

For children who are still difficult to wake up, try purchasing an alarm clock. Children love to do things themselves and will get a kick out of this responsibility — and setting the alarm.

Meals. If your child is old enough to prepare his or her own breakfast, you can leave non-perishable items on the table or store all perishables within his or her reach. If you prefer to prepare your child's breakfast, serving foods that your child enjoys and which are nutritious will help ensure a good start to the day. After all, soup and a sandwich are full of nutrients and perfectly appropriate for breakfast — especially if your child eats them. Prepare lunches the night before and leave in the refrigerator marked with the child's name or, for children too young to read well, a personalized sticker.

The more pleasant his morning hours are, the easier it will be for your child to have an enjoyable day.

easily distracted."

He explains that this is because they lose interest during lulls in activity. They need a one-on-one relationship wherein something or someone is constantly moving or speaking. If they don't have that kind of relationship, they will look elsewhere for something to do.

The doctor explains that the ADD child is constantly looking for a good time and he carries that desire with him to school. The classroom becomes a potential new source of fun and games, and the child's constant search for amusement gives his activity an image of immaturity. "I call these children 'good-time Charlies,' " he says.

"But school is a job," adds Perens. "It's like a 9-to-5 job that keeps getting harder. There are rules to follow and a teacher who says, 'No, Johnny, you cannot do this or that.' The child brings home a score that grades how well he's doing and if he's not doing well, he can't just quit. It's not a game anymore and the ADD child begins to experience real distress."

According to the doctor, this distress is manifested in many ways. The child cries a lot. He refers to himself as stupid and won't bring his papers home. He balks at going to school or just simply refuses to go at all.

"I must emphasize once again," says Perens, "that I'm not talking about the child who misbehaves on occasion, or rebels against authority once in a while. I'm referring to the child who consistently and constantly refuses to conform. It's all a matter of degree."

The doctor says that it is inappropriate to classify children who suffer from ADD as hyperactive because there are many instances when a child with learning difficulties becomes extremely quiet.

"When he finds himself unable to attend to the task at hand, he will withdraw and begin to daydream," he says.

Buried Treasure

College financial aid is for low-income families only, right? Wrong.

In addition to extensive aid based on need, "colleges offer non-need scholarships for everything from academics to baton-twirling to hog breeding. These scholarships can have a major impact on the choices available to students trying to choose a college," says Peter Hegener, publisher of Peterson's Guides, which publishes "The College Money Handbook."

The handbook is a guide to college-controlled sources of financial aid. It lists, by college, what types of scholarships are available and how to apply. It also includes an index of the types of scholarships available — chess, rodeo, cheerleading, sports and more. — CNS

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with .58 cal rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. bull size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over from Maine to Rhode Island to New York but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information

INTERIM FINANCING

One bugaboo in real estate transactions can easily crop up when there is more than one sale involved and the sale of the first property will be needed to provide the proceeds for the purchase of the second property.

For example, say you have signed an agreement for the sale of your present home. The closing date is set for three months from now. You want to buy another house, but the owner wants to close in just one month from now because he is moving out of state. You will need the money from the sale of your old house to finalize the purchase of your new one — BUT - there will be a two month gap before you get that cash that you will need. Is there any way out of this dilema?

There is. An experienced Realtor can often help you arrange interim financing, known as a bridge loan, to get the funds for the purchase. The money is advanced by the lending institution on a short term basis. Your present home equity would be used as security for the loan.

Decision On Business Tax Rate Postponed

By LIZ WILLEN

Residents and property owners who have an opinion about the town's tax rate will have the opportunity to have their voices heard on Sept. 10.

A classification hearing scheduled for Monday night was postponed, after selectmen agreed to allow the Chamber of Commerce some more time to prepare its arguments.

The Board of Assessors was ready to set the tax rate at $22.74 per $1,000 of assessed value for property owners and $26.56 per $1,000 of assessed value for commercial and industrial property owners. However, several of the selectmen said they were inclined to favor a single tax rate this year.

If selectmen had voted to approve the proposed rates, it would have meant a 115 percent tax rate for commercial and industrial taxpayers compared to 100 percent for residential taxpayers.

The vote to delay came after a request for "more time to get ready" by Chamber of Commerce President Richard Malcolm.

"In our opinion, we simply did not have enough notice," Malcolm said. "Many of the people who can speak to this issue are away on vacation, and I would respectfully request that you wait until they return."

Selectman Edward O'Connell, who said that he also was unprepared for the meeting, agreed with Malcolm. "I cannot imagine a worse night to vote on such an important issue," he said. "Last year, the board was divided (2-2 on the issue of setting a flat rate) and we have an obligation to be respectful of people's input."

'In our opinion, we simply did not have enough notice. Many of the people who can speak to this issue are away on vacation.'

- C of C Pres. Richard Malcolm

'I think it's baloney. There was plenty of notice in the newspapers. What do you want? An airplane?'

—Selectman Mark Lombardi

For the past four years, the town has charged businesses a rate that is 115 percent of the residential rate. In the past, businessmen argued that a level rate, giving businesses a tax break, would encourage more businesses to come to town.

O'Connell stressed that by voting without listening to the arguments, selectmen would be ignoring that obligation, because "many of the people who care about this are scattered, including Selectman Michael Saraco."

With Saraco absent, only Selectmen Chairman Mark Lombardi wanted to have the vote immediately. Lombardi, speaking in loud, forceful tones, accused the board of being "too chicken to vote."

"I'm just asking for a vote tonight," he said. "I don't mind losing, but I don't want to cost the town money. All summer long, I've been the bad guy. The Chamber of Com-

Facing The 'Spectre' Of College

The Neuroses Of A Soon-To-Be Freshman Are Fearsome

By BILL LITTELL

College.

That's all I've heard for the last couple of months.

"Where are you going this fall? What do you want to major in? What do you want to do with your life?"

How do I know?

These and other questions have been weighing on my mind . . . like whether my roommates will be complete zeros (I'm positive that one will be a neat-freak), or whether my room will be OK – (I know for a fact that it will be the only one on campus without a window.)

I mean, how do you wash whites with soiled-in grease stains, anyway?

Meanwhile, I've been told repeatedly that college will be the best four years of my life.

If I can get past the first six months.

"But Bill, these will be four great years," everyone tells me. "You'll meet new people. You'll make lifelong friends."

"But I already have friends, and college is just scattering us," I think. "And now, I'm going to a place where I don't know anybody. I was just starting to become comfortable in high school, and now I'm starting all over from scratch."

"Yes, but you will make friends quickly," I'm told. "Nobody knows anyone when they arrive on campus, so everyone is anxious to get to know each other. You're all in the same boat."

"Maybe, but I think this boat is sinking."

"Oh, come on . . . You know you'll change, too."

"Really? Will I grow fangs and claws with every full moon?"

"No, you'll become more independent. You'll get to know yourself in an entirely new way."

"I'll have to. Where I'm going to school, all I'll see will be cows, sheep, and bookmarks."

"Look, it won't be so bad."

"That's what you said the last time you fed me liver, in 1972."

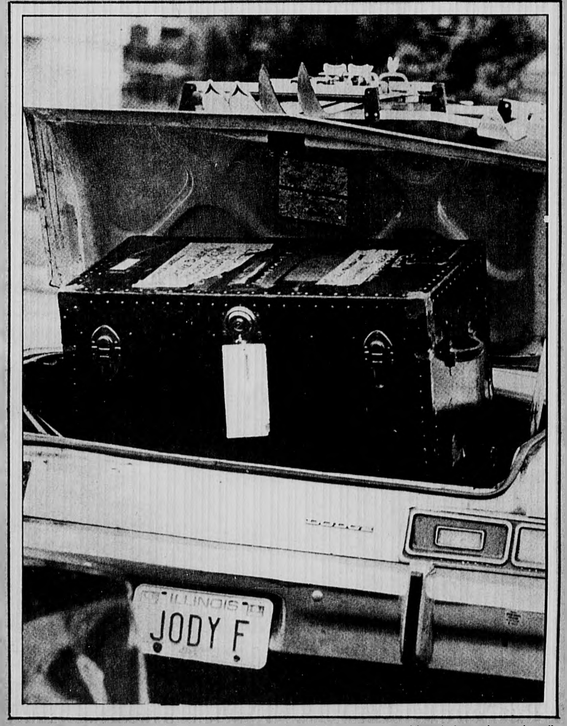

"After all," I'm told constantly by those who survived their freshmen years, "I went through it and look how I turned out."

"Oh, that's reassuring. Maybe I'll become a test pilot or something."

"It will be the time of your life, huh kid?"

Well . . . maybe. As long as my roommates are messy and my room has a window.

(Bill Littell, a frequent contributor to The Star, is beginning his freshman year at Bowdoin College this month.)

Many college students load all their belongings in a trunk, arriving on campus with a plethora of paraphenalia

College.

If you graduated from high school in June, it is likely to be all you have heard about for the last few weeks or months.

As September closes in on you soon-to-be-college-freshmen, the days become hectic. People tell you that college will be the best four years of your life, but as Sept. 1 draws near, the nerves begin to twitch.

Those nervous twitches may lead you to believe that the upcoming years are destined to be the worst four years of your life, not the best.

As a 17- or 18-year-old, this may be the toughest transition that you have had to make in your lifetime.

The first thing to remember is that you are not the only one who is paranoid. It is tough to be a freshman — but it is, after all, only a temporary condition.

Hundreds of the unfamiliar faces you see around you belong to freshmen — all of whom are experiencing a new-found freedom that can be completely overwhelming.

There are new pressures that come with that freedom — and it is up to you to make your own rules and set your own standards on a variety of issues — including alcohol, drugs, sex, choice of courses, curfew, and finances.

Three years ago, when I graduated from Belmont Hill School, I was petrified of my first day on the Middlebury College campus in Vermont. Now, when I talk about those days with my friends from all over the country, we all laugh.

If only we knew then what we know now . . .

First of all, every freshman is unfamiliar with how to act on and around campus. The number of touchdown passes you threw or caught in high school means nothing. The plays you were in or the parties you attended fade from the scene.

You start over at college with a clean slate.

Nobody knows anyone else except for the occasional high school classmate. It is easy to feel intimidated by all the older, bigger or taller students who 'know the ropes.'

Don't be afraid to ask questions when you are perplexed. Upperclassmen feel important when they help out a freshman. As a junior, I don't laugh at freshman — I think back to when I was in their shoes, and it makes me feel good to help out.

As the little man on campus, you may be afraid to be yourself. During the first few weeks of freshmen year, everyone will be forming their opinions about their other classmates — and it can be truly intimidating.

Laugh if you may, but the reserved high school student that I was became the infamous "Psycho." Sure, at first I liked the nickname, and I fit in well.

At least I thought I fit in well.

It took a few weeks for me to realize how stupid I must have looked, and even longer for my classmates to realize that I was only Frank Muggia — not "Psycho."

Unfortunately, you may be judged (as I was) by these impressions for months to come. And as much as you may say 'I'll act natural,' you can be

ABOUT TOWN

Waite Plays

Jim Waite, playing midfield and attack for the St. Michael's College men's lacrosse team, helped build a two-year-old varisty program into a strong contender within the NCAA

Waite, an incoming sophomore and computer science major is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Waite of Appalachian rd.

This year the St. Michael's team, which finished the season with a 4-6 record, showed steady improvement from the 1983 lacrosse team that literally started from scratch and sported a 1-4 record.

The SMC lacrosse coach Jeff Culkin, who was selected Coxe Memorial Lacrosse League's 1984 Coach of the Year, said Waite is one of the top five scorers for the Purple Knights. "Jim has overcome a serious back injury from high school and made a solid offensive contribution to the team," Culkin added. As a freshman Waite earned a varsity letter.

Carlson Wins

Laura Carlson, a freshman at Dartmouth College, recently received the "Class of 1846 Latin Prize." This award is given annually to a student who showed excellence in an introductory Latin course.

Laura, daughter of Werner and Elna Carlson of Bigelow ave, is a 1983 graduate of Winchester High School. She studied Latin at the high school for three years and plans to major in languages at Dartmouth.

Liu Attends

Music student Chester Liu, cello, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Liu, is attending the Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestras (GBYSO) Summer Music Workshop at Agassiz Village in West Poland, Maine.

(GBYSO) holds its annual Summer Music Workshop from Aug. 23 through Sept. 3. The two orchestras, Repertory and Senior, spend 12 days in rehearsal, preparing music for the 1984-85 concert season, and will perform a free public concert at Agassiz Village at 11 a.m. on Sept 3.

Brown Joins

College Marketing Group Inc. of Cross st. has announced that Marilyn Brown has joined the firm's new data entry resources division as its director

Brown, of Marblehead, was formerly employed as a training consultant at McGraw-Hill International Training Systems in Waltham, and prior to that worked in customer service and field installation for the software firm Reap Inc. of Woburn. She is a 1973 cum laude graduate of the University of Massachusetts.

Duffy Awarded

Richard Albert Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Duffy of Edgehill rd., was recently awarded the master of business administration degree from the Graduate School of Management at Boston College.

A 1975 graduate of Winchester High School, Duffy holds an associate in arts from the American College in Paris, and he received his baccalaureate degree from Tufts University.

Heath Graduates

Donn R. Heath of 11 Plymouth rd. received his degree from University College at graduation ceremonies for Northeastern University. University College is Northeastern University's part-time evening graduate school.

From Bunker hill

Four Winchester residents were among those who received associate degrees at the spring graduation exercises of Bunker Hill Community College.

They are: Abigail Hurlbut, 10 Wildwood st.; Patricia J. Jennings, 49 Florence st.; Ronald W. Kurtz, 18 Rangely ridge; Paul F. Stevenson, 65 Nelson st.

Price Begins

Kathleen M. Price, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Price of 41 Jefferson road will begin an orientation program for freshmen at Babson College on Sept. 5th. She will join over 400 other first-year students for the five-day program before beginning classes on Sept. 10

Kermond Commissioned

Coast Guard Ensign Richard Kermond, son of Dr. and Mrs. William L. Kermond of 7 Shieffield west, was commissioned in his present rank upon graduation from Officer Candidate School.

During the 17-week course at the Coast Guard Reserve Training Center, Yorktown, Va., candidates studied navigation, seamanship, communications, leadership, plus Coast Guard search and rescue and law enforcement procedures.

In addition, they participated in a rigorous physical training program, and studied general administration, Coast Guard missions and history, and human relations in preparation for assuming the duties and responsibilities of commissioned officers.

Adams Completes

James Adams of Alden lane, recently completed a 45 week program in air conditioning and refrigeration technology at Northeast Institute of Industrial Technology. At the institute's August graduation exercises, Adams received a special award from the Industrial Mechanical Engineering Society for his excellent performance

Pachico Awarded

ACHIEVEMENT MEDAL — Sergeant First Class Robert A. Pachico of Winchester was awarded the Army Achievement Medal while serving in the Headquarters Company of the 26th (Yankee) Infantry Division, Mass. Army National Guard. The medal is awarded to service members who have exhibited honest and faithful service in accordance with standards of conduct, coverage and duty. WHAT'S GROWING ON....
Lawn & Garden

LAWN CARE: With September just around the corner and the fall season on its way, it's time to start thinking about your lawn's final lime and fertilizer application. This is important to help your lawn combat the long winter.

Japanese beetles have finished laying their eggs in your lawn, and the resulting Grubs are now feeding upon its roots. They will continue to feed throughout the warm days of September and early October. Treat your lawn with a suitable insecticide to stop damage now

IN THE GARDEN: Hardy mums are now blooming! Spruce up your garden by replacing some of those tired annuals with some bright, cheery mums. They last well into the fall and will return year after year.

You still have time to plant a late crop of your vegetable garden; such as lettuce, cabbage, broccoli, and cauliflower — but hurry, there's not much time left! If you have an abundance of vegetables ripening at the same time, we have plenty of free recipes available.

Nancy Watts Receives Shaughnessy Scholar Award

Nancy Watts, Ph.D., R.P.T., Winchester resident and professor and Director of the Advanced Master of Science Program in Physical Therapy at the Massachusetts General Hospital (MGH) Institute of Health Professions received a 1984 Shaughnessy Scholar Award from the Federal Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education. Dr. Watts was one of 16 scholars chosen from nearly 800 applicants.

Under the Mina Shaughnessy Scholars Program, the fund supports educators as they develop ideas emerging from their experiences as teachers and administrators within postsecondary education and communicate those ideas to others. The $21,620 award, which covers the period June 1984 through August 1985, is designed to provide Dr. Watts with some release time and support services so that she may develop a handbook on clinical teaching. She will continue her institute reponsibilities during the period.

An experienced physical therapist and university teacher, Dr. Watts has spent much of her time over the past 20 years teaching graduate courses and continuing education workshops on methods of clinical teaching to students and faculty in a variety of health care specialties. Her proposed handbook is designed for faculty and clinicians who plan and supervise clinical practice and may be used either for independent study or as a reference book.

Dr. Watts holds a B.A. in Zoology from Grinnell College, a professional certificate in physical therapy from Simmons College, and the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in comparative education from the University of Chicago. With the MGH since 1976, Dr. Watts was instrumental in the development of the MGH Institute of Health Professions, a new venture in graduate education, which was awarded degree granting authority in 1977.

Fall Tennis Tourney Begins On Sept. 8

Accident

WASHINGTON ST. ACCIDENT — Kathleen Feeney of Nelson st. was transported to Winchester Hospital last Friday after she was struck by a car, driven by a 74-year-old Arlington man who told police he could not stop on time. Feeney, who suffered cuts and bruises on her head, back and legs, was reportedly chasing a dog into the street when she ran out from between two parked cars. She was treated and released, according to hospital officials.

POLICE LOG

Monday, Aug. 27

— A High st. resident reported that six tape cassettes and an ashtray were missing from her Chrysler. The articles were later found under a bush near her home.

— A Bacon st. resident reported that a large hammock was stolen from her home. Later in the night, a Stratford ave. resident reported that several windows were broken in her home, and a Swanton st. resident reported that a window worth $400 was smashed by unknown vandals. Police are investigating the incidents.

— A Ridge st. resident reported that the four cars parked in his garage were entered and ransacked during the night.

Sunday, Aug. 26

— Once again swimmers who dared to tread in the town's water supply were charged with trespassing. Police discovered two Medford men and a Maine man splashing in the South Reservoir of the Fells, and placed them under arrest.

— A Grassmere ave. resident reported that her home was ransacked and entrance was gained when an intruder forced open a cellar door in the rear. It is still not clear if anything is missing.

— A 28-year-old Everett man was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol after police noticed his car swerving from left to right at varying speeds on Main and Cross sts.

According to police reports, Steven Langone was pulled over on Cross st.

— Police found the screen on a sliding glass door of a Johnson rd. home cut, with fresh tool marks on the door handle. However, entrance was not gained.

— A 36-year-old Woburn man was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol and leaving the scene of a property damage accident, after police, responding to a loud noise, discovered that several street signs had been knocked down on Washington and Kenwin sts.

Donald Connors was transported to the Lynch station and booked.

Friday, Aug. 24

— Signs on Irving and Chester st.s fell prey to vandals, according to police reports. Six youths who were later observed in the Muraco School yard were warned that court action could be pending for them.

— A 44-year-old Medford man was charged with operating under the influence of alcohol after police noticed his Dodge station wagon swerving back and forth over the solid line on Cambridge and Church sts.

Police pulled Walter P. Lee over on Church st., after he reportedly struck a curb on the side of the road.

— A Swanton st. resident reported that $300 worth of lingerie was stolen from a dryer in the west laundry room of her apartment complex.

— A Fletcher st. resident reported the theft of his bicycle, worth over $100.

Thursday, Aug. 23

— A Pond st. resident reported that two pipe bombs stuffed with match heads were found on her front lawn. The bombs had been detonated and were turned over the the state fire marshal for analysis.

Hospice Care Receives Boost From Local Officials For Program

Justice Francis P. Cullen, presiding Justice of Woburn District Court with jurisdiction in Woburn, Winchester, Burlington, Reading, Stoneham, North Reading and Wilmington, recently presented a substantial contribution to Hospice Care Inc. Funds were provided from the discretionary fund in cooperation with the chiefs of police of those communities as well as State Police and local Registry officials.

Mrs. Harriet Noyes, president of Hospice Care, gratefully received this donation from Judge Cullen. Judge Santo J. Ruma, a Winchester resident and Associate Justice of the Peabody District Court, was also on hand for the presentation

Hospice Care offers a program which helps in caring for the terminally ill and their families. It serves Winchester, Woburn, Burlington, Lexington and Arlington. A team of physicians, nurses, social workers and many dedicated and specially trained volunteers work to help the patient reduce the emotional and physical pain of dying, helping the patient and family maintain as normal life as possible.

Hospital facility in a designated area is now available when needed, through the cooperation and contract with Choate Symmes Health Services Inc.

Choate-Symmes is the first hospital in the area to provide beds to a Hospice group

Hospice Care is supported by donations and memorial gifts, and hard work by many volunteers. It is always an added encouragement to those involved to receive donations such as that presented by Judge Cullen.

Camp Superfriends Spends Last Week Exploring The World Of Fantasy

The children of the Winchester Recreation Dept.'s, Camp Superfriends enjoyed a magical journey around the world during their recent Aug. 6 - Aug. 17 session.

Cultural, art and physical activities were combined to create a program of exciting fantasy, including "visits" to Mexico, Ireland, Spain, Hawaii and Japan. As usual, the main objective was a fun-filled experience for all, with emphasis on creativity and imagination.

From Mexican hat dancing to water fun to designing hula skirts, the campers enjoyed two weeks of meeting new friends and exploring the world outside of Winchester.

During their field trip to Logan Airport they weren't allowed to "fly" the friendly skies but they did board an airliner and take turns pretending in the airplaine's cockpit. They didn't sail away from the Charlestown Navy Yard either, but explored the U.S.S Constitution while it was safely docked

The campers also ventured as far as a giant's castle in the sky during their trip to the musical "Jack and the Beanstalk" at the Beverly Theater in the Round.

The two weeks ended with an enjoyable return to Winchester, games and home-baked goodies for a farewell party. This was the last session of the Recreation Dept.'s summer camp program, but don't worry, Camp Sunshine and Camp Superfriends will be back next year.

Job Bank Has Part Time Jobs

The Winchester Recreation Dept.'s Job Bank will be available in the fall and winter on a part-time basis. Students interested in working part time should register with the new School Year Job Bank as soon as possible.

Fall jobs may include housework, childcare, yard work and other odd jobs. Applications for both employers and employees must be filed with the School Year Job Bank before a job may be filled. Since the Job Bank is not offered on a part-time basis, please file a Job Bank application one week before the job is to be performed.

Every effort will be made to meet job needs. The new Job Bank hours will be Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m These hours will continue until Sept 21.

If you have any questions, call Jil Gediman at the Youth Center at 729-7390 or call the Winchester Recreation Department at 721-7125.

About Tax Cuts, State Aid And Public Services

A Letter From Sen. Richard Kraus

(Editor's Note: State Sen. Richard Kraus submitted this press release to The Star.)

"I'll cut your taxes and increase your services." Two years ago it was statements like that which made me angry enough to decide to run for the state senate

The statements were made by the first two announced candidates for the senate seat I now hold. I was angry that people who wanted the public trust would stooop to such depths — apparently beheving that the voters want to be deceived

When I decided to run and told others that I would not make such irresponsible promises many told me I was crazy. They told me that I could not be elected unless I promised to cut taxes — regardless of the consequences of the cut

Well, I refused such advice. I ran saying that my primary interest was in seeing that we had state government that could deliver on its commitment of services to those who need them — and that might mean that we could not afford a tax cut in the future

Many people appreciated the fact that someone who was asking for their vote was leveling with them on such sensitive issues

Today, I am shocked to see that my opponent is promising a tax cut of devastating dimensions on the one hand, I probably should be pleased because this clearly shows that he has failed to find any real issue on which to run.

According to the Dept of Revenue, repeal of the surtax on the Massachusetts Income Tax would in fiscal 1985 reduce the states revenues by about $200 million — an amount which grows every year.

Since the surtax was first added several important things have occurred I will name only four — Proposition 2½ provided a local tax cut and created the need for annual increases in state aid for the cities and towns

The Reagan administration succeeded in obtaining a federal cut in reducing millions from the flow of federal monies to Massachusetts citizens — many of them our most needy — creating a continuing need to replace federal dollars with state dollars

— The state has realized that we have hundreds of millions of dollars in unfunded public pensions showing a need to substantially increase state revenues going to pension funds if present public employees are to receive the pensions they have been promised when they retire

— There is a growing realization that we are going to have to increase our investment in public education if we are not to lose our position as having a citizenry which is among the best educated in the U.S — if not the world

A $200 million state tax cut would be large enough to cripple any two and conceivably all four of these necessary efforts

Today, government in Massachusetts — state, local and county combined — collects less revenue per capita in taxes, fees, etc., than the average state in the U.S. Further major cuts are simply irresponsible unless one really does want to see the whole range of government services in Massachusetts fall below the national average as well

Put in concrete terms, a cut of this magnitude could mean that Winchester and the other cities and towns of the Commonwealth would face the future with no annual increases in state aid — education and services would rapidly deteriorate or property taxes would go back up

To tempt people with the idea of a tax cut, namely the repeal of the surcharge, is less than honest. It simply has no chance of passing in the state legislature

The only forces which understands the consequences and which still push for it are the most conservative members of the Republican state legislative delegation, some elements of big business, and a few Democrats who hope to use it as an issue to embarras Governor Dukakis

Consequently, the legislature with support from all wings of the Democratic party — liberal, moderate and conservative — routinely defeats proposals for repeal

All of us would like to pay less to the government. But most of us also want to insure first rate service at both local and state levels. It is conceivable that in the long-run we in Massachusetts can produce higher than average services for much less than average cost

But that happy eventuality will not happen without the successful pay-off of many of the initiatives which I and others are just now putting in place to make Massachusetts State government much more efficient and cost effective

Success will not come overnight

In the meantime, it is troubling to see individuals trying to gain public office with futile promises which if implemented would be devastating to our cities and towns, to our poor and elderly, to our young, to all who are in need of public services in Massachusetts

Parents Warned To Check Children For Head Lice

TO THE EDITOR:

This important letter is addressed to all parents of school-age children. September is upon us and therefore our youngsters will soon be back into the swing of "reading, writing and 'rithmetic."

Unfortunately, school-age children will also constantly face an increasing health hazard within the classroom setting - contracting head lice or pediculosis capitis. Some Advocate readers may recall an indepth article on head lice last August. This feature served as an excellent preventative tool as many parents were then able to identify developing cases, treat accordingly and continue to send their children to school lice and nit free throughout the school year.

The caseload of head lice was significantly diminished as a result of parental response and action. This letter is now published as another timely reminder that parents must continue to assume the responsibility for control and prevention of head lice as an ongoing commitment to protect their loved ones from the many risks associated with infestation.

Head lice is a parasitic condition; that is, insects can infest the scalp, lay their eggs and live off the blood of its host causing numerous unpleasant and dangerous side effects. Anyone can easily fall victim to its grip; millions of families are affected annually nationwide. Head lice carries with it an unfounded social stigma. The fact is that the cleanest of homes and heads can be hit quickly and needlessly.

A diagnosis of head lice can result in actual physical illness and secondary infection from the bites of these disease-carrying pests. Treatment is a traumatically exhausting ordeal for the entire family that involves usage of a pesticidal shampoo that has great potential for toxicity.

In this day and age with so much concern about cancer-causing agents we inhale, ingest and absorb, parents must understand that head lice infestation and subsequent treatment can ultimately expose their child to a potent chemical substance that has been proven to absorb into the system and settle in body tissues. For this reason alone, we all must work to combat epidemic outbreaks in our communities.

Our strongest defense against increased incidence is careful and frequent head checks. This check can be accomplished in a matter of minutes and can possibly save hours and hours of work later if a case goes undetected. Preferably twice a week under bright light, simply part the childs hair at various intervals and inspect the scalp and hair strands for signs of infestation. This habit should become a routine part of home hygiene.

Live lice are difficult to detect as they vary in color and move very swiftly. They do not fly or jump. Hence, transmission occurs by direct and indirect contact with an individual or a contaminate article. (furniture and rugs included.)

Parents are also urged to discourage their children from sharing hats, combs and brushes, clothing and even party blindfolds as these items represent sure-fire ways to developing cases.

The itching which occurs when the lice bite and suck blood from the scalp is a primary symptom so children seen scratching their heads frequently should be examined at once. Lice eggs or nits are seen as small grayish-white, oval-shaped deposits (sesame seed size) that are attached to the hair shaft, usually close to the scalp. These nits are firmly adhered to single pieces of hair and will not flake off as with dandruff. They can be found throughout the head but are most commonly found behind the ears, at the nape of the neck and at the crown where the hair is dense.

Nits are eggs, soon to hatch and cause greater damage. It is essential, then, that thorough treatment include removal of all visable nits or else reinfestation can occur because no pesticidal preparation can guarantee 100 percent nit destruction. This is exactly why parents must send their children to school lice and nit free.

If upon examination of your child, you find any symptoms of head lice, please do not ignore the condition as delay increases severity and selfishly affects all future contacts. It is important to notify any personal contacts of a suspected case so that appropriate measures can be taken to block extended outbreaks. Your local pharmacy carries various prescription and over the counter items for the treatment of lice. Some products are safer than others and it is up to the consumer to read all available literature so that one can make an intelligent, informed decision on the safest, most effective method of treatment. It is imperative that parents follow package directions explicitly so to avoid over-exposure to all pesticidal preparations. (Neuromuscular reactions ranging from weakness to convulsions have been attributed to misuse/abuse of lice related products.)

Medi-Mart Pharmacy has been working closely with the National Pediculosis Assn. for enforcement of safer practices and has informational pamphlets available for the public. Should you have any questions about any aspect of head lice or its treatment, please call the NPA at 449-NITS or write to the organization - P.O. Box 149, Newton, 02161.

By total cooperation from parents, children and health professionals, we can have a school year that is happy and healthy rather than one that demands pupils versus parasites. It's entirely up to us.

Nights Are For Sleeping

By Terry Marotta

I've always read that people of genius don't need much sleep, but it seems to me whoever formulated this theory may have gotten it a bit wrong: It's not that they don't need the sleep, it's that they can't get the sleep. Their minds are racing too fast for them to settle into slumber.

I'm no geniuos. God knows, but my mind was doing a bit of an Indy 500 the other night. And I couldn't have lapsed into sleep if I were watching three Republican conventions, never mind one.

It had been one of those jangly days where everything had to happen precisely on schedule or the roof would fall in: children would be left orphaned at camp because no one came to claim them; a chicken that waited for roasting, a chicken squatting in grumpy seclusion like a deposed tyrant in one corner of the refrigerator would finally give up and go bad, even the stuff at the cleaner's would be thrown out, or sold, or eaten, or whatever it is they do to clothes left too long unclaimed.

I was the person whose job it was to see to all this. Not to mention putting my nose to the old column grindstone. Not to mention keeping the baby fat and happy for another day.

I first noticed the jangles as I sat on the front porch, attempting to write. My hands were shaking finely, almost imperceptibly. I couldn't see their trembling, but I could feel it, and my handwriting showed the vibration.

I was looking for a certain paragraph, the one that takes the random observations and the moment's emotions and welds them together into a satisfying conclusion. It eluded me. I could feel it out there. I was almosting it as James Joyce used to say, but it wouldn't come just then. And it wasn't because my 5-year-old was braiding my bangs at the time; or because the kid that cuts the grass was drinking the gasoline and filling the mower with Coke.

It wouldn't come becuse my mind was in a state of Overdrive.

Information cascaded through it like water at the carwash. I felt like I was reading three books at once and listening to Wolfman Jack on the radio - while trying to recite "The Courtship of Miles Standish" from memory.

Everything I ever knew crowded into my mind, gossiping and showing off. Everything I didn't know begged to be let in on the fun. I thought about right triangles and the elbows of flies; cigarette ads and the Horn of Africa; Flubadub and the Civilian Conservation Corps. I was fizzing with a kind of unwholesome energy. Words and phrases passed through my mind. Musical notes danced by. The Pepsi commercial with Michael Jackson was in there, and the favored hairdo of my 8th grade English teacher. It was eerie.

I felt like this for the rest of the day.

I felt like this for the whole of the night.

Sleep was impossible. I thought at first I'd turn into a genius, and sat up to try a little calculus. I lay back down and began having Column Ideas.

Now column ideas, ordinarily, are a prized commodity. They don't come cheap and they don't come often. But that night they came and came, wildly and uncontrollably. There was one about dustballs and one about eyeshadow. There was one in which I showed how most famous people resemble some species of animal. There was one about cutting down trees and one about weightlifting.

The point is, I could hardly keep track of them. My mind whirred and clamored like a car in neutral, racing its engine. My heart pounded. My hands continued their rapid internal tremor.

It was five o'clock in the morning before I got any sleep.

The baby woke me at six.

I was exhausted, but at least my thoughts had stopped racing. They'd slowed to a crawl, in fact. The body, fed up by all the hubbub, had sat down on them good and hard. They weren't zinging and caroming off the walls anymore, and said things like "Gurk?" and "Snoofle."

The seige was over. I was grateful to fall back into the great ocean of sleepy humanity.

I'll leave the nights to the geniuses.

I hated calculus anyway.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

Throughout the 1983 and 1984 sessions, the issue of taxes received a lot of attention on Beacon Hill. There were many roll call votes in the House on the subject of raising or lowering taxes. This year's debate centered not only around whether the state should reduce taxes, but also around which of several plans should be adopted and what groups of people any reductions or increases or new taxes would hurt or help.

Many legislators note it is unpopular, particularly in an election year, to raise taxes and fees, but say it is a difficult but necessary job if the state is to provide necessary quality services. They also point out that while it may be unpopular to vote against tax reductions in an election year, the state cannot afford decreases which would result in a severe loss of revenue and a reduction in services.

Some legislators say millions of dollars in waste could easily be cut from the state budget to eliminate the need for tax hikes. They also point to an anticipated revenue surplus which they say would easily allow for tax cuts.

This week's report reviews local representatives' votes on roll calls from the 1983 and 1984 legislative sessions. The roll calls all deal with state and local taxes and fees.

MORTGAGE DEDUCTIONS (H 5600 and H 6081) — Approved by House 82-67 in April 1984 and defeated by House 81-67 in July was an amendment allowing homeowners to deduct 50 percent of their mortgage interest payments, up to $2500, on their state income tax return. The April vote was an amendment to the main fiscal 1985 budget and the July vote was an amendment to a fiscal 1984 supplemental budget. The first amendment, although approved in the House was later removed from a conference committee version of the budget passed by the House and Senate and later signed by Gov. Dukakis.

On both roll calls, a "Yea" vote is for the amendment allowing the mortgage interest deduction. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes twice.

SURPLUS (H 5600 and H 6081) — Defeated by House 71-66 in May 1984 as an amendment to the fiscal 1985 budget and defeated by a larger 123-20 margin in July as an amendment to a deficiency budget for 1984 was the proposal requiring that any surplus remaining in the general fund at the end of a fiscal year be divided equally among people who file a state income tax return the following year.

On both roll calls, a "Yea" vote is for the amendment dividing the surplus. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes twice.

UNEARNED INCOME (H 5600 and H 6081) — Approved by House 106-43 in May 1984 as an amendment to the fiscal 1985 budget and approved by the House by a slimmer 82-58 margin as a supplemental budget amendment in July was this proposal eliminating the 10.7 percent tax on a portion of unearned income for persons over 65. For individuals, it eliminates th tax on up to $3300 in 1985, $6600 in 1986, and $9900 in 1987 and later. This amendment was removed from the final version of the fiscal 1985 budget by a conference committee and a modified version was adopted by the House and Senate and later vetoed by Gov. Dukakis as part of the supplemental budget.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment eliminating the tax. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment.

Saltmarsh voted yes twice.

BOSTON PARKING (H 797) — In July 1984, the House 80-73, rejected the controversial measure allowing cities and towns to establish up to a 15 percent parking excise tax for off-street parking.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

1984 SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET (H 6081) — Approved by House 123-19 was this July 1984 conference committee version of a fiscal 1984 supplemental budget. The key tax provisions were an increase of $200 in the personal exemption for all taxpayers, a $500 increase in the personal exemption for non-wage earning spouses, and future increases in the exemption for non-wage earning spouses until it reaches the level of the wage earning spouse in 1988.

Another key provision eliminates the 10.7 percent tax on a portion of unearned income for persons over 65 including eliminating the tax for individuals on unearned income up to $2000 in 1985, $4000 in 1986, and $6000 in 1987. Gov. Dukakis later vetoed these tax cut provisions.

A "Yea" vote is for the supplemental budget and tax cut provisions. A "Nay" vote is against them.

Saltmarsh voted no.

EMPLOYERS' TAX (H 6380) — In 1983, the House rejected 90-58, an amendment eliminating the proposal requiring employers to pay a new tax equal to 1 percent of their employees' wages up to $7000. The tax is essentially $7 per employee.

A "Yea" vote is against the new tax. A "Nay" vote is for the new tax.

Saltmarsh voted no.

CIGARETTES (H 6380) — In 1983, the House rejected 95-53, an amendment eliminating the proposed hike (from 21 to 25 cents) in the cigarette tax.

A "Yea" vote is against the 4 cent hike. A "Nay" vote is for the 4 cent hike.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Kraus voted yes.

PUBLIC TRANSPORTATION (S 1720) - Senate 22-8, rejected a bill allowing deductions by a taxpayer for expenses for public transportation. The measure allows deductions for most public transportation and tolls paid for the use of the Massachusetts Turnpike Authority.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is agianst it.

Kraus voted no.

MARIJUANA (S 257) - Senate 21-16, tabled a bill moving marijuana from its classification as a class D substance to a class C one and increasing penalties for its use.

A "Yea" vote is for tabling the bill. A "Nay" vote is against tabling.

Kraus voted yes.

The Senate has held 118 roll calls. Sen. Kraus had 100 percent voting attendance.

HOTEL (H 4483) — In 1983, the House rejected 107-31, a bill allowing cities and towns to impose a three percent tax on hotel, motel, or lodging house rooms.

A "Yea" vote is for allowing the three percent tax. A "Nay" vote is against allowing it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Charlie Murphy Was A Very Special Man

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

A few weeks ago a special man passed away. Charlie Murphy was special because he cared about people and life. He played a special role in Winchester because he followed the lives of other people, and took the time to express his delight in their successes and victories in life.

Charlie was an entrepreneur. Many years ago he owned and operated a very busy service station on the corner of Pond and Cambridge. Charlie hired many college and high school students to help them meet tuition costs. Charlie worked from early morning to late at night to make the station a success, and reach his goal.

Like all successful people, Charlie has some setbacks as well. He had a heart attack and was forced to cut back on the long hours required at the station. Charlie was not to be denied. He became involved in numerous banks and auto agencies, and other businesses as well. He continued to be very active, and turned his medical setback into a victory.

Charlie Murphy was a role model. He was the first person from the Northend of Winchester to serve on the board of a bank, and to climb to the top of numerous service organizations, and to start and manage a very successful business.

He was also a person that loved people and achievement. Charlie liked to talk to people. He was a good story teller. He used his Irish wit and good humor to make people relax and open up to him. He was an avid reader who enjoyed reading about local people, friends, and associates and their recent promotions, raises and advancement. Their success was Charlie's Success. Winchester is a better place because of Charlie Murphy.

Sincerely,
William J. Bond

After Center Renovations, Revitalization Is Up To Us

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

One can only applaud the effort directed at reviving Winchester Center and the results now so pleasingly evident. A certain amount of criticism and quibbling is inevitable. For instance, the particular light source selected for the new street lamps seems to negate the natural grace and beauty of the colonial standards. But in the main we townspeople owe a vote of thanks to those responsible for this reversal of long term deterioration.

However, this is only the beginning. Now it is incumbent upon the rest of us to play a role if the core of Winchester is to recover completely its former attractiveness.

The town fathers must remedy an apparent weakness in the approval and oversight of new building plans. Some notable architectural atrocities have been committed here in the fairly recent past. We could well take a page from the book of our sister communities like Lexington in this regard.

Merchants in the center of town should continue their efforts to improve the appearance of their shops. Tattered, sagging, discolored awnings are hardly pleasing. And upgrading of signage still needs considerable attention. Melrose seems to have been quite successful along these lines.

Furthermore, cluttered store windoes with carelessly displayed goods and many unsightly placards will never make it in Winchester. Admittedly, some of this will take money, but it is the price of doing business successfully.

Town residents must get in the habit of shopping in Winchester as a first impulse rather than as an afterthought or last resort. We should also refrain from any actions which would make our community unsightly suchg as careless disposal of trash, pollution of our ponds and streams, destruction of plantings or defacing of property.

Then too it would be well if we tried to puck up after those who have not yet learned the obligations of living in our fair community.

Sincerely,
Lloyd and Ruth Stevens
Washington st.

New Center Is Great But How About Dix St. Sidewalks?

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

I do appreciate the good work which has been done on our Center area. I have not yet slipped on the brick walks, my eyes do not object to the bright lights (so much better than those old things we had before!); the Common looks all right to me without a brick walk encircling it, and I am glad new business is coming into town.

However, I am still crying for a new sidewalk on each side of Dix st coming up from the Common which should really be a part of the new center! For several years the present walks have been disgraceful and hazardous with their broken places, especially to the patients heading to the Professional Building.

I'm sure new sidewalks — brick or cement, on Dix st would bring no complaints, only grateful thanks to the town of Winchester.

Sincerely,
Bertha Blanchard

★ Taxes

merce is here — who else do you want?"

Selectmen Wade Welch said that he wanted "all of the selectmen to be present." And Malcom stressed that he himself could not "speak to the basics — I simply am not prepared to do battle."

However, Catherine Alexander, the Executive Director of the Chamber of Commerce, was not present. And, when contacted by The Star earlier in the week, she expressed shock that the classifcation hearing was taking place "so soon."

"No one told me about it," she said. "Usually they take it up in October — why are they doing it now?"

Board of Assessors Chairman Sherman Josephson told selectmen said they were "already late into the taxpaying schedule — we had hoped to have the taxbills out tonight."

However, he added that a delay would "probably not cause irreparable harm."

The assessors also offered their opinions on the tax rate. Josephson, along with Francis Mahoney, said he was in favor of a single tax rate, while Assessor George Andersen said he was inclined to preserve different rates for residential and commercial taxpayers.

And selectmen, who ultimately agreed to delay the vote, did voice their own opinions. Only Lombardi said he is opposed to any change in the system.

"A single, equal tax rate would only be helping the absentee landlords who own many commercial buildings in town," he said. "And I know Saraco agrees with me."

"I think we have to respect the process and give Saraco the chance to tell us that himself," replied Welch. "He has to answer to the people. If it is likely to be a close, impassioned vote, then I think we should wait."

"We're all answerable to the people!" Lombardi shouted. "I think its a lot of baloney. There was plenty of notice in the newspapers. What do you want, an airplane? I still think we should vote tonight."

However, selectmen ultimately voted to postpone the hearing until Sept. 10, in the hope that "everyone will be back from their vacations."

★ College

sure that certain circumstances freshman year will lead you to act out of character.

It takes time to find the friends that that bring out the best in you and accept your faults. You will probably be much happier.

Finding new friends and adjusting to the freedom is just one facet of college life. One of the major adjustments is the continuous presence and pressure of alcohol.

The pressure was a new one to me. As a member of the wrestling team at Belmont Hill, I could not drink much because I had to watch my weight.

However, sitting at a local hangout in Middlebury one night, I succumbed to peer pressure and played a drinking game known as 'Depth Charge.'

Needless to say, the depth charge exploded over me and I was the only one who sank ... only to surface 20 hours later with a varsity-league headache.

Another unique circumstance is life away from your parents. Throughout one's high school days, much time is spent thinking that your parents are too strict, nosy, or difficult to get along with. That may be the case, but being at college is a serious physical separation from them.

The most common freshman complaint is 'I'm homesick.' I laughed at that idea before I left, but one of the first things that I did at college was call home.

It is natural to miss home.

There is nothing wrong with calling home. However, being away from home also means you become your own boss. College is a great time to develop into your own person. Making your own rules helps you to become more mature, and, if you do a good job, helps you to gain both self-respect and respect from your friends.

PACKING UP — This week, many Winchester High School grads will be headed off to college for the first time, to face all the trials, traumas and tribulations of freshman year.

HANGING OUT — Middlebury College student Frank Muggia discovers that a dorm room can actually be a cozy place to relax after a grueling schedule of athletics, academics and socializing.

Sometimes, it helps to sit back for a minute and try to work out a problem or an emotion on your own before reaching for the telephone.

It also helps to attend specials that your college offers, such as a concert, some theater productions or a guest lecture.

But most of these ideas will seem quite natural after a while. And, no matter what anyone tells you before you go to college, the dilemmas you will be facing and the decisions you must make cannot be decided on until you experience them firsthand.

College.

There are some things that no one can tell you. Yet the more time you spend at college, the better your decision-making may get.

Just don't be frightened by all of this. If you go to college in September with the right attitude, you will succeed.

College.

At first, you may worry about your study skills. You may feel destined to failure. It is a typical freshman fear, and one that can be overcome with time, effort and experience.

And when you make dean's list, when you enjoy yourself at parties, when you make rules that you don't break, and when your parents congratulate you on a job well done, then you can look at yourself from the outside, smile and say 'well done.'

When you say this, you will have achieved what you set out to do in the first place.

You will have conquered freshman year.

(Frank Muggia, a Dartmouth st. resident, is a junior at Middlebury College in Vermont.)

It's Back To School Time!

'School Phobia' Strikes Many As Opening Day Approaches

While many schoolchildren welcome the first day of school with an annual ritual of sharpening pencils, polishing shoes, and locating lunchpails, for others the event brings on acute pain, fear, and dread. Far from experiencing normal first-day jitters, these children and adolescents are overwhelmed by school phobia.

"School phobia occurs when a school aged child is especially anxious about leaving home to attend school," sayd Melvin Levine, M.D., chief of Ambulatory Pediatrics at The Children's Hospital. "The disorder is difficult to understand and can be agonizing for parents and children."

While the causes of school phobia are many, three patterns are commonly found.

"The classic case," Dr. Levine says, "involves separation anxiety. The child is not actually trying to avoid school but rather is worried about leaving home, fearful that home will not be the same, or that he or she might be abandoned. We see this in families with a lot of tension or with abnormally strong or weak ties among family members."

School phobia can also be triggered by a specific situation, more commonly social than academic.

"Social danger zones for children include bus stops, buses, bathrooms, corridors, playgrounds, cafeteries, and locker rooms," Dr. Levine says, "places where kids worry about getting pushed or insulted."

School phobia is also experienced by high achievers.

"These children are typically perfectionist and driven, and their parents are proud of them," sayd Dr. Levine. "Out of the blue, they suddently can't go to school. We sometimes attribute this to a fear of success: such students feel they are riding so high, their bubbles could burst at any time."

Dr. Levine notes that phobia sometimes occurs in generally depressed children, who cannot get "up" for anything.

According to Dr. Levine, school phobia can occur with or without physical symptoms. "Some children are simply unable to go to school. They say, 'I'll go back tomorrow,' but when the time comes, they panic and cannot do it. Others exhibit various symptoms — abdominal pain, tension headache, extreme fatigue — that are not imagined."

If parents notice that their child experiences recurring ailments, especially adominal pain or headaches, or simply refuses to attend school, they should seek a physician's advice.

The first step in treating school phobia is to understand why the child is avoiding school.

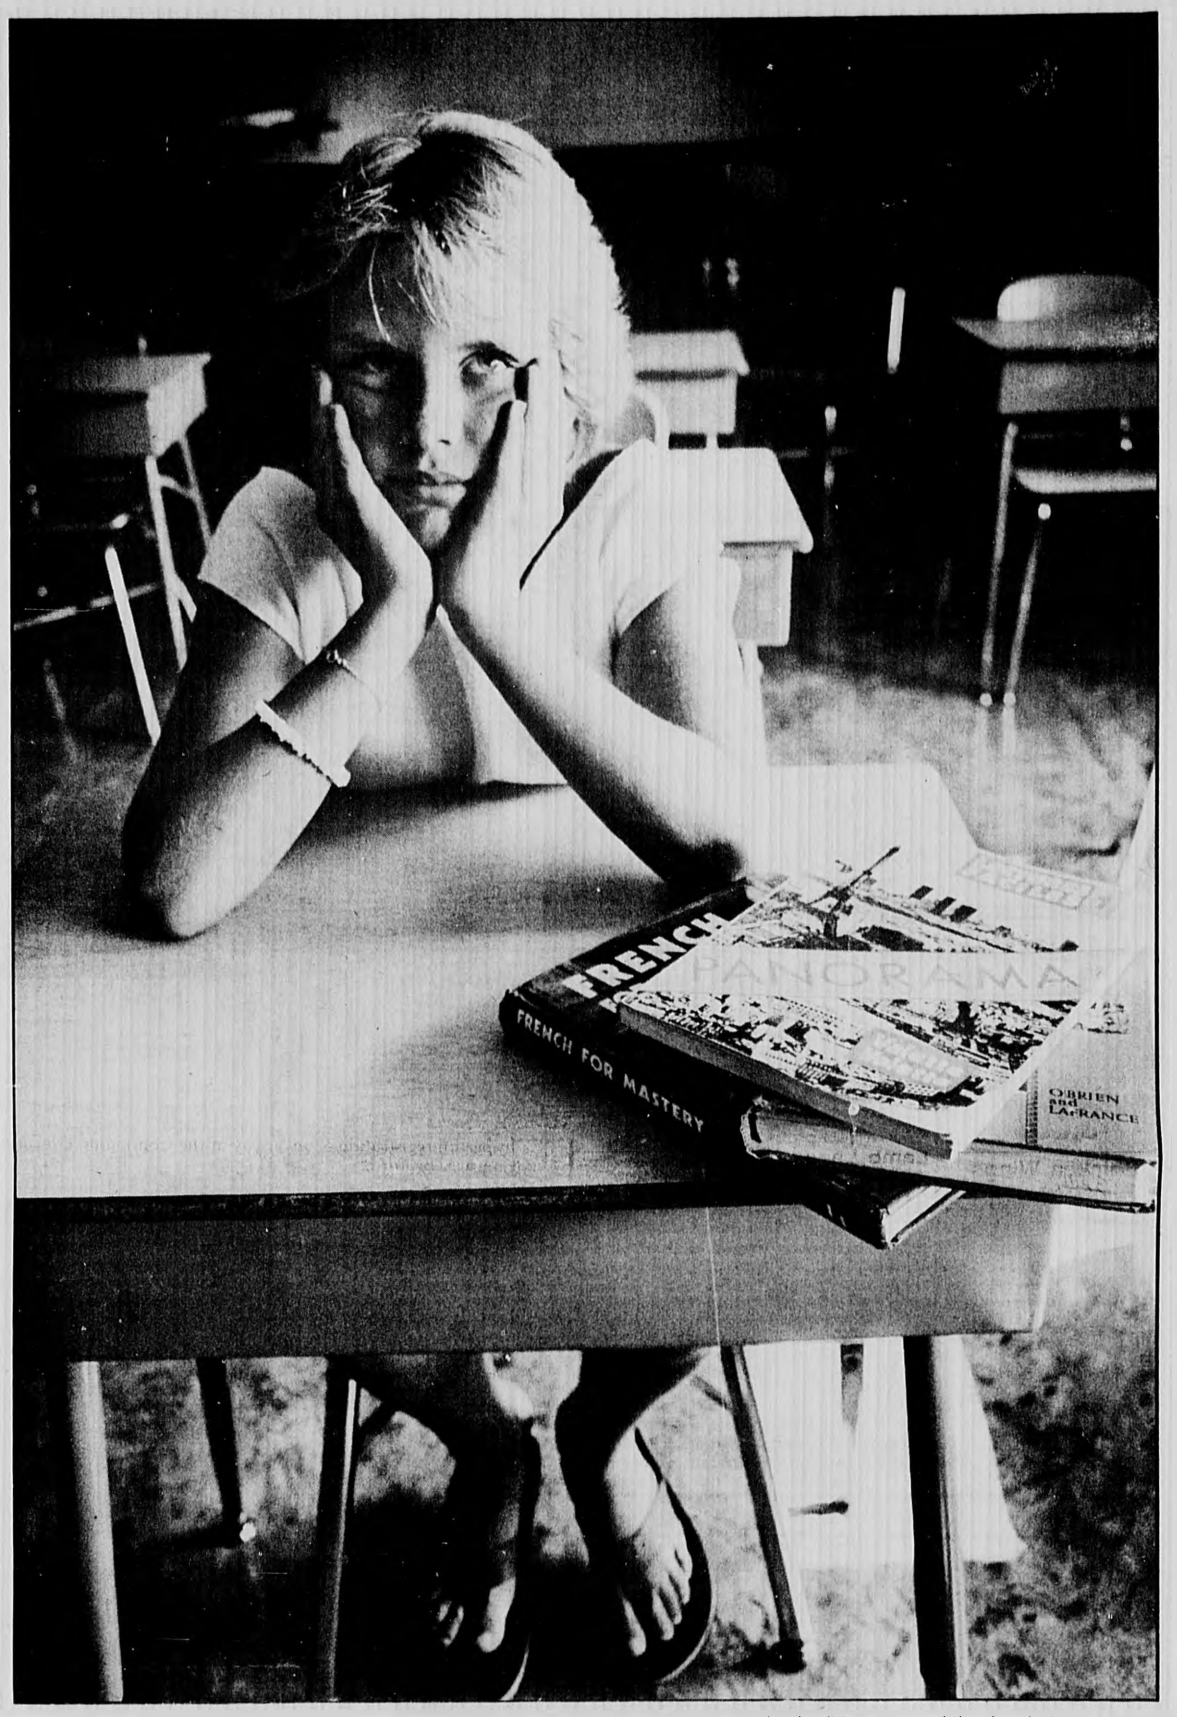

"Very often the kids themselves do not know why they are reluctant to attend school; they simply have a global fear of leaving home and going there," Dr. Levine says. "After performing a physical examination, a physician should listen carefully and sensitively to the child's complaints. The physician should see the child alone and promise a certain amount of confidentiality and privacy."

Dr. Levine advocates changing the child's routine, school, or curriculum to convince the child that things will be different. Some children need advice on how to answer questions from their school mates about their absence.

How can parents prevent their children from developing school phobia?

"Solidifying their relationship with their schoolchildren and maintaining good communication are the best contributions parents can make," Dr. Levine says. "Children who have been verbally abused by schoolmates should be able to come home and describe it to their parents and be taken seriously. An unhappy child needs to know that he or she is not alone."

For children who separate from home with great difficulty, Dr. Levine recommends that the parents seek psychological counseling to explore the reasons for their child's lack of autonomy.

SCHOOL DAZE — It is that time of year again, the last week of August when summer vacation is all but over and the dreaded fears of books and homework and loss of freedom are about to come true. (Staff photo by Amy Sweeney)

What Did This Teacher Do With His Summer? He Trained For Sept!

John A. Limongiello

Winchester High School teacher John Limongiello recently completed the two-week Summer Institute in Physics and Astronomy at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

The institute hosted 19 high school physics teachers from across the state who shared one thing in common: all had backgrounds in sciences other than physics.

This is a condition that is typical of many of today's high schools because there is a shortage of physics-trained teachers regionally and nationally, according to institute director Leroy Cook, head of the UMass/Amherst physics and astronomy department. Because more and more qualified people are shunning high school classrooms for industry and research jobs the shortage has become termed a crisis, Cook said.

The summer physics institute, financed entirely by UMass, stressed the laboratory side of physics, using the university's teaching and research laboratories.

"The overall idea is to involve the high school teachers totally in physics, to give them a lot of ideas that they can transfer to the classroom, and to excite them so they can excite their students, and have a real impact on the level of education in physics in the state," Cook said.

Limongiello, who teaches physics and physical science at Winchester, received his certificate of advanced graduate study from Boston University. He is a resident of Revere.

Opening Day Will Be Topic Of School Superintendent's TV Show Sept. 5

"Opening Day" is the topic as Channel 19's access program "Conversation with Dr. Mitsakos" opens this fall season on Sept. 5, at 8 p.m. with a live call-in show.

The monthly program co-hosted by Dr. Charles Mitsakos, Winchester School Superintendent, and Marty Fuller premiered last May. The program is designed to give interested parents, students, and residents an opportunity to ask the superintendent direct questions concerning school policy making and decisions that come from the district office level.

The Sept. 5 program will deal specifically with the events surrounding the opening of school for 1984-85. Questions may involve all levels of the Winchester Public Schools from kindergarten to high school. Questions may be called in during the program and asked over the air or written questions may be submitted in advance.

Written questions for Dr. Mitsakos may be sent to: Conversations with Dr. Mitsakos, Continental Cablevision, 724 Main st. The production staff would welcome topic ideas for future shows from interested viewers.

Northeast Vocational School Expansion Adds Dental Assistant Program

Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational School in Wakefield will be adding another component to its Health Care Technician Dept. in September to complete a planned three-year expansion.

The dental assistant program will be a new program and the health care technician department will have classes for training in nursing assistant, dental assistant, medical assistant, dental lab technician, dietary aide, and pre-school aide.

The students in this vocational shop get clinical experience in many of the health care facilities in the Northeast School District inculding New England Memorial Hospital in Stoneham, New England Rehabilitation Hospital in Woburn, Winchester Nursing Home and Aberjona Nursing Home, both in Winchester, Middlesex Fells Nursing Home in Melrose, Anne Mark Nursing Home in Revere, Quigley Memorial Hospital at Soldiers' Home in Chelsea, and the Chelsea Soldiers' Home.

The sophomore students work in the kitchen as Dietary Aides and make beds as well as feed the patients.

The junior students get hands-on Nursing Assistant experience in the nursing homes and hospitals. They do direct patient care, take vital signs and run blood pressure clinics for senior citizens.

The dental lab technician students learn all the aspects of the trade - fabrication of all dental prosthetic devices, dentures, partial plates, and crowns. These students are now making full dentures for the dental clinic at the Chelsea Soldiers' Home.

The medical assistant students learn to work with the doctor in the office or in a clinic, examining patients and performing lab work. They will get clinical experience in hospital clinics in their junior year and in doctor's offices in their senior year.

The medical assistant and dental assistant students learn to assis the dentist at chairside and to take X-rays and assist the patients.

The pre-school aides participate in a nursery kindergarten program under supervision.

Community Use Of Schools Open Gym Program Starts Sept. 17

The Winchester Community Use of Schools open gym program will begin its 12th season on Monday evening, Sept. 17.

As usual the Winchester High School gym will be open Monday and Thursday evenings from 7 to 10 for residents 18 years and older.

The program is open to all residents who want to keep fit, to exercise for health and enjoyment, to meet new townspeople, to get more use from their tax dollars or to simply enjoy themselves.

The new admission fee schedule will be $1 for all Winchester residents with positive identification and $2 for non residents.

The weekend schedule will go in to effect on Saturday, Nov. 10. After this date the gym will be open Saturdays and Sundays from 12:30 to 4:30 in addition to the Monday and Thursday evening schedule.

During the weekends the program is open to students in the seventh grade and up, as well as adults. Families are also invited to use the gym, but youngsters below the seventh grade must be accompanied by an adult. The fee is $1 for non adults.

The program offers many features however, the main game is basketball. No courts are reserved and all games are on a first come first play basis. There is a volleyball group that meets regularly on Monday evenings and welcomes new faces.

In addition there is a weight room for those familiar with the sport. Paddle ball with paddles if offered, but players you must bring a paddle ball or tennis ball. Winter joggers often use the gym when weather conditions prohibit outdoor running. Eleven and a half laps equal one mile.

No locker rooms, showers, or telephones are available, so gym users should come dressed appropriately with transportation arrangements. During school vacations the gym will be open its regularly scheduled hours only. If school is cancelled due to inclement weather or any other reason the gym is also closed.

The only entrance to the gym will be from the Nelson st. area where parking is provided in the rear lot.

The Harriet Hoctor Ballet School is not a "dance recital" school which spends students' class time and money on preparation and expensive costumes. Class time is spent learning and improving technique and skill. We are a "training" school with efforts directed toward the goal of giving our students a secure foundation in classical ballet technique while developing coordination, rhythm, poise, and self discipline, which is so important to the beginning and intermediate student. We also give the individual guidance and attention to those students who wish to go on and pursue a career as a professional ballet dancer.

Escape From Albania

Local Merchant's Organization Helps Sponsor Fellow Greeks Who Flee To America From Albania

By CATHERINE WALTHERS

It's been 40 years since his parents escaped from the small communist country of Albania that borders Greece, but the experience is brought to life again each time Charles Dinis helps others fleeing the country today.

The lives of Greeks in Albania is as much on the Winchester resident's mind as the day-to-day operation of his pizza business, Arlington House of Pizza on Mass. ave. in Arlington.

The two jobs, one of running a business, and the other of campaigning for human rights in a communist country, don't seem to mix, but they are a vital part of Dinis' life.

"In 1944 the communists took over. My father did not like the change and the ideology of the communist regime. So he escaped."

It was a dangerous trek that took two days at night, but thousands of other Greeks also took the chance, Dinis says.

Today, the country is run by the same man who has ruled since 1944 and control over movement in and out of Albania is even tighter. Dinis claims the communist government of leader Enver Hoxha is continuing to put thousands of Greeks in prisons and work camps and denying basic rights to nearly 400,000 Greeks in the country.

Most of the incidents in Albania since 1944 have gone unnoticed, says Dinis. To bring them to light, Dinis and some other Boston-area Greeks formed the Northern Epirus Society of Boston in 1979. Dinis, president of the group (now with about 200 members), says they take an active role in keeping informed about the Greeks in Albania and sponsor some of those who escape and come to live in the U.S.

"We're trying to bring out information to enlighten the Greeks and the Americans of what really goes on in that country," explains Dinis. "We are not experts in raising the issue, we need experts, but in some small way I think we bring attention to our problem."

Dinis himself was not born in Albania, but in Greece where his parents first escaped to. Like his parents, thousands of Greeks living in the Greek northern provinces of Epirus found themselves part of a new country which was formed in 1913.

"Albania is a nation that never existed," says Dinis. "The region was occupied 90 percent by Greek people. Without asking the opinion of the people, they drew a line and afterward all these people found themselves all Albanians." (Although the Albanian government refers to the Greek provinces as Southern Albania, Greeks themselves call the area Northern Epirus.)

Before 1944, the Greeks in Northern Epirus had been "liberated" several times and had even created a semi-autonomous state. But after 1944, chance of self-government ended when the communists gained power.

"That's when all the problems started with the Greeks," Dinis says. "I think he (Hoxha) was under the impression that in order to survive he had to eliminate the Greek culture. So systematically, he started to put Greeks in jail.

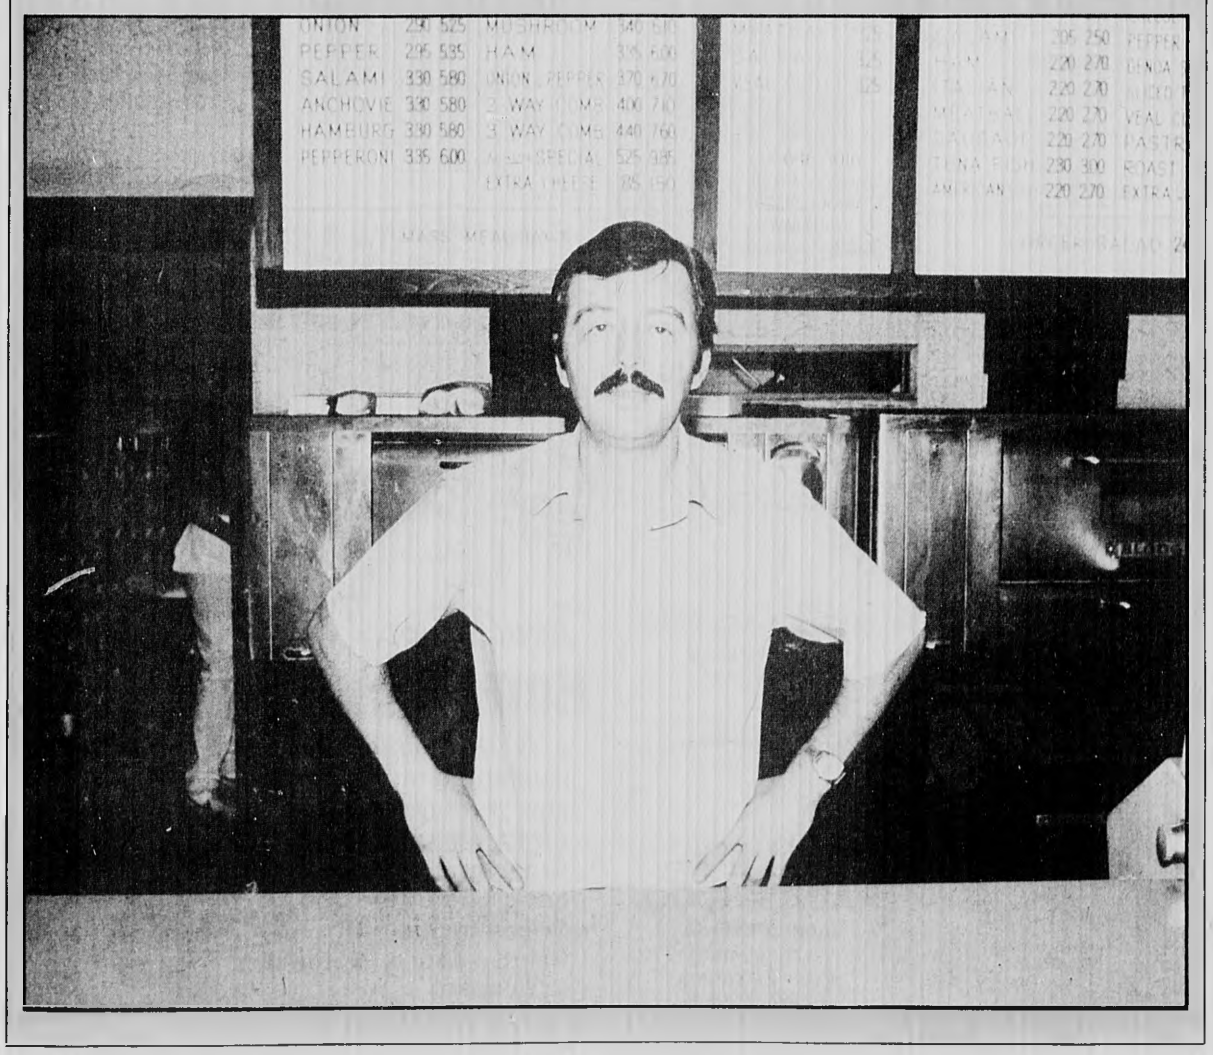

"He created prisons which were filled mostly with Greek people. Religion at that time was permitted, but he closed the Greek schools.

"In 1967, he declared Albania an atheist nation," Dinis continues. "This gave him the permission to destroy every Greek church in the region. Up to this day we cannot make the sign of the cross."

Dinis didn't experience the problems in Albania firsthand, although his early life in Greece was difficult and consisted of moves from one town to another.

In 1963, Dinis' father emigrated to the U.S., followed the next year by his wife and four children. After living in Manchester, N.H., and Worcester, the family settled in Arlington in 1970 and then to Winchester in 1980.

Bartlett School Opens For 52nd Year On Sept. 10

The Bartlett School on 40 Samoset rd. will open for the 52nd year on Sept 10.

The school was opened in 1933 by the mother of the present director and was located for many years on Bartlett ave., Arlington. The school moved to Winchester in 1977, making possible the addition of grades 7 and 8. Bartlett now has classes for 4 year olds through grade 8.

Norine Casey, director, holds a B.A. from Wellesley College and an M.A. in teaching from Radcliffe. All staff members have bachelor of arts degrees and many hold master's degrees.

Class size at Bartlett is kept small and the curriculum is traditional. French is taught in grades 4 through 8. Specialist in general science, computer science, physical education, music and art offer programs both during the school day and for after-school activities. Many field trips are taken. Parents are invited to take an active part in the school via the parents' group.

Open House will be held for parents on Sept. 4, 5 and 6, although school inquiries are welcome at any time.

Winchester children enrolled in Bartlett School this year include: Kieron, Colleen and Trevor Kassner of Oxford st., Clara Kim of Carriage lane, Catherine Maloney of Myopia hill, Jeremiah Parker of Yale st., Nidhi and Amit Handa of Olde Village dr., Tom O'Keefe of Lawson rd., James and Sharon Raskob of West Chardon rd., Tom Casey of Thornberry rd.

Christopher J. Neubert, J.D., CFP, will present the seminar. Neubert is a registered investment advisor and president of MONECO.

Junior Library To Offer Storytelling For Children

Storytimes can be great fun for children, but they are also an important group learning experience for children approaching school age. To fill this need, the Winchester Junior Library is offering a wide range of storytimes this fall.

"Stories for 3s" are for children who are already 3 years old or who will turn 3 by Nov. 13. Registration begins Sept. 10 for either Tuesday morning from 10:30 to 11 or Tuesday afternoon from 1:30 to 2. Sessions being Oct. 9 and run for six weeks.

"Stories for 4s and 5s" are for children who are 4 years old or will turn 4 by Nov. 14, and those who are 5 but not yet enrolled in kindergarten. These sessions will run for six weeks on Wednesdays from 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. and from 1:30 to 2:15 beginning Oct. 10.

All sessions include stories, fingerplays, crafts and movies. Registration for all groups begins Sept. 10. Sessions are limited in size. For more information come to the junior Library or call 721-7140.

★ Helping

In respect for his parents' wishes, Dinis (now married with three children of his own), like many other Greeks, was silent about his past.

"In the beginning, all the years growing up and after I graduated college, my parents never really wanted to talk about what they encountered in Northern Epirus," Dinis says. "Because they left too many relatives, they were under fear they should never get involved with the issue because of reprisals (to family members in Albania)."

"Later, I knew inside me, after my mother explained their problems and how they escaped, I decided to get involved — real involvement."

"I told my father and my mother whatever was going to happen to their family members, he'd (Hoxha) had already done it. Keeping quiet never solved anything," Dinis believes.

"I told them it's time to get involved and to get other people interested in it. I believe a great injustice was done to this region. The people have a right to know what's going on."

Information about what is going on in Albania remains hard to get, however. Those Greeks in the U.S. cannot communicate to relatives in Albania. Telephoning, sending letters, or traveling to the country is nearly impossible, says Dinis.

Dinis' parents know little about the lives of their own brothers and sisters and many cousins in Albania, and through the years Dinis says he recalls his family receiving only one letter.

Dinis tells of one member of the Northern Epirus organization who never heard of his father's death until years later when someone who had fled the country informed him.

"In order to go to Albania, you have to be a friend of the Albanians," says Dinis. "The few that are able to go are under constant supervision. They want you to see what they want you to see."

In recent years, Dinis says some of the known human rights organizations have taken an interest in Albania. The human rights organization under the U.N. condemned Albania for violating the rights of the Greek people, says Dinis.

Information from Albania has come from Greeks who escaped. "The living standard, they say, is really miserable," Dinis says. "Everything is apportioned; there is so much bread, so much milk. They cannot buy more.

"The regime tells them the limited food is enough and they should be happy because they are better off than Greek people in Greece," Dinis describes.

The Northern Epirus Society has helped sponsor about six Greeks who recently fled Albania. Their stories about the country are often similar.

One man, 26-year-old Evangelos Gribouras, now works in Dinis' pizza shop. This man, his father, and his grandfather had all been imprisoned at one time or another.

Dinis says this new emigrant was jailed on charges that he discussed plans of escaping. "He was interrogated for six months and he got six years. He served only three."

After his prison release, he returned to the Army to finish his duty. One night on patrol near the Greek border, Gribouras and two others fled on foot just as the other soldiers had settled to watch a soccer game. "Thank God they made it," Dinis sighs.

Greece gives the refugees asylum. Some settle in Greece; others emigrate. Dinis' group has helped the Greeks here find jobs and homes and tries to guide them through American life.

Dinis says his organization tries to help in these small ways, but also hopes to make people in this country aware of the bigger picture — of getting the U.S. to put pressure on the Albanian government to end oppression of the Greek population there.

★ Star Correction

In last week's Winchester Star, Daniel Ballou of Wilmington, a candidate for Middlesex County Treasurer, was incorrectly identified as an attorney. He is, in fact, a former investigator for the state Attorney General's Office. He has been on a leave of absence, to campaign full time, since February.

AAA Urges Motorists To Drive Carefully

As nearly a million Massachusetts children return to school this week, AAA Massachusetts urges motorists to drive extra carefully.

"Young children are highly unpredictable, so drivers have to be extra alert," said Caroline J. Hymoff, Manager of Safety Services for AAA Massachusetts. "Please obey speed limits, especially in school zones. Your ability to stop quickly could save the life of a child."

As part of its annual "School's Open - Drive Carefully" safety campaign, AAA Massachusetts is distributing free bumper stickers bearing that reminder.

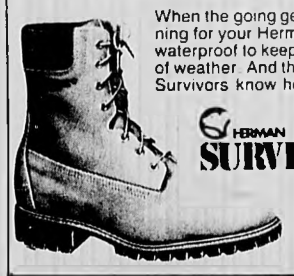

Interact Flea Market Will Be On Sept. 29

Winchester Interact will sponsor its big annual flea market on Saturday, Sept. 29. This year's offerings include crafts, bric-a-brac and a whole lot more. To reserve a table please contact either Pat Malcomb 729-2885 or Linda McLellen 729-4385.

Cooperative Nursery School Has Pre-School Extended Day Program Openings

Openings Are In Most Classes

The Winchester Cooperative Nursery School has places available in its pre-school "Extended Day Program" beginning Sept. 17. The classes are held daily, 11:45 - 2:45, and offer a program of art, music, and creative activities. A child may attend for one, two, three, four, or five days a week on a semester enrollment basis. There are openings in most classes.

The program is open to any nursery-age child with his/her own transportation and includes a lunch period. The program is professionally designed and taught and requires no parent help.

For further information please contact Cheryl Walker, Lincoln st., or the Winchester Cooperative Nursery School, 478 Main st.

Lynch Parents To Hold Annual First Day Coffee

On Sept. 5, 6 and 7, Lynch Parents Assn. will hold its annual first-day-of-school coffees for parents. Coffee and doughnuts will be served on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings at 8:45 in the school cafeteria.

On Thursday, Sept. 13, there will be a coffee for all new parents to the school in the school library at 7:30 p.m. At this meeting, there will be a brief talk about the school, plans for the year, and any questions will be answered.

The Lynch Parents Assn. is looking forward to welcoming all parents.

Herlihy Wins League Singles

Fourteen-year-old Scott Herlihy came from an unseeded position to be the surprise winner of the Sudbury Valley League singles finals for private tennis clubs at Longwood Tennis Coub in Brookline.

Scott, who has been playing tennis for six years, is coached by Lillian Peltz, pro at Winchester Swim and Tennis Club.

Peltz said Scott went into the 24-and-under championships as a dark horse and "he made it big."

The Winchester High School ninth grader beat third seed Hal Lyden of Wellesley in the quarter-finals, then Mark Carens of Longwood in the semi-finals. The finals, against David Kott of Wellesley, went to three sets.

Scott's older brothers, Shawn and Mark, played in the same tourney in past years, Shawn at number two singles and Mark at one doubles, taking the state doubles title one year.

Scott, who also plays soccer and hockey, is the son of Marlene Herlihy of Johnson rd. He plays doubles tennis and plans to try out for tennis at Winchester High.

He describes his tennis play as not bad and not good, "just consistent."

"Barker Lumber, First In Home Improvement."

Although you won't find anyone who was around when E. G. Barker opened their doors in 1860, the evidence is all around you. For more than 120 years, Barker Lumber, 36 Prospect st., Woburn, has supplied area builders and home-owners with the materials to construct and repair homes — homes that are still with us today.

The Dennison family took over the business in the 20s. "We are a family business," says asst. treasurer John Dennison. "My father, who has been in the business more than 30 years, is the company president.

" 'Build Better with Barker' is one of two slogans we use here," Dennison adds. "But most important, we live by the motto 'Service and quality are our biggest trademark.' We still offer free delivery in the local area."

Anything you need for home improvement can be found at Barker Lumber. They carry a full line of plywood, kiln-dried framing lumber, pine, mouldings, and panelling. Insulation, suspended ceilings, sheetrock, wooden gutters, and cedar siding are also kept in stock.

Pressure-treated lumber, landscape ties, sand, and cement are asvailable for jobs outside the house.

In the hardware store they carry a full line of power and hand tools, builders hardware and locks. They also stock paints and stains for those finishing touches.

Help is also available for those of us who are less than Mr. Fix-its. "If a homeowner needs help, we offer free advice on home improvement," explains Dennison. "Our main objective is a satisfied customer."

E.G. Barker Lumber is open Monday through Fridays from 8-4:30, Saturdays from 8-12. Their phone number is 933-0057.

OBITUARIES

Arthur J. Connell

Arthur J. Connell, a former Yale st. resident and a retired vice president and director of Stone and Webster Engineering Corp., died on Aug. 26 in Lexington after a long illness. He was 77.

Born in Springfield, he was a graduate of MIT, where he earned both a bachelor of science and a master's degree in chemical engineering.

Mr. Connell was engaged in the design and operation of petroleum refining and petrochemical plants in the United States and abroad for E.B. Badger and Sons Co. of Boston.

During World War II, Mr. Connell was associated with the first commercial installations of catalytic cracking plants for the production of aviation gasoline.

He was also a consultant for the design and installation of plants for the manufacture of synthetic rubber and other strategic materials for the war effort.

Mr. Connell was a commissioned officer in the Chemical Warfare Service, Officers Reserve Corps, U.S. Army. Following the war, he became vice president of Stone and Webster from which he was retired from in 1970.

During the 1960s, Mr. Connell participated in worldwide conferences in London, Paris, Frankfurt and Mexico City that addressed the problems of the world supply of petroleum and the energy crisis.

His professional affiliations included the American Chemical Society, the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, the Society of Chemical Industry in England, the American Petroleum Institute Alpha Chi Sigma, an honorary chemical fraternity.

Mr. Connell was also active in many clubs, including the Metropolitan Club, the Canadian Club, and the Chemists Club. He was also active in MIT Club of Boston and the MIT Alumni Ass.

Mr. Connell was a member of the Winchester Country Club and a communicant of St. Mary's Church.

He is survived by a sister, Katherine Connell of Springfield. His wife, Mary I. (Wilson) Connell of Watertown, died in 1975.

A funeral mass was celebrated by the Rev. Arthur L. Reardon on Aug. 29 in St. Mary's Church. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery. The Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Memorial donations may be sent to St. Mary's Church, 158 Washington st.

Margaret S. Eliot

Margaret S. Eliot of Swanton st. died on Aug. 9 at the Aberjona Nursing Home after a long illness. She was 89.

Born in Woburn, she graduated from Boston University, and later taught English at Woburn High School. Mrs. Eliot was a Red Cross volunteer driver for 35 years, and was the past secretary of the Woburn Historical Society.

Mrs. Eliot was also a trustee of the Count Rumford Assn

The wife of the late Charles B. Eliot, she is survived by her nephews — William Sherburne of Clearwater, Fla., Dale S. Sherburne of Winchester, J. Calvin Sherburne of Mission Veijo, Calif., James D. Sherburne of Woburn and Charles E. Sherburne of Woburn.

She is also survived by her nieces, Jean S. Westcott of Revere and Sally A. Finn of Winchester.

Burial was at Mt. Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge. The Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

New Director

BANK OFFICERS — Richard M. Kazanjian, center, of Albamont rd. is welcomed as a new director of Medford Co-Operative Bank by board chairman Dr. Anthony R. Staffier, left, and Hollywood rd. resident Robert H. Surabian, president of the bank. Kazanjian is president and treasurer of Builder's Equipment and Supplies Co. of Medford. He is a member of the Samuel Crocker Lodge of Masons, Medford Roatry Club and a corporator of Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Two Arts Lottery Grants Available

The Winchester Arts Lottery Council has announced that two grants totalling $1200 to be distributed to artists and cultural organizations in the community through the Massachusetts Arts Lottery project.

The applications approved by the Winchester Arts Lottery Council and certified by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council were from Winchester Players, funds to supplement music budget for scheduled musical, and Winchester Town Day Committee, funds for entertainment for Town Day.

Current grants awarded statewide have topped $1½ million. The total statewide grant distribution for July 1984 was $1½ million due to the enactment of a fiscal 1984 appropriation bill. This bill provides local arts lottery councils with $3 million per year with no community receiving less than $500 per funding cycle.

Grant applications are approved by local arts lottery councils. They are then reviewed by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council to certify that the applications conform with the Guidelines established by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council.

The next distribution of funds will be in January 1985. Applications for the next funding cycle are available at the Office of the Town Manager, Town Hall. The Winchester Arts Lottery Council invites all artists and arts organizations in the community to avail themselves of this unique local arts and humanities funding opportunity.

Please note that the deadline for application for the next distribution of funds is Oct. 12.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S.

New Grapefruit 'Super Pill' Gives Fast Weight Loss

No Dieting - Eat All You Want Pill Does All the Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA. (Special)—An amazing new "super" grapefruit pill has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose at least 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

This "super" grapefruit pill is a dramatically improved version of the world famous grapefruit diet. It is far more effective than the original and eliminates "the mess, fuss, and high cost of eating half a fresh grapefruit at every meal."

"Pill Does All the Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise, and NO hunger pangs." It is 100% safe. You simply take the pill with a glass of water before each meal and the amazing combination of powerful ingredients are so effective they take over and you start losing weight immediately.

Pill Has ALL Daily Vitamins

The powerful and unique combination of ingredients are what make this a "super-pill". It contains highly potent grapefruit concentrate and a diuretic to help eliminate bloat and puffiness. No need to take any vitamins to maintain your good health and energy. The pill is fortified with ALL (100%) of the U.S. Government daily vitamin requirements.

Contains Japanese 'Glucomannan'

Each pill also contains an amazingly effective amount of "glucomannan", the remarkable natural dietary fiber discovers from Japan (used successfully for over 1500 years) that expands in your stomach and gives you a full and satisfied feeling all day long.

The super-pill is already sweeping the country with glowing reports of easy and fast weight loss from formerly overweight people in all walks of life who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Now Available to Public

You can order your supply of these highly successful "super" grapefruit pills (now available directly from the manufacturer by mail order only) by sending $12 for a 14-day supply (or $20 for a 30-day supply, or $35 for a 60-day supply) cash, check, or money order to: Citrus Industries, 9903 Santa Monica Blv., Dept. W14, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard, and Amer. Express OK. (Send card number, expiration date, and signature.) For fastest service for credit card orders ONLY call toll free 1-(800)-862-6262, ext. W14.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for mature people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with 58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

SAVE TIME, MONEY, ENERGY

If you are a home-buyer, it makes a lot of sense to use the services of a Realtor. Realtors can perform truly "incalculable" services because they save buyers two precious commodities: Time and energy. Both are valuable to you!

You save money on gas and oil because we'll be doing the looking in my car. You'll save the time and trouble of trudging from bank to bank looking for financing because I'm the one who helps you arrange that. You'll save the wear and tear of rushing around looking at unsuitable properties because I'll show you only the homes I know are suitable and within your price range and be hoping to tell you about everything that comes on the Market.

If you have to sell your present home in order to buy a new one from us, we'll handle that sale for you too and make sure the two transactions dovetail properly. We have a long list of house-hunters who are ready to buy now. Your home may be just what many of them are looking for.

Teen Talk

The Teen Talk column welcomes questions for teens, their families and friends about concerns and problems. Questions should be sent to Teen Talk, in care of The Arlington Advocate, P.O. Box 129, Arlington, 02174. Letters need not be signed. All questions will be treated confidentially.

The responses will be formulated under the direction of Patsy Kraemer, director of the Arlington Youth Consultation Center, with the assistance of area counselors, teachers, recreation leaders and clergymen.

Q. I am the parent of a 17-year-old boy with an established curfew of 11:30, with exceptions. He tells me that his friends can stay out later. What is an average curfew for "hanging out?" How can I be sure my curfew is a reasonable one?

A. Whatever curfew friends have isn't as important as what rules you want to have in your house. It's your house and you have to set the rules. It's also important to negotiate "fair" rules with your son since he's 17 years old and so close to being an adult.

He'll soon be old enough to begin making his own rules so you want him to have the experience of being more in charge of his own life and his own "comings and goings." So try to find a balance between what you're comfortable with and what he's comfortable with. Can you talk well enough together to accomplish this? It sounds as if you have that kind of rapport.

Q. I am a 14-year-old boy and have two brothers, 16 and 17. They are both very into sports and my father pays much more attention to them than he does to me. I have other interests like carpentry and fishing but he just doesn't seem interested. How can I get my father to respect me for what I am?

A. You've made your point very clearly in your letter. Maybe your dad will read it here. In any case, I think it would make sense to sit down with him and let him know just how important his approval and acceptance of you is. He may be flattered.

Hurting their children is the last thing that parents want to do. You'll probably find that your father is very surprised to hear that you're feeling as neglected as your letter indicates.

Q. I am a 12-year-old girl and I am very tall for my age. This hasn't been too bad in elementary school but I'm going into junior high school this fall year and I'm really scared. How should I handle it when kids call me "Jolly Green Giant".

A. The fact that you've handled the problem in elementary school suggests that you'll probably do just fine in junior high as well. But you are right. Junior high school may be different. Kids become more aware of their own bodies and of other people's bodies.

All early adolescent boys and girls are self-conscious about bodies and it can be particularly difficult for the early or late "developer." It's hard to be different at this age.

All I can suggest is that you continue to use that inner strength that helped you find good ways of dealing with it in the lower grades and keep in mind — it's not personal, it just reflects the anxiety of those that call you names. If they don't get a "personalized" or "fun" reaction from you it won't be fun to tease you and they probably will stop.

Q. What are some of the signs a parent should look for to see if their kids may be using drugs?

A. Since you've lived with your children for so many years you know them best of all. Look for changes that seem out-of-the-ordinary in their behavior. Also watch for a sudden drop in grades in school. Use your common sense in observing what they're doing with their money, what they're like when they come home at night.

Don't pull the wool over your own eyes and neglect signs that may be there. But don't become a private detective in your own home either. The best approach is to have an open honest talk with your kids about any questions or concerns you might have.

Q. Adolescent girls are often moody and depressed. With the increase in teen suicides how does a parent know when this is just normal growing pains and when they should be alarmed?

A. You're very right when you say that adolescents are often moody and depressed — it goes with the territory! Some serious symptoms to be concerned about that would reflect deeper depression include:

Isolation from friends

Serious change in school performance

Sleeping disorders and eating disorders

Talk of suicide

Dangerous "accidents"

It's also important to be honest with yourself and take a look at what's going on in your family. Are there issues that would depress somebody — such as alcoholism, separation and divorce, serious illness, recent deaths? If there are difficulties don't assume the young person can or should handle it along. Look into some outside help.

Q. Having been raised in a conservative household myself, I find it hard to accept the liberal moral attitude of today's youth. I try not to be rigid with my three daughters, but would like them to retain a good moral character without giving them a lot of hang-ups or making social outcasts out of them. Where's the line?

A. What a wonderful question and you sound like a really sensitive parent to be so concerned. Your daughters are lucky! It is hard to find the line between your own family history and the present-day openness.

I think the key word is the one you used — "rigid". It's really important as a parent to have firm believes even though your daughters may not like them. It gives them something to "bounce off of" and that's very important for them in their maturing process.

As long as your daughters have a sense of caring and fairness from you, even though they don't like your beliefes and disagree with themn, they'll mature nicely. If, on the other hand, you come across rigid and harsh and completely unbending, then they'll only feel bitterness and resentment. Your daughters are really learning about differences through this process — their differences from you — and that's an invaluable lesson. Stick to your guns in a nice way.
